PEN TALKS DRAG ON...

Some Con Demands Met by Negotiators

Times News Services

NEW WESTMINSTER — Negotiations between a prisoners' committee and officials at the troubled British Columbia penitentiary adjourned early today after agreement was reached on four of the prisoners' seven demands.

A member of a citizens' adivsory committee which sat in on the negotiations said the committee hopes the remaining demands will be resolved when negotiations resume later today.

Michael Jackson, a University of British Columbia law professor, said that prison guard Wayne Culbert, 21, who is being held hostage by the prisoners, was examined shortly before midnight by a member of the prison medical staff and was reported in good health and unharmed.

The committee is satisfied that "both parties have negotiated in the utmost good faith," he added.

He said that by midnight Wednesday, agreement had been reached on four demands and substantial progress was made on the remaining three. He did not say which demands had been agreed upon.

Meanwhile, the 200 prisoners who rioted early this week continued their insurrection in the devasted east wing of the prison.

In Ottawa, Solicitor-General Francis Fox said he will recommend acceleration of a building program to replace old prisons such as the B.C. penitentiary.

Fox also said force to end the revolt would be used only on his orders.

More RCMP were moved to the prison Wednesday as police and armed forces person-

GAS INQUIRY

VERNON (CP) — Consumer Services Minister Rafe Mair said Wednesday that a government committee will investigate gasoline marketing in B.C. The minister made the announcement after meeting with local service station operators who expressed anger with what they called gasoline price discrimination.

Schreyer Warns He'll Drop AIB

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer said today it is "extremely unlikely" the Manitoba government will remain in the federal anti-inflation program after the end of March unless Ottawa makes major changes in the program.

Addressing the annual convention of the Manitoba Federation of Labor, the premier said the Anti-Inflation Board is often too rigid in its interpretation of wage guidelines.

Manitoba signed an agreement with the federal government early this year to participate in the anti-inflation program at least until April of next year.

Schreyer supports controls in principle as a way of curbing inflation, but he has criticized several recent wage rollbacks affecting Manitoba workers as unfair.

His statement today was his strongest yet about Manitoba dropping out of the federal anti-inflation program next year.

At the same time, however, he told union members his government would feel obliged to bargain within the spirit of federal restraints.

Schreyer repeated two major complaints.

One is that there is inadequate recognition for workers coming off multi-year contracts, and the other is that the board often failed to understand the intent of contract terms, he said.

Schreyer's speech came at the time of renewed criticism from the ranks of organized labor because of the province's support of the anti-inflation program.

Delegates to the convention will vote later in the week on a resolution calling for the Federation of Labor to withdraw its traditional backing for his New Democratic Party government.

The speech also came just two days after Schryer's visit to Ottawa to seek a reversal of wage rollbacks ordered for health care workers and government liquor store employees.

Anti-inflation administrator Donald Tansley said Wednesday in Ottawa that a decision by the Manitoba Liquor Control Commission to pay raises above limits he ordered could subject both the commission and employees to penalties under the Anti-Inflation Act.

Commission chairman Frank Syms said a 23.7-percent wage increase was being reinstated to 400 employees depite Tansley's order reducing raises to 12 per cent. Tansley also had ordered the commission to pay the government $300,000 in wage overpayments, $60,000 of it to be collected from employees.

$40M SURPLUS IN WELFARE?

The human resources department could end the fiscal year with a $30 million or $40 million budget surplus if current trends continue, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Wednesday.

The saving will come entirely from welfare payments, the minister said.

"If we go as we are now, we may have an additional $30 million or $40 million for other programs or a surplus," he said.

He said the number of people on social assistance has dropped 20 per cent since September 1975.

Fewer transients coming into the province have helped the decrease, he said, "but it's also a matter of attitude."

"The officers (welfare staff) say the attitude of people is changing with respect to income assistance."

Vander Zalm said he couldn't give solid evidence that the decrease in the welfare rolls is "entirely our doing, but no one is being cut off welfare, just fewer people are coming into the system."

He said all other areas of his $581.1-million budget are on target.

Ferry Runs Aground in Fog

The Queen of Esquimalt ferry ran aground in fog near Swartz Bay at 8:05 a.m. today but the 137 passengers and 34 crew members escaped without injury.

The 33 vehicles and one bus on board were moved to the stern and this, coupled with a rising tide, freed the ferry at 9:10 a.m. and it returned to Swartz Bay under its own power.

B.C. Ferries general manager Charles Gallagher said a diver checked the vessel below the waterline and found a minor one-inch dent and scraped paint on the side and 30 feet back from the bow.

"The crew checked the vessel carefully and found that no water was taken and the engines are sound. No metal was damaged so repairs will not be needed. She may go back into service later today."

He said the crew should be commended for getting the ferry afloat so quickly and without the aid of tugs.

A crew member said passengers were startled but not injured and they took the incident in reasonably good humor.

The passengers were transferred to the Queen of Vancouver.

The grounding was the only major accident reported in the fog.

Victoria traffic police reported no accidents during the peak of the fog from 7 am. to 9:30 a.m.

Air Canada's 8:10 a.m. flight to Vancouver left 40 minutes late and Pacific Western Airlines flights were running two hours late in the early monring but schedules returned to normal by 10:30 a.m.

Norm Dressler, chief forecaster at Pat Bay weather office, said the fog was to be expected because of a light flow of air from the mainland across Georgia Strait.

The flow of air became moist and warm crossing the strait and turned to fog when it reached cooler air over Vancouver Island.

Protest Day Still Puzzle

With two weeks to go before organized labor's day of protest, the extent of participation by Greater Victoria union members remains uncertain.

John Schibli, president of the Victoria Labor Council, said today some unions have indicated by vote what they will do but the total picture won't be clear until the day itself, Oct. 14.

He said the majority of workers take the position that the decision to stay off the job was made earlier by the Canadian Labor Congress and so there is no need for a vote by affiliated members.

Therefore, exactly how many of the council's 18,000 members go along with the CLC's decision and take the day off can't be computed at this stage.

Schibli said most rank and file union members appear enthusiastic about the day of protest but there is some concern as to whether this will result in participating in demonstrations on Oct. 14.

A co-ordinating committee of the council decided Wednesday night to have supporters gather at Centennial Square at about 10:30 a.m. Oct. 14 and then march through the city to the legislative buildings.

There the union members will be addressed by John Fryer, a general vice-president of the CLC and sec-

Jailed 4 Years In Theft

A 35-year-old man sentenced today to a four-year jail term for stealing more than $40,000 was pardoned in 1971 for previous criminal offences.

Prosecutor Armand Petronio disclosed that Kenneth Harold Simkin, of 1002 McKenzie, had been given probation for theft of $9,008 from an Elks Club raffle in Dawson Creek and a two-year jail term in 1960 for uttering worthless cheques in Calgary.

Petronio was pardoned for the offenses in June, 1971, Judge Harold Alder was told.

Simkin had pleaded guilty to stealing almost $35,000 from the Victoria Community Grocers Co-Operative Association and theft by conversion of $6,147 from Deltek Developments.

The theft from the co-op occurred while Simkin was doing book-keeping work as operator of Simkin Accounting Services.

The funds were used to pay debts, finance his own business and to pay for two vacations.

Judge Alder sentenced Simkin to a four-year jail term and two years probation.

Defence counsel Roderick MacDonald described Simkin as a man weighed down by debts and said he had lived a life of "failure and disappointment."

And he said because of Simkin's age and condition of health, he might not be able to survive a lengthy jail sentence.

Growing Rift Threatened Among Rhodesia's Blacks

Times News Services

SALISBURY — One of three rival black nationalist groups said today its leader would return to Rhodesia, raising the prospect of serious intra-black bickering over creation of an interim government.

Spokesmen for Bishop Abel Muzorewa said he would return to Rhodesia within two weeks to participate in efforts to form an interim government, as prescribed by U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's peace proposals.

Muzorewa's return to take part in a forthcoming British-sponsored conference on setting up an interim government could worsen existing divisions among the black nationalists and mar the process of bringing black majority rule to Rhodesia within two years.

Britain said it was ready to convene the conference within two weeks, "anywhere in southern Africa acceptable to all the parties involved."

Prime Minister Ian Smith, fearing a collapse in the peace efforts, has persuaded conservatives in his ruling Rhodesia Front party to support the peace plan, party officials said Wednesday.

Muzorewa heads what is known as the external wing of the African National Council. Both his faction and the so-called internal wing headed by Joshua Nkomo claim to represent the majority of Rhodesia's six million blacks.

A third organization, the Zimbabwe African National Union, which comprises guerrillas based in Mozambique, also is known to be jockeying for a voice in the formation of an interim government.

Rival black leaders will meet in Mozambique capital of Maputo this week for talks aimed at ending their rift.

SEA ROUNDUP CORRALS COWS

VANCOUVER (CP) — One cow was missing and presumed swimming in English Bay today following a spontaneous stampede early Wednesday in which seven cows charged off a barge into Vancouver harbor waters.

Police, tugmen and Coast Guard crew spent hours rounding up the cows Wednesday.

The city police boat crew assisted in hoisting two calves out of the water.

One cow swam to West Bay and three West Vancouver police officers spent two hours corralling the beast, which was eventually knocked out by a veterinarian with a tranquilizer gun.

The tide was coming in and the officers had to slide the cow onto a sheet of plywood and manually skid it to safety above high tide.

Another cow swam ashore in West Vancouver and was loaded into a truck.

Sixteen hours after the stampede a Coast Guard cutter reported it had a cow in tow and took it to Sandy Beach in West Vancouver.

Estate Tax Relief Due —Bennett

KELOWNA (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett said Wednesday that his government has a total commitment to change all succession and estate duties legislation in British Columbia.

Bennett told the Chamber of Commerce here that he could not detail the government's policy on the duties because tax changes must be made public only in a budget and that one is expected early in 1977.

However, he said the current laws are not reasonable because they discourage investment by Canadians in Canada.

The B.C. government now collects about $25 million a year in estate and succession duties, which were retained by the former Social Credit government in 1971 when the federal government allowed the taxes to become a provincial revenue, rather than fedal.

NEWS BRIEFS

Four Lanes Set

KELOWNA (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett said Wednesday that 4.2 miles of Highway 97 from Reid's Corner here to Ellison Lake, north of the city, will be widened to four lanes. The premier said work on the widening will begin immediately and will cost "many millions more" than originally forecast because of delays in starting the project.

Super Winner

DUBLIN (CP) — The 24th draw of the Irish hospitals sweepstake superprize of £100,000 ($650,000) was won today by Louis Olson of Beaverton, Ore.

Buildings Topple

MANILA (AP) — Several buildings collapsed when an earth tremor shook the city of Cotabato in the Philippines today, witnesses said, but there were no reports of casualties.

2 Elephants Born

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuter) — Elephant bull twins were born six weeks ago at the Lake Manyara National Park, Derek Bryceson, director of the Tanzania's national parks, said Wednesday. Experts say they believe it is the first time on record elephant twins have been born.

Leaders to Die

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI) — Sudan's former prime minister, Sadiq Al Mahdi and finance minister, Hussien Al Hindi were sentenced to death today in a mass trial of alleged ringleaders in an abortive July coup, the official Sudan News Agency reported. Six other defendants were sent to jail for life.

POUND WANTED AGAIN

LONDON — The British pound, one of the world's most unwanted currencies in recent days, was back in demand today and jumped more than three cents to $1.70 (U.S.)

In Montreal it was selling at $1.63 Canadian.

News that Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey had asked the international monetary fund (IMF) for a further $3.9 billion loan to support Britain's sick currency appeared to calm an edgy market.

Healey said that without help from the IMF to prop up the pound, Britain would have to endure economic policies so savage "I think they would produce riots in the streets."

"I think it would mean three million unemployed, and living standards would fall by at least five per cent," Healey said in a television interview late Wednesday.

Bankers and foreign exchange dealers were convinced Healey will have to produce an economic package, or a mini-budget, in order to bring confidence back to the pound.

"The loan will give Britain some breathing space, but unless it is backed by some very tough economic measures soon, we could even be in deeper trouble before long," one banker said.

Combines Probing B.C. Giants

VANCOUVER — Combines investigators are examining the record of several major Canadian forestry firms, including two B.C. companies — the giant MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. — the Vancouver Province reported today.

The investigators are paying special attention to newsprint marketing files.

Also being probed are the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, with headquarters in Montreal, and three as-yet unnamed eastern newsprint companies.

An industry spokesman in B.C. said he and his company "haven't got the slightest idea" what the combines officers are looking for.

One forestry firm official, who wished to remain anonymous, said he is "wondering if this is politically motivated — Trudeau is under tremendous pressure from labor for his wage controls, so perhaps someone in the government is saying let's show these guys we are giving hell to industry and not letting them get away with anything."

The investigators, from the Combines Investigations Branch in Ottawa, arrived Monday morning at the Vancouver headquarters of MB and CZ, armed with search warrants, good for a month, empowering them to examine records.

Intial reports suggested the combines men had seized large numbers of documents from MB, but the company's president, Ernest Richardson, said this was "quite incorrect."

"I know they are looking at certain aspects of our industry in Canada," he said, "and I know that they are here (in MB). But they haven't seized any documents. We are allowing them to see anything they want to see.

NEW BUILDING BODY

KELOWNA (CP) — Formation of the British Columbia Building Corporation to develop and manage public buildings was announced Wednesday by Public Works Minister Alex Fraser.

The Crown corporation will manage all public buildings except schools, hospitals and the legislative buildings.

Fraser said that under the corporation, significant savings can be made by eliminating the duplication of facilities.

In Vancouver, Progressive Conservative leader Scott Wallace attacked the corporation as a betrayal and mockery of social credit election promises.

Corporation directors have been given enormous powers without reference to the cabinet or the legislature and the corporation has power to expropriate the property of individuals, he said.

There would have been rioting in the streets if the former NDP government had introduced such legislation, he said. By setting up the corporation Social Credit has broken its promise to cut down the size of government.

CBC Eyes Cable Net

OTTAWA (CP) — A. W. Johnson, president of the CBC, said today the nationally-owned network could set up a second service within a year to provide cablevision subscribers with special programs as an alternative to existing service.

He proposed the second-service alternative in a brief to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunication Commission opposing suggestions that pay TV be introduced under federal government regulation.

The second service would carry parliamentary debates, repeats of major CBC-TV network programs, and local and national programs of special interest not now shown on the networks.

It would be available only to cablevision subscribers, but cable television systems now are available to nearly half the households in Canada, including 93 per cent in Greater Victoria.

The CBC says it objects to pay TV because it would inevitably mean the importation of more U.S. film and sports shows, water down the Canadian content of the choice available to viewers, reduce the audiences for existing networks, and perhaps siphon talent away from the networks.

Johnson said he believes there would be a public outcry if some programs — such as Saturday Night Hockey — now available from the CBC-TV network were to be transferred to pay TV services.

There would have to be regulations against that, he said.

Johnson also said Canadian broadcasters can and do compete effectively for audiences with the big U.S. networks, "given the odds against us."

But those odds are formidable. An hour-long U.S. network situation comedy might cost $250,000, but because of smaller audiences and advertising revenues, Canadian networks can afford to spend only $75,000 on a comparable hour-long show.

retary for the B.C. Government Employees Union.

Other local union leaders will also speak against the federal wage and price controls.

Based on the votes that have been taken by local unions to date, it appears there will be no mail, no garbage collection and no ferries on Oct. 14.

However, there will be bus service, at least in the Victoria area as members of the Amalgamated Transit Union, local 109, voted Wednesday night to stay on the job.

That decision goes counter to the bus drivers' counterparts in Vancouver who voted not to work Oct. 14.

As far as essential services are concerned, such as hospitals, fire protection and police service, they will be unaffected by the day of protest.

The executive of the Hospital Employees Union has said there will be no walkoff by hospital workers on that day but there may be demonstrations at lunch hours.

Exactly what form the demonstrations will take is to be decided at the HEU's week-long convention in Vancouver next week.

City policemen are not affiliated with the CLC and so won't be participating. Area firemen are members of the CLC but they have been asked by the congress to remain at work.

Members of the letter Carriers Union in Victoria have voted but the results have not been disclosed. However, a union source said a substantial majority were in favor of joining the protest.

Whether the Colonist and Times newspapers will be published remains up in the air as all of the unions involved have not voted on the matter.

It appears unlikely the Province or Sun will appear on Oct. 14 as the Joint Council of Newspaper Unions at Pacific Press in Vancouver has recommended its unions observe the day of protest.

The Newspaper Guild at Pacific Press, like the members of the Victoria local, have voted to stay on the job Oct. 14.

It does not appear B.C. Ferries will operate because representatives of the 2,500 unlicensed workers have said their members will not work.

The members are part of the marine services general component of the B.C. Government Employees Union, whose executive has recommended observance of the day of protest.

But the extent of BCGEU member support for the protest remains uncertain as some of the 30,000 members, such as administrative employees in Victoria, have voted to stay on the job.

Meanwhile, members of the Vancouver Municipal and Regional Employees' union, representing about 4,000 inside workers in the Vancouver area, have voted not to participate.

The 186 inside workers in Victoria, members of Local 388 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, have voted to boycott the day of protest as did their counterparts and outside workers in Saanich.

Outside workers in Victoria opted to stay off the job, while Victoria area teachers have voted not to participate in the protest.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Employers Council of B.C. said today the one-day work stoppage was "not in the interests of the workers."

He said the government is already aware that the CLC is against the wage and price control program. The protest will do nothing except cost workers a day's pay.

It's Illegal For Birds To Sing

LAKEFIELD, Ont. (CP) — Village council approved an interim anti-noise bylaw this week which limits the length of time birds can sing and makes it illegal for any human to sing, whistle, repair a motor or drive a clattering vehicle over smooth pavement.

Birds can sing for less than half an hour between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m. and less than 15 minutes between 10 p.m. and 8 a.m.

The anti-noise bylaw was one of three bylaws council asked Earle Cuddie, council's clerk-treasurer, to prepare after a resident complained to council last week about the amount of noise, littering and loitering in this community 10 miles west of Peterborough.

Cuddie said some aspects of the noise bylaw are almost impossible to enforce and suggested that sections dealing with musical instruments and motor repairs be eliminated for that reason.

Blaze in Duplex Saanich Mystery

Saanich fire officials said today they are mystified by a fire that broke out in the basement of a duplex at 3959 Blenkinsop Wednesday morning resulting in about $25,000 damage.

A spokesman said the fire apparently started near a back door but no cause has been determined.

The duplex is owned and occupied by Ron and Joy Overbeck and their four children. Only one person, their son Douglas, was home at the time.

He heard a crackling sound, spotted flames and ran next door to call for help.

By the time firemen arrived, the basement was engulfed.

No damage was done to the other half of the duplex occupied by Harold Crowe and his family.

Fire officials in Victoria had an easier time deciding what caused a fire in the top floor of a two-storey rooming house at 1012 North Park.

The spokesman said the fire, caused by careless smoking originated in a bed in a suite occupied by Eric Porter.

Porter, two other tenants and owner-operator Mrs. Pearl Parham ran from the building after the fires was detected at 3:42 p.m. Porter fell as he scrambled to safety and had to be taken to Victoria General Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises and smoke inhalation. He was released a short time later.

Damage is estimated at between $10,000 to $12,000.

A contingent of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry also arrived Wednesday, bringing the number of soldiers at the strife-torn prison to more than 100.

The troops were flown from manoeuvres at Wainright, Alta., to relieve a 72-man unit from Canadian Forces Base Chilliwack.

Prison officials said that while the situation in the east wing still was unstable, other cell blocks were generally quiet early today, although there were noisy protests and some damage to B-7, the other main cell area.

Ivan Horvat, a convicted murderer who is president of the prisoners' committee, told reporters Wednesday that prisoners were being denied the services of a doctor and could not get aspirin or other medication.

Previous requests for medication were met by prison officials.

"The situation is getting desperate," he said. "The inmates fear for their lives."

The top priority was to take control of the situation out of the hands of guards who are likely to panic and "start peppering the place with shotguns," he said.

"This is not just a matter of guys having a little party. We are talking about lives on a mass scale," he said.

The inmates had earlier condemned a small group of "evil and corrupt men" among the staff, and demanded immunity for prisoners who had taken part in the revolt, a demand which was rejected by prison officials.

Meanwhile, in Montreal, preliminary estimate of damage caused by prisoners who rioted at the maximum-security Laval Institute Monday evening has been set at $750,000.

Jean Lajoie, spokesman for the Canadian Penitentiary Service, said Wednesday the estimate was not final, "but we feel it is accurate."

About 286 prisoners at the 106-year-old federal institution set fire to their cells, ripped out toilets and broke windows and furniture to protest conditions at the penitentiary. The cellblock also was flooded.

Trawler Arrested

DUBLIN (UPI) — Irish naval vessels today placed armed boarding parties on a giant Soviet trawler that refused to accompany them into port, a navy spokesman said, after an fishery protection vessel spotted it fishing half a mile inside Irish territorial waters.

IMF in Dispute

MANILA (Reuter) — China has demanded the immediate expulsion of Taiwan from the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank in a move that may disrupt the joint annual meeting of the two world organizations here next week. The IMF declined immediate comment on the call.

City Backs Pact

The city of Victoria is finally getting around to ratifying a contract with its 300 outside workers — 17 months after it was accepted in April, 1975.

A bylaw ratifying the collective agreement for 1975 and 1976 with Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees was introduced and given first readings Wednesday by city council.

One weather system which passed inland Wednesday has rapidly weakened. At the same time skies were variable over much of the province with a little precipitation occurring on the north coast as well as over the central interior. Near the coast, fog has been extensive overnight. However, as a ridge builds over the province from the southwest sunny skies will develop over most of the southern B.C. today. Another disturbance from the Pacific will move into southern B.C. Friday while northern B.C. will be mainly cloudy with a few showers during the day.

Syria Scores Major Victories

Times News Services

BEIRUT — Syrian and Christian forces closed in on pockets of Palestinian resistance in the Lebanese central mountains today in what appeared to be the worst defeat for the commandos in Lebanon's 17-month civil war.

Palestinian spokesmen refused to comment on their quick setback in the face of Syria's spectacular and largely unopposed assault.

But a Palestinian source confirmed they had lost the most important positions vital to the rest of their mountain defence — the key towns of Hammana, Mtein and Aintoura.

At last report, they still held positions along the strategic Jabel El Knisse ridge 20 miles east of Beirut, but without the three strategic towns they were cut off and surrounded.

Palestinian sources attributed the collapse of their positions to a Syrian change of tactics from tank columns to mobile infantry able to storm through sideroads, over ridges and across fields to attack from sides where the Palestinians were unprepared.

The loss of the mountains was the Palestinian's worst single setback of the war.

The two-day Syrian operation touched off a new flurry of Arab mediation efforts to arrange negotiations for an over-all settlement of the sectarian conflict.

Arab League mediator Hassan Sabri Kholi travelled to Damascus with an offer from the guerrilla-leftist alliance to negotiate an immediate ceasefire with the Syrians and right-wing Lebanese Christians.

Sources close to the Egyptian mediator said he was empowered by the leftists to offer a new formula to regulate the guerrilla military presence in Lebanon.

City Will Stick With Yearly Vote

There will be no change in the pattern of Victoria's civic elections, city council decided Wednesday.

And that means, commented Mayor Mike Young, that the elections will continue to be "the same shabby, sad state of affairs" they have been for many years, with half the council elected each year.

"They (the electorate) will probably get the half they deserve," he added.

In a recent informal caucus meeting council had approved by a 5-3 majority Young's proposal to hold elections every two years, in which the entire council of mayor and eight aldermen would be elected in one sweep.

But by the same majority Thursday council voted to stick with the present system of annual elections.

Only Young, Ald. Murray Glazier and Ald. Bill Tindall voted against the motion.

Glazier had earlier opposed the principle of biennial elections. On the other side of the fence, Ald. Bob Wright and Ald. Helen Beirnes switched their vote from support to oppositon.

The five aldermen in favor of maintaining the status quo gave no reasons for their stand.

In previous discussion, several members had agreed that biennial elections would create a resurgence of interest in civic matters, although there was some concern that the method might see the introduction of partisan politics in Victoria.

Soviets Seize 6th Fishboat

Times News Servics

TOKYO — The Soviet Union has seized another Japanese fishing boat, apparently in retaliation for Japan's role in the defection of a Soviet pilot who landed a MiG-25 in northern Japan.

It was the sixth Japanese vessel seized by the Soviets since the defecting flyer landed his plane and sought asylum in the United States Sept. 6.

A spokesman for the Maritime Safety Agency said a 17-ton trawler with a crew of four has not been heard from since it radioed to nearby Japanese vessels Tuesday that it was being seized by a Soviet patrol boat.

The spokesman said the trawler, Kosei Maru No. 8, was operating near the Soviet-held southern Kurile Island of Etorofu in the North Pacific when it made its last radio contact.

Japanese defence experts, meanwhile, say the MiG-25, is a "flying tank," a high-altitude interceptor rather than a dogfighter, defence agency sources said today.

The Japanese technicians made particular note of the MiG-25's two huge engines, which have exhaust ports almost five feet in diameter, 50 per cent larger than those on the U.S. Phantom jet flown by the Japanese air force.

They were quoted as saying that the MiG-25's maximum thrust is believed to exceed that of the Phantom by eight tons.

The experts also believe the Soviet plane is probably not able to fly at more than Mach 3, or three times the speed of sound.

It was apparently developed to intercept the U.S. Air Force's B-70 bomber, experimentally produced in 1964 and 1965 to replace the B-52.

The B-70 was reported designed to fly at an altitude of more than 65,000 feet at Mach 3.

Spanish Bid Falters

GIBRALTAR (UPI) — Advocates of rapid negotiations with Spain over the future status of Britain's impregnable fortress, colony of Gibraltar lost heavily in Wednesday's election, results showed today.

All three candidates for the House of Assembly who campaigned for negotiations "sooner rather than later" over Gibraltar's status were defeated.

Chief Minister Sir Joshua Hassan won re-election and his followers in the Gibraltar Labor Party and the Association for the Advancement of Civil Rights won eight of the 15 House of Assembly seats.

All candidates were committed in advance to a redefinition of the colony's relations with Britain and Spain.

The key issue was one of degree and timing.

British Water Flows

LONDON (Reuter) — Water restrictions were lifted Wednesday for 50,000 people in southern Wales after heavy rainfall brought an end to Britain's worst drought for 250 years

Normal supply now has been restored to more than 250,000 domestic users in the area following 14-hour daily cuts which began almost two months ago.

At one point more than a million households in southern Wales, Britain's worst hit area, were able to receive water for only seven hours a day.

A 50 per cent cut in supplies to industry in parts of southern Wales also is being lifted, the Welsh National Water Authority announced.

About 750,000 people in southeast Wales still will be affected by daily water cuts "for some weeks," a spokesman for the authority said. Most cuts are for 10 hours a day.

CYPRUS ROLE WARNING

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada told the UN bluntly Wednesday it will reconsider its participation in the Cyprus peacekeeping force if other members do not pay their fair share of costs.

External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson noted that only a dozen or so governments contributed to the Cyprus operating fund in the first half of this year and that the account now is running at $40 million deficit.

If the question is not settled soon, he told the General Assembly, "my government will have to review its position as a troop contributor in Cyprus."

The 2,000-man force, on the island since 1964 to keep the peace between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots, included 515 Canadians.

Jamieson's address marked his first appearance at the UN since he took over the external affairs portfolio from Allan MacEachen earlier this month.

It also was the kick-off for a three-day diplomatic foray during which Jamieson will hold bilateral talks with key foreign ministers gathered here for the early stages of the fall session.

Controls and co-operation
The real story on wages

Some people think that the anti-inflation program is holding down wages too tightly. Others say that wage control isn't happening at all and that someone, someone else, is getting away with more than a fair share. In fact, wage restraint is happening and most Canadians are co-operating to make this part of the anti-inflation program work.

The anti-inflation Guidelines allow basic compensation increases in the first year of 8%, with 2% more added as a share of national productivity. Another 2% can be added or subtracted depending on whether a group had kept up with or fallen behind cost of living increases before the program started. On average, these Guidelines allow an increase this year of about 10%. About half of the wage settlements and agreements reported to the Anti-Inflation Board have been within these Guidelines. The cases where higher increases are negotiated are studied carefully, and unless there is very good justification for them, these increases are rolled back.

As a result we can see a downward trend in wage increases. The average weekly earnings in Canada as reported by Statistics Canada had been increasing at a rate of 14.3% in the 9 months before the program started. This had moderated to 12.8% for the 3 months ending in June*. Increases in new wage contracts have come down from 17.0% in July-September of 1975 to 11.5% in April-June* of 1976. These increases have kept ahead of the rise in living costs, thus providing the wage earner with real increases in buying power.

Since last October, the inflation rate has dropped steadily and we are sure to meet the first year goal of 8% or less. The co-operation of most Canadians in restraining their wage demands has certainly contributed a lot to the effort to hold down prices. We now know that we can successfully fight inflation. And we know that with continued support and co-operation we can bring the inflation rate down to no more than 6%, the target for the second year of the anti-inflation program.

No Studies Required

Isn't it reassuring that as the cost of an ordinary building lot rises out of sight in most Canadian urban communities that federal and provincial housing ministers have reached agreement on a joint investigation into the reasons why?

The news was simultaneous with the disclosure that half a dozen Victoria area housing developers are moving their operations to the U.S., because of "bureaucracy" which stalls projects up to a year or more.

Adam Smith could tell the politicians why—there's a surplus of demand and a paucity of supply, complicated by excessive red tape generated in municipalities and other agencies and the dominance of a few very big development companies.

The solution—as municipalities like Prince George have proved over the years—is for government to put on the market a sufficient number of building lots to keep the price down. The federal and provincial governments own enough land in Canada to provide building lots until well into the next century.

Which brings us to an election promise made in these parts nine months ago, long enough for any policy or government program to be born. Social Credit promised to "move decisively to make more land and more housing available." B.C. and Quebec had no part in the silly decision taken by federal Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson and the other eight provinces to commission yet another study of the problem of high land costs.

We hope B.C. Housing and Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis and his staff spent the time putting the finishing touches on a high-gear provincial program to sell crown land for housing lots. Social Credit left a lot of British Columbians with high hopes on the basis of a strongly-worded promise, which did not mention that such a plan would take five or six years to implement. Its language was unequivocal.

"To meet the housing needs of British Columbians, this province must start providing new homes at the rate of 50,000 per year. As government, the B.C. Social Credit party would move decisively to make more land and more housing available . . . A key element in our housing policy would be the formation of the B.C. Housing Corp. This new crown corporation would set up the machinery for providing mortgage funds to home buyers at rates they can afford . . . The corporation would have the power to subsidize mortgage rates . . . with the aim of providing homes at rates people can afford."

So where is the corporation, its subsidized mortgages, the thousands of building lots promised a year ago? Get on with it.

CRTC Reversal

The Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission's decision to postpone further unplugging of United States FM radio stations from Canadian cable systems is a welcome reversal of a stupid ruling. Now the CRTC says all cable operators ordered to delete American FM signals can apply to start carrying the stations again.

The policy which was originally announced July 17 was thought to back another idiotic CRTC decree that Canadian FM stations should play more "foreground" programming. Translated, that means more talk and less music. When Canadian FM broadcasters complained that this policy would simply send listeners to more musical pastures, to wit U.S. stations, the CRTC decided to ban the competition rather than have a second look at an unpopular ruling.

Now that the commission seems to be once again employing common sense as opposed to bureaucratic nonsense, it is worth speculating on what brought about the change. Most of Ottawa's commissions are about as sensitive to public criticism as rock is to rain. Either word has come down that the government is in trouble so don't rock the boat with unnecessary stupidities or the commission can receive as well as broadcast to the grass roots. To be charitable we will assume it's the latter rather than the former reason. If so, it shows that letter writing, editorial criticism and general haranguing do stir up the bureaucrats and result in change. In this case there is a happy ending to a bad beginning. The CRTC deserves grudging praise — and we must say grudging because only a very naive commission would have instituted the ruling in the first place — for its willingness to act on a mistake.

RICHARD GWYN

And the Poor Get Poorer

OTTAWA — "The only comfort I can offer is that the incomes of your top one per cent do seem to have come down a little, relatively," commented Peter Wiles, a distinguished British economist who's just finished helping out on a study to figure out just how much Canada's rich really make, and just how little our poor really make.

"Mind you," Wiles added, "this may only mean they've become better at avoiding taxes."

Income redistribution — should a plumber make as much, less, or more, than a professor, and so on — is a topic whose time has come. On television the other day, New Democrat leader Ed Broadbent called "scandalous" the reported $100,000 that Lloyd Robertson will collect for reading the news on CTV rather than on CBC.

Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba has proposed that no one earn more than 2½ times the national average; if applied, the Schreyer formula would limit everyone from bank president to provincial premiers to about $30,000 a year.

Where's Money?

Whether income redistribution is also an idea whose political time has come is quite another question. The really rich don't really matter. If Ottawa wrenched away the entire after tax income of the 8,000 Canadians who earn more than $100,000 a year and then spread this $700 million windfall around, every Canadian would have just $35 more in play money.

Income redistribution instead means you. Suppose, as an example, that Ottawa wants to increase old age pensions. This is the kind of policy proposal that everyone normally supports. Would you, though, support it if to fund the program the government took $500, say, out of your salary? If "yes," then you're a saint. If "no," then where on earth is the money to come from?

The subject is so new, so prickly and so complicated that at this stage all that can be done usefully, is to sketch out some of the questions that are going to have to be answered.

Two factors have pushed income redistribution to the top of the political agenda. The first is that economic slow growth, a straitjacket from which many suspect we may never escape, means that from now on, if your neighbor makes more money, his or her gain will come out of your pocket. We've lost the safety valve which until now allowed people to be irritated by and envious of high salaries won by this or that group — MPs, doctors, civil servants, plumbers — but not consumed with anger because they were not themselves hurt by the good fortunes of others.

The other catalyst of change is the discovery that all those postwar social security schemes which we thought were so generous have in fact utterly failed to redistribute income. The rich today, proportionately, are as well off as they ever were. The poor have slipped back — in 1951 the poorest one-fifth of Canadians earned 4.4 per cent of the national income; today they earn just four per cent.

Those statistics are thoroughly depressing. Even more depressing is the discovery that by international standards we are misers. A just-published study of income inequalities by the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development puts Canada in eighth place among 10 countries. We are more equal only than France and the U.S. We are less equal, not only, as you'd expect, than Sweden and Norway and Holland but also less than Italy, Spain and Japan.

Wiles (who once embarrassed the Russians by showing that incomes were more equal in several western European countries than in the USSR) has been acting as a consultant to a joint study by the federal finance department and Statistics Canada that is trying to make some sense of the bare statistics on income.

So far, this study has mostly turned up more questions. Such as, should you mark down as poor university students who (while their parents are well off themselves) earn little money. Do you count unmarried couples who live together as a single household or as two individuals?

Difficult as they are to answer, these questions are only technical in character. Political sensitivities start to become aroused when you consider why it is during those years when we thought we were doing so much good that in fact we were doing so little. A study by Irwin Gillespie just published in the Canadian Tax Journal suggests some answers. The effect of the tax changes of the 1970s — incentives for saving, elimination of estate taxes, corporate tax cuts — has been that "the share of taxes of the poorest quintile (one-fifth) has increased relative to the share of the richest quintile," writes Gillespie.

Government spending, despite unemployment insurance and the rest, argues Gillespie, has benefitted the well-off as much as the poor.

Stop Pretending

From here on, the really hard questions begin. Who's going to decide, in place of the marketplace system on which we now rely, what incomes are "fair" or "unfair?" If individuals no longer are allowed to keep ahead of the Joneses, will they any longer bother to work harder than the Joneses? If we don't redistribute incomes, are we prepared to tell the poor that they always will be that way?

Out of this thicket it is possible, at this time, to draw out only two conclusions.

First, although the middle class tends to do most of the complaining it has in fact the least to complain about. That one-fifth of Canadians just below the top one-fifth (that is, those who in 1974 earned between $13,000 and $18,000) collected, in 1951, just 17.8 per cent of the total national income but today collect 18.3 per cent. No other group has increased its share.

Second, we can all stop pretending we've yet done anything to help the poor catch up with us.

W. A. WILSON

Bad Poll Doesn't Matter

OTTAWA — Next time the Canadian people go to the polls in a federal election, about two years from now, it is not likely that they will be comparing Pierre Trudeau and Joe Clark on personality or even intellect.

If the Conservatives have a reasonable chance of winning the election, that in itself will be a sign that for the time being at least Trudeau has satisfied the craving for striking personalities. The people are much more likely to be asking themselves then whether the Conservatives and their leader seem to be an acceptable alternative to the Liberals for a while.

If they decide that the answer is yes, it will not matter much that Trudeau is a more striking man than Clark. It did not matter back in 1963 either — Mike Pearson was never a match for John Diefenbaker in terms of flamboyant personality. The Conservative leader was always a country mile ahead on these terms. Nonetheless, Pearson took the prime minister's office away from him.

History never repeats itself precisely and it would be a mistake to push the analogy with the end of the Diefenbaker period too far. Yet it seems to me that it would be an equally bad mistake to conclude that we are in an unchanging era where the force of personality will be the dominant electoral fact. Except when they lose their momentum and stop at dead centre, pendulums always swing away from the extreme ends of the arc.

Easily Misread

If my basic view that force of personality will not be the decisive factor in the next election is correct, then the results of a recent opinion poll seem favorable to Clark and deceptively easy to misread by his opponents.

The poll showed that only 60 per cent of respondents could reply correctly when they were asked to identify the Conservative leader whereas 68 per cent could do so soon after the party's leadership convention last winter. This is the aspect of the poll that has been seized on by Clark's detractors but it does not seem very important to me. He has two years in which to do something about the recognition factor and, in the end, the election and the campaign preceding it will ensure that the party leaders are known to the public.

Equally, it does not seem very important that 40 per cent of the respondents in the poll have not yet formed an opinion whether Clark would be an acceptable prime minister or not. Many people, having a wide range of interests in other matters, do not pay close attention to politics during the periods between elections. They make up their minds about the acceptability of a new man as the election approaches.

Among those who have formed an opinion by now, however, the replies are striking. Only 12 per cent have come to an adverse conclusion, that Clark would not be up to the job. The other 48 per cent believe he would be anywhere from fairly good to very good as a prime minister.

These are very favorable results for the Conservative leader. Combine them with the other polls which so consistently have shown the Conservatives as a party far ahead of the Liberals for many months now and they strongly suggest an irreversible situation. But few political situations really are irreversible although there are many that are extremly hard to turn around. The Liberals clearly are in that last category at the moment.

The Conservatives, however, always operate without the disciplines imposed by possession of power or close proximity to it. They are not incapable of throwing away the great advantage they have at the present time, through some piece of improbable foolishness, and destroying their lead, or much of it.

PIERRE TRUDEAU
. . . enough of personalities?

Clark made a bad political mistake by getting into a public squabble with a fellow Tory over the choice of ridings and, if the matter were not so petty, it would have been more damaging than it probably has been. But that is the only clearly indentifiable mistake he has made since he became party leader, although he does not seem to have got much immediate gain out of his European tour. He has been doing better since he got back.

By the time the next election comes, the public will want to have formed a firm impression of what Clark stands for. To some extent, he will answer that through the campaign and the policies the party has adopted by then. But as he uses the intervening time to build up public recognition of himself, he will have to contribute to the people's impression that they know where he stands. That is not a question of offering detailed policies at this stage.

Stanfield's great mistake in 1973-74 was to begin his long, positive campaign for price and incomes controls. By the time the 1974 election campaign arrived, he was firmly locked into a position which the public clearly was not supporting and which many of his followers distrusted.

Clark's need will be to avoid this sort of error but to give occasional well-prepared speeches saying something of substance on major policy questions. There are not very many of them, only a handful that really touch the between-elections lives of the public. His speech in Montreal last weekend, raising pertinent questions about the basic approach of the Trudeau government to the controls policy falls into this category. He has virtually pre-empted John Turner's position that the controls should come off as soon as possible, that if they were going to work they have had a good deal of time by now. This is good political ground for the opposition leader because as time goes by the government will have an increasingly difficult job of defending its policies in this area without having much faith in their fairness or effectiveness, the public seems to have fallen into a sort of acquiesence with the controls policy, which is not a very solid basis for any major government position.

Insensitive Handling

Clark has also shown that he is not afraid to defend the concept of profits, without which our economic system simply will not work. After David Lewis' successful — but I believe ill-advised — attack on corporate profits, Liberals have been afraid to come to the defence of this vital aspect of the system we have adopted. Except, once again, for Turner's position, Clark is treading almost virgin political ground on this subject.

A day earlier, his support for the concept of language equality in Canada and his willingness to look at the trouble spots made good sense. A few years ago, C. M. Drury cooled off the language issue by looking at earlier trouble spots, discussing them coolly with the people involved and then publicly making sensible adjustments. No one has tried that commonsense approach since he did. Since then, any critic of the policy has risked denunciation as a bigot. People complain that "French is being shoved down my throat" not because that statement is really true but because critics of government language policies have been so often insulted and non-critics have been regularly thumped on the backside and told to move faster and faster, with little government willingness to admit that any movement at all has occurred.

Few policies affecting so many people, their biases and their moods, have been handled so insensitively and so apolitically.

Good Care

Having read numerous complaints regarding the new administration at the Memorial Pavilion, that is, since Royal Jubilee Hospital and what was veterans' hospital have amalgamated, I would like to say how much I appreciate the good care that my husband apparently continues to receive there. He has been a patient for over three years consecutively and I can see very little, if any, falling off in the attention given him. The whole staff from the dedicated nurses to the capable maintenance personnel and kitchen help seem to keep the hospital running smoothly and efficiently.

My husband has been a patient in three nursing homes, prior to being admitted permanently to the pavilion, and in two of those institutions, while the cost of his stay was much, much higher, there was in evidence an appalling lack of care. Others I have spoken to tell a similar story of these very high-prices "homes."

There have been letters to your paper, criticizing the Canadian Legion, too. I am not fully aware of how far their obligation goes where the veteran is concerned, but certainly the Langford and Esquimalt branches have gone to a lot of trouble and expenses to entertain the "boys" on numerous occasions for luncheon over the years. The woman's auxiliary and the Legion visits the veterans, passing out "goodies" to them frequently. I understand the Legion has recently purchased an additional Easter Seal bus for the convenience of the veterans. What more are they expected to do? — Mrs. Gladys Coulthard, 1170 Craigflower Road.

Cheap Skates?

I have no doubt that Mayor Jean Butler was neither surprised, nor disappointed that the swimming pool referendum went down to defeat. The date was well chosen — two weeks after the vote in North Saanich and Sidney. I believe one of the main reasons cited for dropping from the committee was that it was "taking too much time" and Central Saanich wanted to "get on with it."

Due to Mayor Butler's efforts part of the recreation complex proposed by the tri-municipal (now bi-municipal) recreation committee will not be built. Residents of Central Saanich, however, will not have to pay one cent in taxes to get a swimming pool and rink.

When the centre opens perhaps we can also supply them with skates — cheap.

The citizens of North Saanich and Sidney also are interested in sewage disposal and water supply. We shall be especially interested in any efforts on the part of Central Saanich to push the whole costs for these on to us as they have in the case of the recreation centre. — R. Douglas McLean, Sidney.

Freedom of Choice

The evangelist minister who attempted to have the play Equus closed down is to be commended for his zeal and dedication as expressed in his letter to the Times of Sept. 27. I noted though that for all his avowed distaste and horror, he apparently sat through the entire production of, in his words: "Filth more damaging and long-lasting than the sewage we dump so carelessly into our lakes and seas."

The reverend feels that we "need to be protected" from such spectacles. I am an adult and my exercise of free choice needs no guidance from people who deem their judgment to be superior to my own. If the reverend or his flock object to such exhibitions, perhaps they should do themselves a favor and not attend, and while they're not attending do me the kindness of leaving my choice of entertainment up to me. — David Danylyshyn, 41 Obed Avenue.

India Intellectuals Blame Themselves for Autocracy

By HENRY KAMN
New York Times

CALCUTTA — After 14 months of emergency rule and the suspension of most civil liberties, India's intellectual community appears demoralized and in disarray. Its mood ranges from acceptance of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's exercise of authoritarian power to total rejection, albeit in most cases whispered.

Between those extremes, neither of which appears to be a majority attitude consistently held — often both raise their heads in the course of a single conversation — another point of view is frequently heard. That sentiment appears to be on the increase, and political observers, Indian and foreign, believe it to be a potential impediment to return to democratic norms.

Enjoyed By Few

The sentiment is bitter self-accusation for the failings of democracy in India in the nearly three decades since independence, and a justification of its demise — temporary or not. It was this rejection of the applicability of democracy to India that was encountered more than any other attitude in the course of a four-week stay that included visits to the intellectual centres of several regions.

In many conversations with writers, educators, officials, journalists, technicians, lawyers and others in the liberal professions, a note of self-accusation for having enjoyed democracy and benefitted from it was dominant. The rights of freedom of expression, association and foreign travel were depicted in these anguished self-criticisms as privileges enjoyed by a minute number and therefore, by implication, unjust.

"After all, the majority is not unhappy," an intellectual in Trivandrum, the capital of the southermost state of Kerala, said in a typical outburst. It followed a detailed account of suppression of intellectual and political dissent.

"There's peace and discipline. They all seem to think that this kind of life is better than freedom. When you are free from freedom you have no responsibility. It is a very moot point whether India enjoyed democracy.

"What stake have most of them in democracy? Nothing except poverty while the politicians become very rich. Of course, Congress politicians (Members of Mrs. Gandhi's party) are much better off than the others. But the ordinary man lacks economic security, and where there is no security you can convert masses into sheep."

"I don't think that more than 10 per cent have any stake in this country."

A reflective man in Madras pursued the point more fully.

"The people at large haven't begun to feel the political losses. What fundamental rights have they ever had? Seventy per cent are illiterate. Freedom of speech? If he talks back to his employer he is sacked. Property rights? He doesn't have a pot. This is a grossly unequal society."

Intellectuals appeared to vie with each other in denouncing the conduct of politics before it was slowed to its present marking of time. Political, labor and student agitation were branded as almost always mere exercises in vying for power between party and union elites with little concern for advancing the status of the people that they professed to represent.

Only rarely did persons questioned offer without being asked the thought that the party that has now put a stop to most of this has led India since independence and has had an active share in agitation itself.

Just as many democrats were ready to turn against democracy after it had been suspended, some newspaper editors condemned freedom of the press after its disappearance. A Madras editor said he was delighted at the government's press guidelines because they had removed the long reports of political meetings.

'Hardly Notice'

"I hardly notice censorship," he continued. "This morning I received no instructions from the government at all. The paper is better now. There are no public outpourings, no speeches of politicians. I devote the space saved to human interest stories and more development news."

"Newspapers — the rubbish they were writing!" said the editor of a weekly in a smaller southern city with contempt.

A senior official, after a long, dutiful and convincing recital of the economic and social benefits conferred by the government on the disadvantaged masses since the declaration of emergency, agreed readily that the benefits had been achieved at the cost of civil liberties. "But only a small group care," he said; "99.9 per cent are preoccupied with their daily living."

Then, surprisingly stepping out of his official role, he added: "But without that small group, where would the world be?"

Total government control is cited by many intellectuals as a factor in their growing despair and general disarray.

"Without information you become a political vegetable," a publisher who is no longer publishing said.

A leading editor said that the constant published barrage against the Western press in general, not only for its reporting on India, was more intended for the Indian press than for its ostensible target. He said the objective of the campaign was to discredit in the eyes of Indians not so much Western journalism as traditional Indian journalism, which carried on until the emergency the spirit of free inquiry of its British antecedents.

Demoralization among intellectuals also appears due in part to the rise of political opportunism among intellectuals that usually accompanies the installation of a regime putting a premium on affirmations of loyalty to a new doctrine.

A respected university figure of no political affiliation but traditionally liberal stance said he was seriously worried about his position because those under him with more political zeal than professional competence could unseat him through denunciation of his lack of enthusiasm for the new regime.

Few intellectuals were ready to condemn the rejection of democracy and self-castigation of their peers. One who did was Rajmohan Gandhi, editor of a Bombay magazine that is under government pressure for its critical comments. He is a grandson of Mohandas K. Gandhi, leader of the Indian independence movement.

"They are entirely wrong," Gandhi said. "They are saying this partly because they are frustrated and helpless. They have to find some reason for their inaction.

"There is some truth in that the potential of democracy was not at all realized. Its practice was inefficient and corrupt.

"But there is a distinction between firmness and totalitarianism. Given the right leadership, it is possible to have participatory democracy with firm, determined leadership. To say that democracy has to be given up is, I think, wrong."

INDIRA GANDHI . . . does anyone care?

The Demise Of Capitalism?

By MICHAEL HARRINGTON

(Harrington is national chairman of the Democratic Socialist Organizing Committee in the U.S. He wrote this for the New York Times.)

Capitalism is stumbling toward its end, which will come, not with a bang but with a whimper.

At first glance, this is a particularly preposerous statement to make at this point in American history. Even though the nation is just recovering from the deepest economic downturn since the 1930s, and the revival is accompanied by intolerably high levels of unemployment, all the economic indicators are pointing upward.

Under such circumstances, when capitalism in the U.S. is providing its resiliency, how can one talk of an impending doom?

One reason is that the capitalists who preside over this incipient prosperity are members of a kept class. This is illustrated in their drive to get the federal government to put up the "risk" capital for American industry while the profits remain private.

This is the program of the New York Stock Exchange, the Chase Manhattan Bank and other pillars of the system. There is, they say, a capital shortage. As a result, the corporations do not have enough money to invest in the nation's future (why they should determine that future is another issue).

Therefore, Washington should cut back on social spending, hold the line on wages and legislate a higher rate of profit by means of new tax privileges for capital gains, dividend income and the like. The average taxpayer's burden would be increased as that of the wealthy, who own most of the stock in America, is lightened.

When, for instance, the corporate campaigners call for "more realistic" depreciation allowances, the innocent might think that they actually want to more closely link those allowances with the actual life of the machines they theoretically value. The sophisticated know that they simply want bigger, faster — more unrealistic—deductions.

It was not always this way. Once upon a time, capitalists were brutal innovators and competitors—robber barons, to be sure, but barons.

Ironically, when Marx paid his respects to this capitalist accomplishment in the Communist Manifesto, he got so carried away with this praise that he exaggerated the success of his own mortal foes.

But then capitalism was forced to reform itself as workers educated the monied elite in some of the ABCs of social decency. At first, the corporate class dogmatically fought aginst its own salvation and excoriated its savior, Franklin D. Rossevelt. But then it learned that a federal agency following corporate priorities can be much gentler to businessmen than the invisible hand of Adam Smith's market.

Moreover, since executives were indeed in control of the investment — which is to say the job-generating — process, they were able to persuade the society that it was in the interests of the common good to pamper the rich with privileges whose bounty would then trickle down to the rest of us.

So there were billions in subsidies to stock speculators in the form of special treatment for capital gains; enormous handouts for the housing of the rich; massive give-aways to truckers through the interstate highway system; and above all, hundreds of billions of dollars in direct and indirect outlays for multinational energy companies, which respond to this largesse by making the nation unnecessarily vulnerable to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries cartel.

These measures are objectionable in and of themselves. They also explain how American capitalists became a parasitic and decadent class. That class will die in one of two ways (or, given the sloppiness of history, through a combination of both).

The corporation will become so completely integrated with the state that the executive will turn into a commissar — an American commissar, to be sure, much more liberal and polite than the Soviet, but a commissar nevertheless.

Or else, the people might realize that the government mechanism that now allocates resources to maximize corporate profit could, if it is thoroughly democratized, be used to maximize social needs.

Just Keep Cool, Joe, and Buttoned Up

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — Joe Clark should ignore the rising chorus of demands that he say things, that he spell out his position and his party's position on this, that, and another of national issues.

It's simple-minded. Gobs of people who should know better are turning from a most unsatisfactory prime minister and demanding that Clark behave and enunciate as though he is prime minister.

Good Lord help Clark. There's no way he can get an election before June, 1978. There's no guarantee Trudeau or a Liberal replacement will call an election then, although it is likely.

There's at least one-and-a-half sessions of Parliament before that election. This means two speeches from the throne and the chances these give the current government for new initiatives. There are at least two, perhaps three budgets, before the next election. Further, a whole web of federal-provincial matters of much substance must be dealt with, and some of the most controversial disposed of, before June 1978. Clark won't be at that table.

It's too obvious but let's lay it out there again. In none of the above has Joe Clark the initiative. All he has is the duty through his post to respond critically to the acts of Trudeau and his government, particularly in the House of Commons. The Gallup poll could tack on another 10 points to Clark's bag and take them away from Trudeau's and Clark still doesn't get to govern until he goes through an official campaign of some seven weeks some 20 months or so ahead. And then he must realize a victory total on election night of some 135 odd seats . . . which is some 40 more than he's got now.

If I were advising Joe Clark, I'd say this: Continue to play it carefully as though he does not have the responsibility of governing. He and his caucus are both working up towards an election campaign and through a learning experience. Remember that the initiative for setting the content and the dates of the political agenda continue to be where the electorate left it in July, 1974.

Of course when we look ahead to if or when Joe Clark gets a call to visit the Governor-General, it strikes me that three matters should be clear and resolved as Clark announces that government:

(a) That the individual merits of a dozen or more of his team have been proven either in parliament, in the campaign or in endeavors elsewhere.

(b) That he reveal there and then his plans for shifting and replacing the key advisers in the all-important posts of deputy-ministers.

(c) That he have a couple of major legislative items to enact which have been displayed and argued about during the election campaign.

Surely after 10 years (by 1978) or an alleged intellectual genius as prime minister we are not really demanding that Joe Clark behave and talk like another P. E. Trudeau or else we won't elect him.

Surely after nine years of Bob Stanfield as the leader of the Opposition, we can appreciate why it makes simple horse sense for Joe Clark not to move back and forth, in the country or in Parliament, staking down repeated policy positions opposite to each one implicit in the legislative programs, budgets, interprovincial relations and foreign diplomacy of the Trudeau government.

We should expect — once we grant that Clark has a modicum of common sense and a proven pinch of political shrewdness — that he needs to demonstrate by both candidates and House performance that he's got a good crew along. Then he needs to detail succinctly how he will deal with the major dilemma Trudeau will leave him (St. Laurent left it for Dief and he flubbed it): i.e. what are his plans for the outgoing government of mandarins he will inherit?

Only then should any of us worry about what Clark is going to do in deeds with the power he seems likely to win. Of course, what he'll at first do will be indicated by what's possible and demanded by the economy two years hence and by what firms up in the meantime as Tory intentions vis-a-vis the current government's actions.

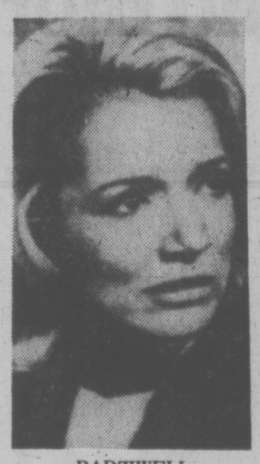
In sum, to Joe Clark and his rash of recent advisers: Trudeau has the problem of governing; leave it with him. Just recently he demonstrated that he couldn't even shuffle the cards of his cabinet without losing one card under the table.

Chosun People Know a Thing or Two

By ROGER ROSENBLATT
New Republic

None of us had planned to go to Seoul for March, I can tell you that; but one morning out of the blue, as I was plugging in Mr. Coffee, which had been recommended to us by Joe DiMaggio, my wife said: dear — I remember she smelled of Chanel cologne, which had been recommended to her by Catherine Deneuve — she said, dear, it says here (in an ad for Americana Hotels) that Lee Radziwill recommends the Chosun in Seoul as a place to "dine and unwind." Does it have "top talent from a dozen lands" and "dishes from three continents" I asked? It certainly does, answered my wife, dumping our laundry into the Speed Queen washer Chuck Connors had recommended. That's good enough for me, said I, and we were on our way.

We chose Air France for our flight because it had been recommended by Peter Duchin, Margaux Hemingway, Miles Davis' the Duke and Duchess of Bedford, Andy Warhol, Carol Channing, S. J. Perelman and John Lindsay. Ordinarily we wouldn't pay much attention to what the Bedfords recommend because they've proved unreliable before. But the ad we saw quoted Margaux Hemingway as saying that she loves to shop in Paris "for hats with feathers, ribbons, and flowers," and in the same ad Andy Warhol recommended Aux Etats-Unis on the Rue Saint Honore for candy for his dog. John Lindsay said: "East time my wife Mary, and our son Johnny and I were in Paris — Johnny and I climbed to the top of Notre Dame. What a climb. But the view was always worth it. That evening, we all had dinner at a favorite spot — Quasimodo. We had snails. As usual, superb." Peter Duchin said: "When in the wine country of St. Emilion — have dinner at the Hostellerie de Plaisance. Order steak broiled over grape roots. Fabulous." We took his word for it, as we took Margaux's because we had admired both their fathers. Not having time to stop in Paris, however, we contented ourselves with the "truffled pate and Brut champagne" served on board.



RADZIWELL
. . . Lee Hoo?

HEMINGWAY
. . . Paris booster

Thanks to the advice of Karl Malden, Mel Blanc and William E. Miller we brought plenty of travellers cheques which we obtained at the National City Bank recommended by Paul Lynde and Rod Serling years ago. I remember wanting to open an account with the Bowery Savings Bank back then because Joe DiMaggio had recommended it; but my wife said, What does he know about banks? Coffee, sure, but banks? That very morning our children asked us why we always buy things recommended by celebrities? (These are the same bright children, by the way, who always forget to feed the dog Alpo, despite the fact that Lorne Greene recommends it.) We explained that celebrities are famous, that's why. I was annoyed by their question, and cut myself shaving with the Schick razor Mark Spitz had recommended.

It was hard leaving home this year because we just bought three new cars, plus a Ford pick-up recommended by Catfish Hunter. Not that we needed the cars. But a couple of Saturdays ago we were watching the tube and on the same afternoon Ricardo Montalban, Domenico Madugno and Rex Harrison all came on recommending (respectively) the Cordoba, Volare (natch) and the Aspen. Well, how can you resist such people — especially Montalban, with those little flamenco notes in the background of the ad? When Rex Harrison says "unbelievable" about the Aspen you know he means it, because that is the very word — "unbelievable" — he uttered in My Fair Lady. Our children asked us what Professor Higgins and a bunch of actors dressed up like 19th-century British Ascot aristocracy had to do with buying a Dodge. We told them to mind their business. They're getting to be difficult, our children. We remind them to brush with Pepsodent, as Shirley Jones tells them to, and they giggle at us.

Were we excited at the prospect of landing in Seoul? Does Dinah Shore drive Chevys? I can't wait to try the Seoul food, said my wife (a great kidder), and we toasted each other with Lauder's Scotch, recommended by Yul Brynner. We looked fine, I must say; me in my Kings Road Coordinates from Sears (recommended by Tom Seaver); she in her Hanes Support pantyhose (recommended by Joe Namath). The children gave us the once-over, and cracked some more cracks, of course. Where did we get these children anyway, I asked my wife. You know perfectly well, she said with a twinkle. But who recommended them, I said. Thank goodness they're nearing college age. We can send them to some school recommended by Allen Ludden.

Well, said my wife as we parked our Hertz rent-a-car recommended by O. J. Simpson, and entered the hotel lobby, we must be the Chosun people (what a gal). I went to check in and asked, is Lee Radziwill staying here this week? Lee Hoo? asked the clerk, confusing the princess with a local chanteuse. Lee Radziwill, I repeated. Oh, he laughed, yes; would you believe that some people actually take that ad seriously? Yeah, I chuckled, and hid my disappointment in anticipation of the "dozens of sights and shrines lit by the warm oriental sun." But why would she recommend a hotel if she doesn't stay here, I asked my wife when we were alone. There, there dear, she said, the clerk is probably in error.

Sure enough, he was. For that very evening we received an invitation to cocktails in the Radziwill suite. When we arrived Dick Butkus, Rosey Grier, Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford were serving Lite Beer, and Andy Griffith was passing around hors d'oeuvres on Ritz crackers. Bill Cosby was dishing out Jello and Bing Crosby was pouring orange juice. I only wanted coffee, so Danny Thomas made me a cup of Maxwell House. It was a swell party. I wished that our friends back home could see it — Bill Russell suggested that we call long distance. Julie Eisenhower suggested that we bring them a "Bless This House" embroidery kit. Everyone was very nice with us, no one nicer than Lee herself. "If you're doing business in Korea," she said, "the Americana name tells you the Chosun is the place to stay." We had the time of our lives.

UIC Confirms More Being Cut from Jobless Benefit

OTTAWA (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission released statistics Wednesday confirming that fewer Canadians this year are receiving benefits and more are being cut off once they start getting cheques.

Larry St. Laurent, director of the UIC's insurance program, said in an interview the statistics reflect a conscious effort by UIC officers to increase their "benefit control activities."

Charges that the UIC is dropping eligible people from UIC benefits came from five employees — who refused to be identified — of the UIC and manpower departments in Quebec, from a legal aid spokesman in Toronto and from representatives of Quebec's three largest labor organizations in Montreal.

St. Laurent's statistics compared the average number of people receiving UIC cheques and the average number cut off monthly during the April-to-June periods of 1975 and 1976.

This base period was chosen because it was in April that an intensive interview program was started across the country by both UIC and manpower officers, intended to reduce the number of people not entitled to benefits from receiving them.

The natinal average number of people receiving UIC benefits in the period in 1975 was 1,099,000. In the same period this year, 1,008,000 were receiving benefits.

In 1975, the commission cut a monthly average of 106,000 of those UIC claimants from UIC rolls — 9.6 per cent of the toal number of people receiving cheques. In 1976, the commission cut 132,000 claimants — 13.1 per cent of all recipients.

Of those cut from the rolls in 1975, nearly half were the result of the benefit controls program.

In 1976, about 66 per cent were denied benefits because of the program, St. Laurent said.

Exemptions for Veterans Boosted by 50 Per Cent

OTTAWA (Special) — Casual earnings exemptions for more than 90,000 war veterans allowance and civilian war allowance recipients have been increased by 50 per cent.

Veterans Affairs Minister Daniel Macdonald, said today the previous exemption level had been established in 1972. It was then set at $1,000 annually for a single recipient and $1,500 annually for the married recipient.

New Casual earnings exemptions will be $1,500 for a single recipient and $2,250 for a married recipient.

Since the previous "casual ceiling" exemptions were established the Consumer Price Index has increased by 38.1 per cent and the federal minimum wage by 66 per cent, Macdonald said.

The change in regulations will also benefit widows and veterans whose income from casual employment was slightly in excess of former levels.

They may now be eligible for benefits and should tpply to their district DVA offices for complete information.

This increase will place the WCA and CWA recipients dollar benefit from earnings in the same relative position as it was in 1972.

MILD REBUKE FOR HURTIG

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States embassy Wednesday issued a mildly-worded statement designed to refute remarks by Mel Hurtig, Canadian economic nationalist who accused the American ambassador of lying about U.S. investment in Canada.

"Mr. Hurtig's charges are in error," said the three-page statement answering charges made by the Edmonton publisher and former chairman for the Committee for an Independent Canada.

A spokesman for the external affairs department gave some support to the U.S. statement today, saying that "we don't believe that the ambassador is a liar."

Hurtig said in a Tuesday speech that Ambassador Thomas Enders is guilty of lying, distortion, deception and mirepresentation in speeches he has been giving across the country.

The embassy response was the third in less than a day.

A spokesman started by saying Tuesday that it would not dignify Hurtig's statements with a response. Later he said if the remakrs were as intemperate and abusive as reported in the press no useful purpose could be served by commenting on them.

And then came the response.

Both the U.S. statement and the external affairs spokesman made the same point: Enders was referring to "direct" investment drying up in Canada.

Woman Quits Socred Race

OTTAWA (CP) — The only woman contender for the leadership of the Social Credit party has been struck from the list of official candidates, the party announced Wednesday.

It said that Patricia Metivier of Montreal filed nomination papers but only seven of the 100 persons who signed them were party members.

Mrs. Metivier was an unsuccessful candidate for Social Credit in a Montreal riding during the 1974 general elections. She also unsuccessfully opposed Mayor Jean Drapeau in a Montreal mayoralty election. Seven Candidates, including Social Credit MPs Rene Matte and Andre Fortin remain in the running for the right to succeed Real Caouette at the leadership convention here Nov. 6-7.

Mercury Charge Laid

TORONTO (CP) — American Can of Canada Ltd. has been charged under the federal Fisheries Act with emitting up to 28 times more than the allowable amount of mercury from its Chlor-Alkali plant at Marathon, Ont., a spokesman for the Ontario Environment Ministry says.

The charges will be heard Oct. 28 in Marathon, about 130 miles east of Thunder Bay.

The spokesman said it was the first time charges of mercury pollution have been laid in Ontario.

The charges were laid at the request of Environment Canada in the first use of a federal-provincial accord to enforce regulations, he said.

The 16 counts of discharging too much mercury each involve one day between August, 1975, and July, 1976.

Peninsula Harbor, on which Marathon is situated, was one of 63 areas in the Great Lakes recently identified as pollution problems by the United States-Canadian Great Lakes Water Quality Board.

The Ontario health ministry has warned area residents not to eat much fish from the bay because of the high mercury levels.

Under an Ontario environment control order issued in May, the company must stop using mercury either by closing the Chlor-Alkali plant by next July 31 or switching to a process that does not use mercury.

Inuit Seek Aid from Ottawa In Fight Over Quebec Lands

By PETER THOMSON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Quebec government is hedging on its side of the James' Bay agreement, according to the Northern Quebec Fruit Association.

At a press conference Wednesday the land-negotiating team for the group said it will meet Northern Affairs Minister Warren Allmand Monday with a formal request for federal assistance.

Sandy Grodon and Eli Weetaluktuk, aided by the association's lawyers, said the federal government has a responsibility under the British North America Act for native peoples, and is a party to the agreement.

The spokesmen claimed that remaining land negotiations involving selection of Catagory 1 (land owned by the Inuit), and Catagory 11 (lands in which the Inuit have exclusive hunting, fishing and trapping rights) is not being carried out by Quebec in accord with the agreement.

"Time is running out without satisfactory progress," the two stated.

Under terms of the agreement if agreement on new lands has not been reached within two years of signing, Quebec has the power to unilaterally impose a choice of Catagory 1 and 11 lands upon the Inuit.

The Inuit claim Quebec is misinterpreting provisions of the agreement which establish specific criteria to be followed by both parties in the selection of land.

They also charged that Quebec is ignoring the spirit and letter of provisions of the agreement for the taking and replacement of lands needed by the province for development, and is also adding new criteria to the land selection process.

Association spokesmen said land negotiations broke down in August because Quebec wants to involve Quebec Hydro, and because the province has introduced new criteria in land selection.

Gordon said there were no grounds for Quebec concern that land selections will interfere with future mineral or hydro-electric developments.

"The James Bay agreement provides for and allows for such future developments to proceed despite Inuit land selection," he said.

Gordon added that Hydro Quebec has decreed that the package deal would include a provision that "the Inuit will never invoke social impact factors or effects of proposed future hydro electric projects on the Coast, Nastapoka, Payne, Leaf, Caniapiscau, Larch, Whale and George Rivers for the purpose of opposing these projects."

The James Bay agreement, however, specifically calls for such assessments, Gordon said.

"Men's hearts (are) failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth."

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Calvin Henry Smoker, 29, will face a preliminary hearing Jan. 27 in Victoria provincial court on a two-count Colwood charge of escaping between Sept. 21 and last Monday from William Head and being unlawfully at large Monday from the Metchosin institution.

The hearing date was set Wednesday by Judge Harold Alder after defence lawyer Ted Hanman entered a trial choice of county court judge. Persons in custody while awaiting trial or hearing can be remanded straight through or appear weekly and Hanman said Smoker wished to appear each week.

Smoker was arrested early Monday on Metchosin Road near Terrahue by an RCMP constable taking part in a search after the William Head fire truck was driven through the main gates Sunday morning.

He was one of two inmates reported missing last week. The other remained at large Wednesday as searching of the Metchosin-Happy Valley area was called off, other than routine road patrols.

In traffic court, Judge Blake Allan sentenced three persons to jail after hearing pleas of guilty in separate drink-drive cases.

William George Laing, 62, of 930 Russell, was jailed 30 days for driving Tuesday in Saanich with a blood-alcohol reading above .08 per cent.

Derek Flitton Carter, 19, of 2166 Ferndale, pleaded guilty to a Saanich charge of impaired driving and refusing to take a breath-analysis test Sept. 23 and was jailed for 21 days on the first count and fined $250 on the second.

John Norman Fisher, 39, of 823 Ellery, was jailed for 14 days for driving "over .08" Sept. 9 in Colwood.

Surety bail of $1,000 was set by Alder for Sewa Singh Guray, 44, of 1292 Denman, who was charged with threatening a Saanich family by telephone Sunday.

Defence lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood entered a trial choice of judge and jury and Alder set the preliminary hearing for Jan. 31.

There was no request during the bail hearing for the normal order prohibiting publication or broadcast of the details but Owen-Flood made one later to the press on grounds of possible prejudicial material.

"I realize I have a bad temper and have to control it," Alder was told by David Bruce Munn, 25, of 1900 Mayfair, who added, "I don't want to go to jail."

Replied Alder: "Many people don't want to go to jail but they should think of that before they act."

Alder fined Munn $250 on each count.

The penalty imposed by Alder for Murray Frederick Hildebrandt, 22, of 319 St. Lawrence, totalled 18 months in jail followed by one year of probation during which he may not enter any place serving or selling alcoholic beverages.

Hildebrandt pleaded guilty Sept. 22 to six Victoria charges in two sets. The first, from July of 1974, included impaired driving, posssession of a known stolen car and failure to attend court. The third, early this month, included impaired driving and possession of a known stolen car and stereo set.

Alder sentenced Robert Walter James, 20, of 1687 Donnelly, to a total jail term of 30 days followed by one year of probation in which James must abstain from use of alcoholic beverages.

James pleaded guilty to three charges — possession May 12 of a known stolen coat, possession of a small amount of marijuana at the same time and mischief Sept. 5 in causing a total of $147 damage to a car and the residence of an acquaintance.

A 12-month term of probation was Alder's sentence for Manuel Braga, 36, of 1328 Vining, who pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of causing bodily harm July 23 in a domestic dispute. A ban on use of alcohol and weapons was part of the probation and Mulligan entered stays of earlier charges against Braga of causing bodily harm with intent to wound and setting fire to a chesterfield.

Thomas Engman Iverson, 28, of 653 Admirals, waived a preliminary hearing of a Saanich charge of armed robbery and was ordered by Alder to a higher court for trial. The charge resulted from an incident May 14 in a home at 4423 Tyndall where a shotgun was fired once to back up a demand for money and drugs.

Christine Anne Leonard, 22, of 2512 Douglas, was sentenced by Allan to six months in jail following a plea of guilty Sept. 1 to a Victoria charge of theft Aug. 19 of two pairs of jeans from the T. Eaton Co. At the time of the offence, she was on probation for an escape.

Randall Lee Vowles, 20, a resident of the Sooke area, was fined a total of $500 by Allan. Vowles pleaded guilty Sept. 2 to a two-count Sooke charge of assaulting an RCMP constable and damaging a police car Aug. 14 during a disturbance on Kaltasin in which 22 policemen from Sooke and Colwood stood off 150 rowdy youths.

Four persons who pleaded guilty to separate "over .08" charges were fined $450 each in traffic court.

They were Arthur Wallace Duncan, 53, of 830 Cowichan, stopped Sept. 11 in Sooke; Elmer Joseph George, 41, of 1441 Craigflower, Sept. 17 in Colwood; Donald Stanley Pimlott, 20, of Duncan, Sept. 19 in Colwood, and Frederick William Robertson, 20, of 723 Field, Tuesday in Saanich.

Other fines after guilty pleas were $400 for Walter Herb Magee, 35, of 1803 Quadra, stopped Sept. 5 in Oak Bay for "over .08" and $100 for driving while disqualified at the same time, and $400 for Roger Paul Schiller, 17, of 1570 McTavish, stopped Aug. 7 in Sidney for being "over .08" while in care or control of a vehicle.

THE WOLF who finally made it with the maiden is Ian McIntyre, prominent Victoria actor-comedian who in this scene from Something Special appears to be stepping out in a tango with seductive Ann Britton.

SCOTS SINGER APPEARS FRIDAY

Singer Bill Hosie, just returned from performing in his native Scotland with the Andy Stewart Show, will make a guest appearance Friday as a highlight of "Something Special," at Esquimalt Legion Hall, 622 Admirals.

Dancing will take place to the music of a top city group, the Grand Slam, but what makes the difference is presentation of a one-hour variety show which will feature Ian McIntyre, Steve Ivings, James Macfarlane, Thea McAdam and girls. It will include among other things, a zany take-off of Marx Brothers' antics.

Choreographer for this pocket revue is Sylvia Hosie.

Tickets for the event which is timed from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. are on sale only at Eaton's box office at $10 a couple.

Simulated TV Picture on Screen.
6ft. color TV...

This Fall, Electrohome will introduce a totally new concept...home television with a giant 6 ft. (diagonal) screen. A remarkable, large-as-life picture powered by the new ElectroBeam chassis. Believe it or not, the picture is more than 8 times the size of a conventional 26" color TV. It is truly astonishing both in size and in brilliance.

No matter what kind of TV set you select, it consists of a cabinet, a picture tube and a chassis. The picture is only as good as the chassis. After all, the chassis is the single source of picture power. It's that simple.

Let's face it, when you project a TV picture on a giant 6 ft. screen, the image has to be as close to perfect as possible. And that's what you get with the new ElectroBeam chassis.

You get superb picture quality right now, today, with any of Electrohome's new 25" color consoles or top-of-the-line 20" color portables. Startling clarity, outstanding definition, extraordinary color fidelity and bold brightness.

The reason? They too are powered by the same basic high-power ElectroBeam chassis—designed and built right here in Canada by Electrohome. So for $3495.00, or less, you can have the ElectroBeam chassis in the 6 foot version. Or, for much less, you can take it home in one of Electrohome's top-of-the-line 20" color portables or 25" color consoles.

Put the incredible new ElectroBeam chassis to the screen test at your Electrohome dealer's today. And prove to yourself that beyond a doubt, it passes every comparison with flying colors.

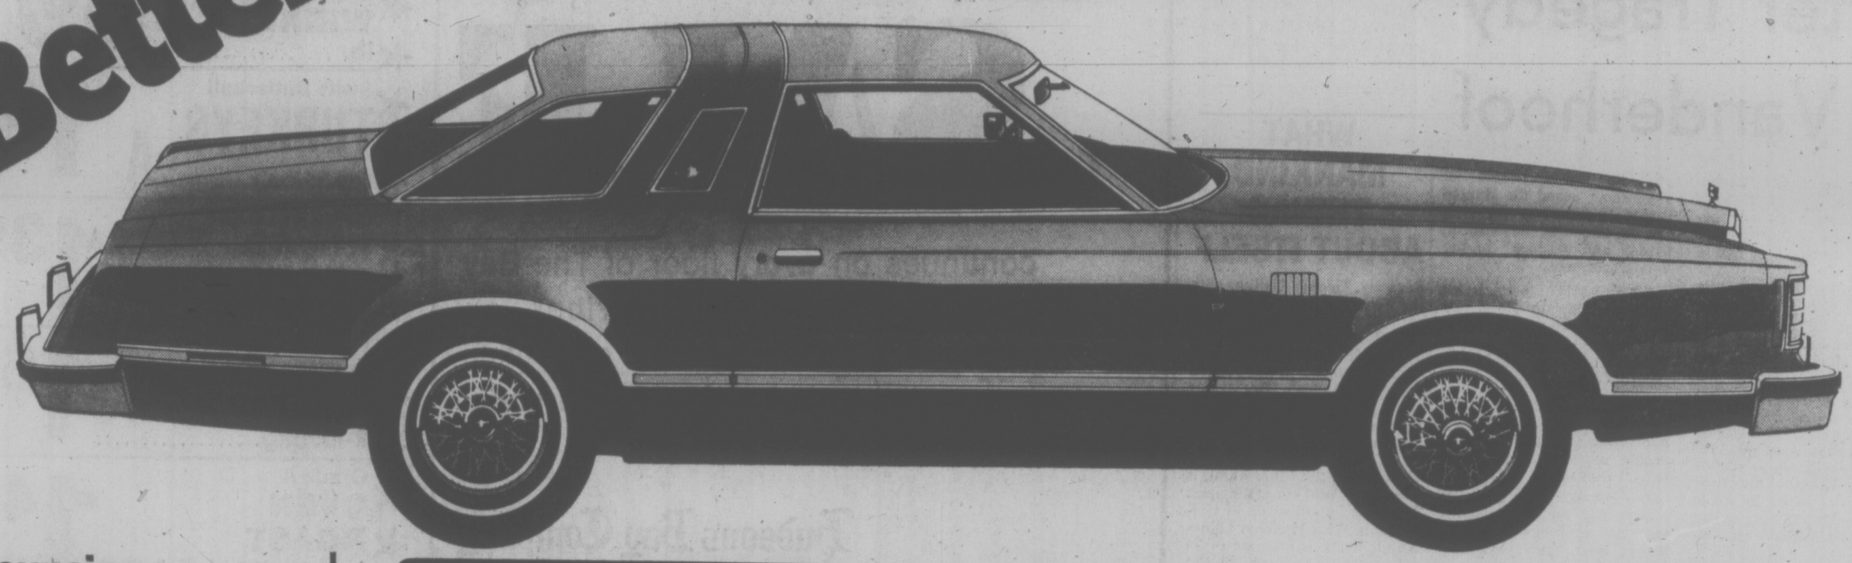
THEY'RE HERE! Ford's Better Ideas for '77...

A new kind of thunder... at a new lower price. Ford Thunderbird



The 1977 Thunderbird has a new look, a new size and a new lower price—but it's still unmistakably Thunderbird.

Leaner, cleaner, trimmer in size, Thunderbird has been strikingly re-designed with elegant styling both inside and out.

It's a car equipped to make driving a pleasure. Power steering, power front disc brakes, V-8 engine, automatic transmission, AM radio and steel-belted radials—are all standard.

Thunderbird's new suspension system and wide stance provide both nimble handling and a comfortable ride.

Perhaps the most unexpected thing about today's new Thunderbird is the lower manufacturer's suggested retail price. You'll find it almost unbelievable that a Thunderbird can be so easy to own.

Announcing THE FORD DURAGUARD SYSTEM

It's Quality, Reliability and Durability, and more.

WARRANTY:

36-month unlimited mileage warranty against rust perforation on 1977 cars including taxis and police cars. This warranty reflects our confidence in the quality, durability and anti-corrosion measures built into every 1977 Ford of Canada car.

Ask your Ford dealer for details of the 36-month unlimited mileage corrosion perforation warranty on the cars with the quality, durability and reliability of the 'system'.

Other Better Ideas for '77.

This year Ford's added a new low-priced Granada Special Edition. So you get a new choice in models...in the car that started a whole new driving trend! The Pinto has new front end styling—and offers sporty new options like an all-glass third door on the Runabout. There's also the dependable Maverick, the dashing Mustang II, and a great line of trucks at your Ford Dealer.

Reduced Maintenance.

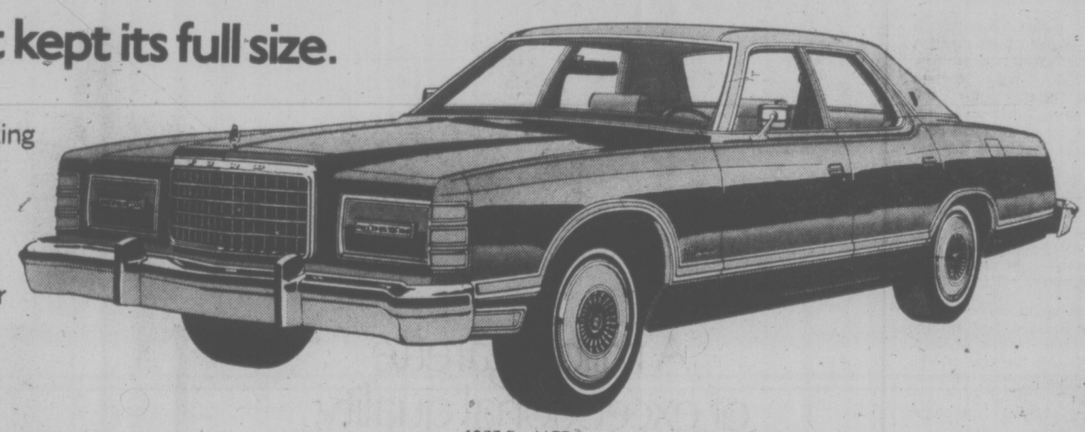
Compared with 1976-model Ford cars, 1977 standard equipped Ford cars are designed to reduce by 43% the average estimated cost for scheduled maintenance during 50,000 miles of normal driving.

Watch the CBC "Funny Lady" television special, starring Barbra Streisand, Omar Sharif and James Caan, on October 2, at 8:00 P.M. (8:30 P.M. in Newfoundland).

For 1977 some car makers will offer you only shorter, narrower, lighter full-size cars... Ford has a better idea... choice:

A full-size car that kept its full size. Ford LTD

This year some car makers are making all of their "full-size" cars smaller. Not Ford! The LTD has the same interior spaciousness, deep-well trunk, road-hugging performance, long wheelbase, and 3½-ton rated towing capacity (with optional trailer towing package). The '77 Ford LTD is every inch the car it was last year.



1977 Ford LTD Landau 4-door Pillared Hardtop

The trimmer sportier car at a trimmer price than LTD. New LTD II

Ford introduces a whole new line of cars—sporty 2-doors, 4-doors, and wagons—all called LTD II. When it comes to value, you'll find LTD II compares not only with other mid-size cars, but even with GM's new smaller "full-size" cars. So shop where you get a choice: your Ford Dealer. He's got the full-size Ford LTD... and the trim-size LTD II.

RUFF

Rights Ruling a Disaster—Ruff

The B.C. Human Rights Branch won a "hollow victory" Wednesday in a board of inquiry decision which ruled that handicapped people are protected by the Human Rights Code.

Branch director Kathleen Ruff said the victory was hollow because while the board ruled that the handicapped are protected by the code, it also ruled that the complainant in the case, David Jefferson of Victoria, had not been discriminated against.

Ruff described the decision as "disastrous" and said she is consulting a lawyer to see if the ruling can be appealed.

Jefferson, 33, missing one hand and one foot, applied to B.C. Ferries for a job as a junior engineer in November, 1975.

Jefferson's application was rejected by ferries' engineering superintendent George Baldwin who testified during a three-day board of inquiry hearing earlier this month that he felt Jefferson could pose a safety hazard because of his handicap.

The board, chaired by Vancouver lawyer Sholto Hebenton, ruled Wednesday that Baldwin's decison not to hire Jefferson was "reasonable", although all three board members said that if they had been doing the hiring, Jefferson would have got the job.

The board decision said Baldwin is a "cautious and conservative" man whose concern for safety is deep-rooted.

"He may well share the philosophy one often finds in large organizations, that rather than 'gamble' to obtain an employee who might turn out to be above average, he might prefer the safe course and employ an average person who is certain not to make a mistake," the ruling said.

Hearing testimony showed that Jefferson had worked on Department of National Defence ships for many years and his co-workers described him as agile and strong as any non-handicapped employee.

The board ruled that Baldwin's caution and conservatism — "if those qualities of mind are sins at all . . . they are not the sort of sins which would justify us in overturning Mr. Baldwin's decison."

The board ruled that Baldwin did not discriminate against Jefferson because he would have hired a handicapped person in a different situation, "but concluded that he would not put this particular double amputee on the eligibility list for engine work at this time."

Ruff Hopeful After Tragedy In Vanderhoof

B.C. Human Rights Branch director Kathleen Ruff said today it takes a tragedy before the people of B.C. will listen to the problems of native Indians.

Ruff, reacting to this week's Vanderhoof inquest into the death of a 21-year-old pregnant Indian woman, said it is only now after a woman has died that the problems of the Vanderhoof Indians are taken seriously.

The inquest jury Tuesday found Richard Redekop responsible for the July 3 death of Coreen Thomas, who died after she was struck by Redekop's car while walking to her home on the Stoney Creek Indian reserve.

Ruff said that in June this year the native people of Vanderhoof asked the Human Rights Commission for help "on the effects of harassment, tension and violence" in the Vanderhoof area.

She said commission members Bishop Remi de Roo and Larry Ryan went to the RCMP headquarters in Victoria but were told little could be done.

"We, as a society, don't listen to complaints. It's only after she (Thomas) died that people recognize these problems," Ruff said.

The inquest produced some constructive recommendations and the chances are much better now that something will be done, Ruff said.

WHAT MANKIND THINKS ABOUT ITSELF

Recently, George Gallup, with the help of a world-wide network of pollsters, conducted the first global public opinion poll. The results, some of which may surprise you, are in the October Issue of Reader's Digest. For example, Japan, one of the world's most pious countries 25 years ago, is now the most agnostic of all countries surveyed. Canada, on the other hand, is one of the world's most religious. The most important of all Gallup polls, What Mankind Thinks About Itself, is just one of 34 articles and features in the October issue of Reader's Digest. At your newsstand today!

Special Patrols Queried

Broadening commissionaires' powers to allow them to patrol a wider range of traffic offences is not as simple a task as it sounds, Victoria police board members learned Wednesday.

In its present role the Canadian Corps of Commissionaires is restricted to ticketing parking offenders, and the officials act principally as bylaw enforcement officers.

The police department wants to expand their function to that of special constables, empowered to police certain provisions of the Motor Vehicle Act so that they could, for example, order removal of a vehicle obstructing a fire hydrant.

But deputy police chief Les Mottershead told the board that the police union is concerned about the possible "encroachment" on police officers' powers.

He said union president Sgt. Patrick Braiden had pointed out that the commissionaires' contract with the city of Victoria stipulates the commissionaires are employees neither of the city nor the police board.

This raised the question whether their powers could be expanded without negotiating a fresh contract, he said.

Mid-October Start for Ferry

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The B.C. Ferries' lease-back vessel, the Queen of Cowichan, won't be in service until mid-October.

Delayed by the recent construction industry dispute, work resumed this week, and elevators and escalators are being installed as the last touches on the $17 million ferry.

Owned by Canada Trust and leased back to the provincial government, she lies alongside at Yarrows shipyard, where she was built.

Entering her cavernous three-car decks that can swallow up 320 cars is like walking into a floating city.

Empty now, the passenger quarters designed to house 1,300 people, are bright with touches of gold, orange and tangerine, complemented with natural woods.

She and her sister ship, the Queen of Coquitlam, which was built at Burrard in North Vancouver, are the largest ships in the 27-strong ferry fleet.

They're also two of the fastest, capable of 23 knots. The Queen of Cowichan's German MAK diesel engines will allow a sustained cruising speed of 21 knots.

Stacked on each side of her 457-foot hull are four sets of escape chutes for fast evacuation in an emergency, similar to those used by large commercial aircraft.

Carried in a recess close to sea level is a business-like Boston whaler for fast rescue work.

The wheelhouses at each end of the double-ender have the latest in electronics.

A B.C. Ferries' spokesman explained the double-ended design "cuts down passage time, allowing more time in dock if necessary."

The Queen of Coquitlam began operating between Departure Bay and Horseshoe Bay on Aug. 9.

As workers returned to the job this week, there was an atmosphere of anticipation in the Queen of Cowichan as if B.C.'s newest ferry couldn't wait to join her sister ship on the job.

City Moves To Block Demolitions

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

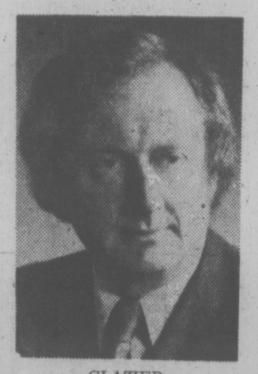
An alarmed Victoria city council decided Wednesday to seek special powers from the provincial government to cope with the housing demolition problem, which has reached epidemic proportions in recent months.

One of the key requests is for the right to withold a demolition permit until the developer in question has obtained council approval for the proposed land use and applied for a building permit.

Ald. Murray Glazier, who initiated the motion, has repeatedly urged council in recent months to consider some such action, but was told the city lacked the necessary authority under the Municipal Act.

However, Glazier said today that rather than wait several months for amendments to the legislation at the spring sitting of the legislature, the city may ask for the powers through a cabinet order-in-council.

He said the requirement for land-use approval before a demolition permit is issued would save the needless destruction of many sound homes.



GLAZIER
. . . can't wait

He could think of "dozens of examples" of homes that had been demolished and where the land still sits empty because the city did not approve the development plans.

Developers have been under the mistaken impression that presenting council with a bulldozed fait accompli would strengthen their rezoning applications, he said.

Another power requested by council Wednesday would allow it to levy "substantial" penalties based on the square footage of any illegally demolished building.

And council also wants the right to withhold a demolition permit on any property for which a heritage designation bylaw is being prepared.

(Under the present Municipal Act loopholes, a developer can thwart council's heritage aspirations. Because the heritage protection bylaws take several weeks to process, he can legally demolish the building before the procedure has been completed).

Up to the end of August City Hall had granted 181 demolition permits this year, but as several of these were multiple permits the actual number of dwellings demolished has been far higher.

The final total for September isn't known, but an engineering department spokesman confirmed today that "we are sitting on quite a number of applications."

Four Years in Jail For Ex-Mess Official

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Naval diver Cpl. Robert Ganner, 32, was sentenced Wednesday to four years in the penitentiary and discharged from the service when a general court martial found him guilty of 12 military offences.

He faced 24 charges under the National Defence Act emanating from his period of service as president of the Club 44 junior ranks mess, which spanned three years when there were thefts of cash, liquor and frauds and other actions contrary to good order and discipline.

His seven-day trial at CFB Esquimalt was presided over by judge advocate Lt.-Col. J. B. Fay, of Halifax, and Capt. (N) R. C. Okros, maritime staff Pacific, who pronounced sentence shortly before 5 p.m.

A few minutes later an armed escort of white-hatted provosts took Ganner into close custody for escort to service detention barracks in Edmonton, where he will remain pending an appeal, which if granted, may be held in Victoria.

Ganner took the sentence without visible stress, coloring slightly in the warm, makeshift court room as he was marched off.

The court martial board of five Pacific Command officers deliberated from 12:25 to 3 p.m., then after declaring the accused guilty of theft, making a false statement, abusing mess privileges, fraud and possessing unauthorized public property — in multiple charges — took another hour to consider sentence.

Ganner was found not guilty of four charges and the court stayed proceedings on eight others. In three instances the charges were amended to cover fewer items or lesser amounts of money.

At no point was the trial given a total of monies involved in the mess shortages, but one officer calculated that in a six-month period $7,800 went missing from bar receipts.

Defence counsel Maj. Brian Murphy had asked the court to consider Ganner's exemplary service record, the fact that he had had marital and personal problems during the latter part of the period under investigation and has bank and other personal debts of $7,000.

He said although these convictions called for imprisonment the period should be short, Ganner should be put on probation and allowed to return to his unit.

The offences did not relate to Ganner's primary function as a diver, and, Murphy noted, two former commanding officers testified they would gladly have Ganner back.

He said the purpose of punishment in a military situation is different from the civil case, that it is imposed to maintain discipline and should be the least that is required to do so

The prosecutor, Maj. William Reed, did not speak to sentence but entered particulars of Ganner's service record.

Lt.-Cmdr. A. W. Rouse, a commanding officer of the fleet diving unit to which Ganner was attached, said the accused had been commended for his work in HMCS Provider during Expo 70 in Tokyo, and had been sought to accompany HMCS Terra Nova to withdraw Canadians from Viet Nam near the close of the Indochina war.

Lt. Mark Draibye, commanding officer of the junior leadership school who had Ganner as an instructor in diving, cited Ganner's initiative, leadership qualities, power of command, good nature and generosity.

He noted the man had been separated from his wife but awarded custody of his children until during the investigation last spring the wife took two children back. At about that time Ganner's mother was taken ill and died the day following his relase from close custody pending the court martial.

Before adjourning to deliberate, the board was addressed for more than three hours by the judge advocate, who reviewed the evidence and instructed the court on points of law.

$28M Extra For Health?

Health Minister Bob McClelland said today that British Columbia will join in new cost-sharing arrangements with Ottawa which will include intermediate and home care for the first time.

While details of the new arrangements have yet to be worked out, McClelland said he anticipates the province could receive up to $28 million more from the federal government and may also save another $12 million by taking advantage of cost-sharing on early hospital discharge programs.

In a telephone interview from Summerland, he said the changes came about as a result of pleadings by the provinces over several years for cost-sharing formulas which cover all degrees of health care.

Until now the federal government participated in some levels of care such as acute and extended but not in others such as intermediate care.

At present the cost-sharing on home care applies only to early hospital discharge cases but the health minister said he hopes it can be expanded.

Just what share Ottawa will pay has yet to be worked out but McClelland said he expects it will be close to the 50-50 split on existing programs.

The federal offer to revamp cost-sharing in health care came at a recent conference of health ministers in Fredericton and he said there was the impression there that all provinces will accept it.

B.C. was concerned that acceptance would jeopardize efforts of provincial premiers to negotiate an overall rearrangement of cost-sharing with the federal government but Ottawa refused to extend more time for a decision.

McClelland said that if the other provinces accept, he expects more meetings will follow soon to iron out details.

Royal Oak Protest Tuesday

A strong turnout of Royal Oak residents is expected for a meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Glanford elementary school to protest further expansion of the industrial park in their area.

Lawrence Cook, chairman of the Royal Oak Concerned Citizens, said today invitations have been sent to every member of Saanich council, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis, Capital Region District chairman Jim Campbell, and J. J. Runka, chairman of the B.C. Land Commission.

Cook's organization has appealed to the B.C. Land Commission to stop a bid by Saanich council to have 79 acres taken out of the agricultural land reserve, swelling the industrial park area to 120 acres.

The land commission has told the Royal Oak Concerned Citizens group that it is not in favor of taking acreage out of the agricultural land reserve that is prime land for raising crops.

Housing-Park Mix Approved

A mixture of townhouses and parkland — that's the future for two choice pieces of waterfront property in Victoria West, which the city purchased for more than $500,000 two years ago.

The sites are the former Rainbow property, home of the Navy League's sea cadets for 35 years; and a two-acre-plus parcel once owned by the Warren Tug and Barge Company, adjacent to Banfield Park.

Both were purchased by the city in August, 1974 — the Rainbow property for $320,000, the Warren Tug property for $240,000.

From the start it was envisaged that some form of housing would be developed on both sites, and aldermen and officials have made numerous visits of inspection to determine the most appropriate type of development.

The Victoria Advisory Planning Commission's recommendation, approved by council (Wednesday, favors "ground-oriented" townhouse units.

There will be 28 such units on the nearly three-acre Rainbow site (where the actual development will cover 1.33 acres) and about 14 units on the Warren Tug property (occupying a little less than one acre).

On the former property there will be 1.16 acres available for parkland; on the latter 1.04 acres, for the extension of Banfield Park.

Both sites will provide waterfront pedestrian access as part of the city's over-all promenade plan.

Mayor Mike Young said today the sites will be surveyed for subdivision plans, and the city will also prepare the appropriate zoning controls and development guidelines before issuing a proposal call to developers.

The city will probably sell the residential portions of the land "at market" he said.

While any interested party can tender, including non-profit groups and co-operatives, Young said the price will probably preclude the possibility of developing low-income rental units.

LUCKY JIM!

James Wilson, 53, a scaler and cleaner at HMC Dockyard, had his ticket drawn today on a horse in Saturday's running of the Irish Sweeps Cambridgeshire race at Newmarket, England.

SAFEWAY PACT STEP CLOSER

Union members in Victoria voted Wednesday to accept a tentative agreement which could see 93 Safeway stores in B.C., shut down for the past month, re-open next week.

Members of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union in Vancouver were voting on the contract offer today while workers in Dawson Creek vote Friday. There are about 800 members in the union.

The tentative agreement is with Macdonald's Consolidated, main supplier of Safeway stores in the province. The voting comes after the latest round of negotiations which took six days and was guided by mediator Clive McKee.

'Garth Homer Centre'

The Greater Victoria Activity Centre for the Handicapped, near completion in Saanich, will be named Garth Homer Achievement Centre, society president Floyd Fairclough said today.

Directors have voted for that choice of name in tribute to the former director of the Pearkes Clinic who died last week, he said.

Fairclough said it had been his board's privilege to serve with Homer in efforts to build a centre for all the handicapped of Greater Victoria and Homer's dignity and determination had inspired all those who worked with him.

Meanwhile, the $1.6 million centre on Darwin remains only 70 per cent finished as the board struggles to find the $300,000 needed to complete it.

Fairclough last week asked the provincial government to either provide the extra funds through a grant or grant and loan or to guarantee a loan the society would try to raise through a public campaign.

But in a speech Wednesday, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said there will be a substantial" amount of money available this fall to expand the achievement centre concept in B.C. (Achievement centre is the human resources department's new name for handicapped workshops.)

Later Vander Zalm said that no decision has been made on the request for $300,000 to complete the Greater Victoria centre but the total represented a "sizeable chunk" to give to just one centre.

'Exceptional Coolness'

A special commendation will go to Victoria Police Sgt. Doug Sleivert for his "courageous" handling of an Aug. 27 incident involving a confrontation with an armed man, Victoria police board agreed Wednesday.

Police Chief Jack Gregory praised the "exceptional coolness" displayed by Sleivert in calming the man holed up in an apartment at 2531 Government, and finally persuading him to surrender.

Although the man had already fired several shots from a shotgun, and had threatened to shoot any policeman who appeared on the scene, Gregory said Sleivert's deployment of his men and personal bravery avoided injury to anyone.

At one point while the officer was talking to him the man made a grab for what appeared to be a revolver.

Under such circumstances most policemen might have fired, Gregory said, but Sleivert reacted coolly and the "gun" later turned out to be a replica.

Sleivert was one of two officers wounded in 1970 by a bank robber in a getaway, Gregory noted.

On that occasion, although his colleague had already been shot, he approached the robber "face to face, gun to gun," but refused to fire because innocent bystanders might have been hurt.

The other's bullet caught him in the centre of the chest, but fortunately through a combination of a small weapon and old ammunition the wound wasn't fatal.

Mayor Mike Young, chairman of the police board, agreed that a special presentation should go to Sleivert in addition to the letter of commendation from the board.

B.C. Investors Head South, Too

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

There are many good reasons for investing in the United States rather than British Columbia at this time, says provincial Real Estate Board president Eric Charman.

"The investment climate is better in the United States, no question about it," he said.

Charman was commenting on a story in Wednesday's Times that Victoria developers were becoming more interested in U.S. projects because of bureaucratic delays in British Columbia.

"It is not only developers that are looking to the United States. Investors are also going south. Millions of dollars have left British Columbia in the past two years; it is difficult to estimate how much."

Charman said it all began in 1974 when the party in power, the NDP, introduced rent controls.

"Once the provincial government interfered with free market conditions (rents), it was a new ball game. Investors began looking at investments in the United States. Many of the major companies have invested heavily (in the U.S.) and these are the people who were most active in building apartments in Victoria."

The election of the NDP government has seriously eroded the confidence of investors, he said.

There is a concern that the NDP may be re-elected or the Social Credit government might adopt some socialist policies to keep the NDP out of power.

"It is a fact of political life that a party in power begins to emulate some of the policies of a strong opposition party."

It is not only the provincial government that is causing concern, however.

Charman said investors are worried about the heavy spending by Ottawa and the apparent lack of direction.

He said Ottawa has acted in a heavy-handed manner with no apparent benefits to the economy.

"It looks like the Canadian dollar is in for a sharp drop because the economy of the United States is much better than ours. Investors who have put their money south of the border will benefit by this change in the value of the Canadian and American dollar."

Charman said the drop would be evident soon but might take two or three years before it becomes extreme.

Eventually the U.S. dollar has to rise sharply higher than the Canadian currency because of the strength in the American economy.

The U.S. dollar is currently 97 to 98 cents Canadian.

Charman said it would take less interference in the market and less spending by governments to begin to improve the investment climate in British Columbia.

Those companies that are not investing in the U.S are tending to put a freeze on expansion until market conditions improve, he said.

Block Bros.

Block Bros. Industries Ltd. of Vancouver has announced gross income from the six months ended July 31 was $50 million against $48 million a year ago, a moderate increase of four per cent. Net earnings for six months were $2,327,000 or 40 cents per share compared to $2,850,000 or 45 cents per share a year ago. Earnings per share are based on 5.8 million shares outstanding at July 31, 1976, against 6.3 million shares outstanding a year ago.

Toronto Star

Toronto Star Ltd. has announced the acquisition of 362,450 shares of Western Broadcasting Co. Ltd., Vancouver, as an investment. A spokesman for The Star said the shares were bought on the market over a two-week period.

Scotiabank

Bank of Nova Scotia shareholders will be asked at their annual meeting Dec. 8 in Toronto to approve a two-for-one split of the bank's shares, effective Dec. 20. The bank said that the split will result in each share with a current par value of $2 being subdivided into two shares with a par vale of $1 each. It said that since shares were last subdivided May 12, 1967, its assets have increased fourfold and the market value of the stock also has increased.

Belkin Packaging

Belkin Packaging Ltd. of Vancouver has acquired an 11-acre site in Burlington, Ont., on which to build a plant to serve the folding carton market in Ontario and Quebec. E. S. Martin Construction (Ontario) Limited will build the plant. Belkin said about 100 employees will eventually work in the facility after it starts producing in mid-1977. The company now has carton plants at Burnaby and Richmond. It also is building a $4 million plant in Edmonton to supply the prairies with corrugated containers.

Webb and Knapp

Webb and Knapp (Canada) Ltd. reports net income of $765,883 or 27 cents a share for the first six months ended June 30. This compares with net income of $40,000 or less than a cent a share in the same period of 1975 for the Vancouver Real Estate and Property Management Company. The company said the net income is higher this half because of an extraordinary gain from a land sale by a subsidiary.

Anglo-Bomarc

Anglo-Bomarc Mines Ltd. has reached an agreement with Canadian Superior Oils Ltd. for development of Anglo-Bomarc's Hercules silver prospect in Idaho. Canadian Superior is required to spend a minimum of $1.5 million over the first four years of the agreement, but will not earn an interest in the property until a feasibility study has been completed and a commitment made to place the property into production, Anglo-Bomarc president A. S. Mark said.

Phoenix Canada

Phoenix Canada Oil Co. Ltd. of Toronto has announced acquisition of coal exploration rights on 389,000 acres in the Scented Grass Hills area of Great Bear Lake, N.W.T. The property is about 90 miles east of the proposed Mackenzie Valley pipeline route.

Alcan Wire

Alcan Wire and Cable, a division of Alcan Canada Products Ltd., says it will build a $5-million cable mill in St. Augustin, Que., to meet anticipated cable requirements for the James Bay hydro project. The mill is expected to be in operation late next year.

Economist Blames Gov't Spending

MONTREAL (CP) — Although the last 10 years have been extremely difficult, a U.S. treasury department economist says an "evil-force theory of economics" can be discounted.

Sydney Jones, assistant secretary of economic policy, told the Business Outlook meeting of the Conference Board in Canada there was no mystery as to what had happened over the last decade.

"In the U.S., we had spent too much," he explained. Government spending has gone to $400 billion from $135 billion since 1965.

"Government spending quadrupled and this when the gross national product doubled," he said. "Therefore, inflation which was two and 2.9 per cent in the 1960s now is 5.8 per cent."

He said the U.S. experience with wage and price controls showed "controls do not work".

"They are ineffective at best and counter-productive at worst."

The turnaround in the U.S. economy began in March, 1975, and since then "it has been going up in real output terms at a rate of seven per cent," he said.

For 1977, he forecast that this growth will begin to slow down and the real output "will probably be 5½ to six per cent, still a relatively strong economic rate of growth."

He said inflation will likely remain at five to six per cent, and that unemployment will continue to come down slowly.

"The U.S. is experiencing a relatively strong, surprisingly well-balanced economy," he concluded. "The indicators are either on track or slightly ahead."

The Conference Board in Canada is a privately-funded group that makes economic forecasts and analyses.

Spectrum: You Can See It All Friday

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Not many high school principals are enrolled as a student in a regular class, but then not many schools are modelled on the same concept as Spectrum Community School in Saanich.

When Wally Russell attends the photography class, he is just another student taking the course because he is interested in the subject and wants to learn.

Spectrum finally opened as a community school with its own building in September this year, after six years of planning and two years operating in empty rooms in other schools.

There have been so few problems that a teachers' discretionary day set to iron out problems will be used for something else, Russell said.

It's about time something went right for the school. Russell feels it's ironic that a province could dream up, design, build and enrol 5,000 students at Simon Fraser University all within two years, could take so long to open a high school for 850 students.

But the major setbacks are hurdled and the official opening of the school takes place Friday.

Open House at the school at 957 West Burnside (at Acorn) begins at 2 p.m. with guided tours and a ceremonial tree planting.

Refreshments will be available and there will be a child care area for visitors with small children.

Official opening ceremony takes place in the gymnasium at 8 p.m. Student council president Darcia Bains will make the declaration.

School personnel hope that as many people as possible will visit the school to see what is available and how it can be used.

The idea behind a community school is two-fold — to have the community utilize the school and its facilities as much as possible and to have students participate in community activities.

The $4.2 million structure has 46 teachers and was the first erected on southern Vancouver Island for community school use.

It has 101,000 square feet and can accommodate 950 students, 100 more than the current enrolment, but "850 is a comfortable number," Russell says.

It has open boundaries — senior secondary students from anywhere in District 61 can attend.

It was designed by Peterson and Lester and built by W. Campbell Co. Ltd. — both Victoria firms.

Budget cutbacks have created some course problems — the drama, film and music programs that would have used the auditorium — still just a drawing until finances permit construction — are now using temporary quarters waiting for portable classrooms.

But on the whole "we're delighted and pleasantly surprised that the things we said would work are working so well," Russell said.

And it has had a big impact on students' habits — the way they dress and study, he adds.

"They're already developing an independence and a quiet confidence in themselves. You can see it," Russell said.

The school operates on the concept that anyone can learn, it just takes some longer than others. "You can grow old in this school," he says as he heads off for his photography class.

It Began in December, 1970 . . .

— December 1970: Need for the school established.

— March, 1971: School board approves purchase of site and planning begins. Cost estimated at $1.8 million.

— September 1971: Committees set up to study the school's curriculum and community facilities.

— April, 1972: Committee of parents and students set up to advise on school planning.

— April, 1973: Sketch plans submitted to education department.

— May, 1973: Wally Russell appointed principal.

— November, 1973: Saanich voters defeat referendum that would have included funding of an auditorium for the school.

— March, 1974: Name of school changed to Spectrum from Saanich Community School by prospective students.

— July, 1974: Provincial cabinet approval given.

— August, 1974: Serious setback when both construction bids for the school were $1 million over budgeted maximum of $3.5 million set by department of education.

— November, 1974: Education Minister Eileen Dailly gives approval for construction following a cost analysis.

— December, 1974: Contract signed with W. Campbell Ltd. for construction of the school at $4.2 million. Excavation begins immediately.

June, 1975: $65,000 approved for elevators and other facilities for handicapped students.

— September, 1975: Spectrum begins second year of classes as a school without a building.

— November, 1975: Referendum for an auditorium defeated for a second time.

— June, 1976: Saanich council considers circulating a petition to see if any renewed interest for the auditorium.

— September, 1976: Students attend new Spectrum facilities finished just in time for classes at a cost of $4.2 million.

— October 1, 1976: Official opening takes place.

Three R's, Staying in Touch School Boss' Top Priorities

The man who will be senior administrator in the new year for more than 27,000 students in the 55 schools of Greater Victoria said Wednesday his first priority is keeping in touch.

Allan Stables, 52, veteran North Vancouver principal and school administrator, also said he sees reading, writing and arithmetic as the fundamental skills on which to build other important abilities such as communicating, understanding another point of view and making decisions.

Stables is the school board's choice to replace Jake Longmore, who resigned earlier to become superintendent of the Calgary school district. He is currently assistant superintendent in charge of education administration in North Vancouver, a district with about 21,500 students.

In a telephone interview Stables said his second priority will be to estabish a system of objectives within the school district, priorities within that system and a method of evaluating progress.

He wants good lines of communication with school board, the central administration, parents and particularly the staff directing the schools, he said.

"We need to be constantly in touch with the schools rather than operating as a central office, divorced from them."

Stables said he has no reason to believe there's a problem now but is just listing the directions he regards as paramount.

He will spend three weeks in November visiting schools before taking over the superintendent's job Jan. 1.

"I want to go around and meet the people, get their views, hear their problems and concerns."

Greater Victoria has a reputation for leadership among school districts, he said. It's known for high standards, for innovation, leadership in curriculum development and its community school system.

Stables has a master's degree in education from the University of British Columbia. An RACF member during the Second World War, he began teaching in Mission in 1950 and taught in Mission City before becoming a high school principal in Prince George in 1957.

He was a principal at three schools in North Vancouver before becoming the district's director of instrution in 1970.

School board chairman William Ross said Stables' contract is still to be settled and a salary figure can't be given yet. Longmore's salary when he left was $42,500 a year and Stables' present salary in North Vancouver is $43,000.

Logging Ban Urged on Moresby

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The Queen Charlotte Islands protection committee has called for a moratorium on all logging south of the Tantil Peninsula on Moresby Island in a proposal to re-classify the area as a wilderness park.

Prompted by a recent Rayonier Canada application to log a section of the proposed wilderness area, the committee has requested the provincial government to outlaw clear-cutting on the island and freeze additional logging permits until release of a current environmental land use committee report.

Approval was given to Rayonier in April 1975, for road and campsite construction as well as some logging on Lyell Island.

The islands protection committee objects to Rayonier's proposed use of clear-cutting and in a recent letter to the Prince Rupert district forester, attacks Rayonier logging practices as destructive and careless.

In clear-cutting, logs are cut and skidded to a central landing area as opposed to selective logging which requires the cutting of individual trees and hauling them out of the forests on trucks.

The group says Rayonier's proposals violate forestry department guidelines by applying to clear-cut 525 acres within four years, a plan which exceeds the coastal logging regulations.

"Also, plans have been approved for cutting slopes on Lyell in excess of 65 per cent which the forest service admits can be expected to slide," the committee says in its letter.

The sea birds are a major food source of the endangered peale's peregrine falcon and make their nests on the forest floor, now threatened by clear cutting operations.

Jim Hart, deputy forest ranger for the Queen Charlotte Islands, says there is no viable economic or environmental alternative to clear-cutting on the northwest coast.

Machines needed for selective logging would cause more ground erosion than created in clear cutting, he said.

Disabled Show Craft Skills At Mayfair

Disabled and handicapped people will demonstrate their skills as craftsmen at the annual Arbutus Crafts Village Fair to be held in the Mayfair shopping mall Monday to Saturday.

Merchandise will also be sold and a raffle held.

At the same time Arbutus Crafts will launch a membership drive. It is seeking new members to participate in the activities of the society or to provide financial support.

BAD GIRL NICE, DETECTIVE SAYS

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Penthouse prostitution trial took a genial turn Wednesday with an undercover police agent saying he liked one of the accused and thought one of the prostitutes at the cabaret was a nice girl.

Detective George Barclay was testifying at the trial fo Joseph Philliponi, Ross Filippone, Domenick Filipponé, Minerva Kelley, Rose Filippone and Jan Sedlak, who, along with Celebrity Enterprises Ltd., are accused of conspiring to live off the avails of prostitution and conspiring to produce public mischief with intent to corrupt public morals.

When asked by defence counsel if he was mad at one of the defendants, Barelay said he "kind of" liked Sedlak and there is nothing wrong with him."

Rail Board Named

KELOWNA (CP) — Six appointments to the board of directors of B.C.Rail were announced Wednesday by Economic Development Minister Don Phillips, the only government member of the board.

SFU Talks Re-Open

BURNABY (CP) — University and union officials said Wednesday that negotiations will re-open Saturday between Simon Fraser Univerwity and nine unions representing 71 striking maintenance trade employees.

The joint announcement said both sides have agreed to meet to discuss a possible settlement of the four-week-old strike.

Shooting Charged

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Richard Len Wright, 33, of California, was remanded in custody until Oct. 7 after he appeared in provincial court Wednesday on 15 charges in connection with a shooting incident Tuesday. Police said a man was taken into custody following a struggle with two RCMP officers in which a .357 magnum revolver was discharged.

Brawlers Fined

ASHCROFT (CP) — Three men involved in a brawl June 25 at the Ashcroft Stampede Carnival were fined in provincial court Tuesday. Robert Stephen Mackay, 29, of New Westminster, was fined $600 or 70 days in jail; Richard Mark Rogers was fined $500 or 55 days in jail; and Thomas Marsh, 19, of Mission, was fined $350 or 40 days in jail.

Family Had No Warning Of Suicide

VANCOUVER (AP) — The brother-in-law of a 40-year-old man who killed himself early Tuesday after a 12-hour stand-off with police says family members have no idea why William Evans became involved in the incident.

Bernard Boulier of Sardis said he last saw his brother-in-law Sunday and that he appeared in good spirits then.

"He gave no indication that anything like this was on his mind."

The incident began Monday evening after Evans fired two shots at a forest ranger's truck and fled into the bush in North Cascade National Park near the border south of Hope.

Boulier said Evans was divorced, worked in a North Vancouver chemical plant, and had no history of mental illness.

Mill Smoke Clean-Up Begins

British Columbia Forest Products is installing three 63-foot anti-pollution towers at its Gorge Road sawmill in the second phase of a four-part program.

Two of the 34-ton stacks were hoisted into place this week and the third one will be installed Monday.

Project engineer Brian Lesiuk said the new anti-pollution system should be operating by Christmas or by January at the latest.

Phase three will be testing of motors to get all three stacks synchronised with the power plant. The final phase, which may start by November will be testing of the anti-pollution system.

If it works as expected, the smokestack emissions will be replaced by three tiny whisps of steam, which will look like a single plume from a distance.

The smokestack, which has been a landmark of sorts, may be painted and retained on the property, if for no other reason that it would be difficult and expensive to remove.

Phase one of the $2.4 million project was to prepare the land for the heavy stacks, which look like rocket ships and are called dry scrubbers.

A drill test showed the top eight feet of soil was mill residue, the next 15 feet were hard clay, then the next 50 feet were "soup", a very, moist clay. Below this was the hard rock. A total of 16 steelpilings were driven down to the rock level, about 69 to 72 feet down.

On top of the pilings is a cement block, 47 feet by 25 feet and five feet high, to act as a base for the scrubbers.

The ground preparation is up to a standard demanded by the National Building Code. According to Ottawa, Victoria is a major earthquake zone.

Without the carefull base preparations, the weight of the scrubbers would have been enough to depress the land, tilting the power plant and other sawmill buildings.

While the land was being prepared, the three dry scrubbers were constucted at Yarrows. They are moving to the mill on trucks.

Phase three, the synchronisation of the three 500-horsepower motors, will begin next week and will take sone time to complete.

Once the system is working in harmony, the anti-pollution process will be tested.

According to the plan, dirty gases will be pumped through fine gravel which will extract salt and other pollutants from the steam.

Besides satisfying BCFP, the testing program must meet the standards of the provincial Pollution Control Board and the federal Environment Canada.

BCFP was granted a maximum of $800,00 by Ottawa for the program because it is the first of its kind in Canada. Other companies will have the right to visit the Gorge Road plant to inspect the scrubbers.

SOCCER CANADA GIVES WARNING

VANCOUVER (CP) — Soccer Canada said Wednesday that the commissioner of the North American Soccer League has issued a warning to league clubs not to attempt to negotiate with Canadian players currently involved in the World Cup playoffs.

The organization, which runs the Canadian team, said the warning from Phil Woosnam followed complaints from the Canadian Soccer Association that Canadian players were approached by scouts for a number of NASL clubs following the first World Cup playoff game between Canada and the United States here last week.

In a directive issued from the commissioner's office in New York, Woosnam said disciplinary action would be taken against teams that approach players without permission of the appropriate Canadian authority.

The Ali-Norton Show, Or Why I'm No Judge

Well, among other sundry endeavours that never seem to pan out, one thing is certain today. I'll never make a fight judge. And that puts me in a position equivalent to most of the real experts and many of the part-time variety who were at Yankee Stadium Tuesday night.

That was where the reality of becoming an aging fighter almost cost Muhammad Ali his heavyweight boxing title. In many minds it did. But those don't count. Only the combined opinions of the three chosen officials do; and that's why Ali today is still champion, his throne somewhat tarnished, but still upright.

Of course Ken Norton, the vanquished doesn't buy any of that. He thought he had won the fight and so did most of those in the ring when it was all over. One only had to view the expressions on the faces of those present to determine their feelings; and even if you hadn't seen one blow land in the battle either. The handwriting was that clear on those faces. Ali was a dejected figure, obviously figuring that he had lost, while the Norton followers were dancing for unrestrained joy. Norton even gave Ali a parting shot, the reverse psych, if you like, when the bout ended. And when Ali didn't have an answer, that should have told the judges what they didn't want to know.

Of course in retrospect it could be said that Ali knew this one was going to be tough. He put on his very best superpsych before the bout began, and even appealed to the fans by exhorting them in a new refrain "Norton Must Fall." This was Ali, the super showman, at work, and he was just great; but he wasn't the same convincing friend of the fans when the bout was over. He was beaten, and he knew it.

So, he's still champ today for the simple reason that any new heavyweight champion has to score a knockout or win big to get that title on a decision. It has to be wide margin. The defending champ at least deserves that respect and that's what Ali got. Otherwise, he got a licking and Norton has every right to say "I was robbed."

Ali is truly a remarkable boxer and a fine figure of an athlete too at 34 years of age. And he has done much to restore credibility to the boxing game even if his showmanship is often overdone, but well, mind, most of the time. He has taken on all comers, ducked no one and beaten them all with the exception of a fellow named Norton and Joe Frazier.

He came back to reverse that decision against Frazier and to outfight him completely. But he didn't do that to Norton in either of his victories. The first one probably didn't matter because it was a non-title affair. But Tuesday's was for real. But no longer was it the real Ali who was fighting.

He said afterwards, it was time to get out. That he could feel retirement catching up on him, in his wind and his endurance, and that he'd be wise to quit. He knew, if others didn't.

So, he's still smart, and smarter than most boxers; and that helped him Tuesday as it has done so many times before. Even when he knew he was getting beaten, he tried not to let it show. And for that he gets marks. It is said he retained the championship by winning the 13th, 14th and 15th rounds. Maybe he did dance a lot in those three rounds, but he hardly bothered Norton who continued to land the heaviest artillery.

But the telling part, really, was in Ali's habit of talking to his opponent. He started in the first round, taunting his rival and attempting to get the crowd to join with him. In the middle rounds he responded to some cries of "Ali, Ali, Ali," stopping fighting and staring in mock astonishment at that sea of faces. But at the end he wasn't talking. He had nothing to talk about. It was Norton. And he had every right to.

He had fought a good fight, and good enough to win. But he didn't. Why? I don't know. That's why I'll never make a fight judge. Along with everyone else, that is.

Traded Schultz Says Mel's Super

Philadelphia general-manager Keith Allen said Schultz was traded for "future considerations" but "not players."

Schultz, 26, said Allen had told him he was being traded for a draft choice.

"My first question was 'Who was the trade for?' and they said a draft choice," Schultz said. "When they traded Bill Clement they got Mel Bridgman (a No. 1 draft choice), a super hockey player.

"The Flyers have never made a bad trade," he added. "I hope they got a good deal and I hope L.A. thinks they got a good deal."

Allen said Schultz was traded because Bridgman would be playing centre regularly and "in doing that, we're probably going to have to move Rick MacLeish to left wing which probably would have moved Dave to fourth-line duty.

FAITH-GRID HASSLE

MIAMI (AP) — The Jewish owner of Los Angeles Rams has charged that Sunday's game with Miami Dolphins was scheduled here on Yom Kippur because of a National Football League vendetta against him.

"It is a punishment and a warning to other team owners that if they criticize Pete Rozelle (league commissioner) they will also be punished," Carroll Rosenbloom said.

Yom Kippur, the day of atonement and most sacred Jewish holy day, begins at sundown Sunday with services starting about 7 p.m. The Rams-Dolphins game begins at 4 p.m. Many Jewish fans are expected to leave the game at halftime. Hundreds have requested refunds.

JOHN MONTEFUSCO
... champagne for no-hitter

Plenty To Brag About

By The Associated Press

John Montefusco has had the bragging rights on San Francisco Giants for the last two years. Think what he'll be like to live with now that he's pitched a no-hitter.

"This ain't going to shut me up for a long time," said the swaggering pitcher after hurling a 9-0 no-hitter over Atlanta Braves Wednesday night. "I'm going to be talking all winter now."

Montefusco, known as The Count for his exceptional poise and often cocky appearance, has a right to brag. He came within one pitch of a perfect game—issuing a leadoff walk to Jerry Royster on a 3-1 pitch in the fourth inning of the National League baseball game.

The no-hitter was only the second ever thrown in Atlanta Stadium since the Braves came south in 1966. Phil Niekro of the Braves threw the other one on August 5, 1973.

Montefusco was the league's rookie of the year last season with a 15-9 record and has posted a 16-14 record so far this season.

In Wednesday's other National League games, Chicago Cubs blanked Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0, Montreal Expos whipped New York Mets 7-2, Philadelphia Phillies nipped St. Louis Cardinals 6-5, Los Angeles Dodgers stopped Houston Astros 1-0 and San Diego defeated Cincinnati Reds 6-1.

Montefusco struck out four batters and forced the Braves to beat the ball into the ground for the most part. Shortstop Johnnie LeMaster alone had eight chances.

A Royal Feeling

By The Associated Press

Kansas City Royals are home today, in the city Charles O. Finley deserted eight years ago, preparing for a pennant-clinching party.

"You could say an era is over," said Gene Tenace of Oakland A's after Wednesday night's 4-0 victory by the Royals over the Finley-owned team which has won five successive American League West titles and claimed World Series titles in 1972-73-74.

"We're lifted up right now and I hope we stay up this weekend," said Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog whose team had lost six of seven games before Wednesday night.

The A's had won five of six, charging within reach of the leaders.

"We haven't ended it yet, but we're comfortable now," said the Royals John Mayberry.

Herzog went to his bullpen for a starting pitcher and got a four-hit shutout from Larry Gura, 4-0, while Amos Otis drove in two runs with a homer and double in his first game since a two-day stay on the bench.

It was Otis' 18th homer of the season, giving the Royals their final run in the fifth inning.

In Wednesday's other American League games, New York Yankees downed Boston Red Sox 9-6, Milwaukee Brewers topped Baltimore Orioles 6-3, Minnesota Twins trimmed Texas Rangers 9-1, Cleveland Indians turned back Detroit Tigers 3-2 and California Angels blanked Chicago White Sox 3-0.

One victory over Minnesota in the final three-game series of the regular season will clinch the title. The series opens Friday night in Royals Stadium.

The Royals, with a 3½-game lead, also can uncork the champagne if the A's, moved to the West Coast from Kansas City by Finley in 1968, lose one of their four remaining games.

Gura, a left-hander who had started only one other game this season, began the year with New York Yankees, the East Division champs, and got no work at all from manager Billy Martin.

Graig Nettles drove in six runs and scored four for New York, hitting two home runs—one a grand slam—and two doubles. Nettles now tops the American League with 32 homers.

Milwauke's Hank Aaron scored on a single by Dan Thomas in the sixth inning and moved into a tie with Babe Ruth for second place on the career runs scored list with 2,174. Ty Cobb is first with 2,244.

PEOPLE-PASSING PERILS are among things on display during football game at University of Illinois as Mrs. Dave Joyner, a cheerleader, is flipped through air after her team had won game. People-passing, in which coeds are picked up and passed overhead up rows of spectators, has reached dangerous level at football games this season, mainly because of races between fraternities to move girls from bottom to top rows of seats. Sorority officials are demanding that practice be banned.

Beat George, Ali Tells Ken

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali told Ken Norton Wednesday that if he beats George Foreman then he could have another chance at him.

Norton, however, thinks he has already beaten Ali.

Bob Biron, Norton's manager, was outraged by the unanimous decision awarded Ali on Tuesday night and registered protest with the New York State Athletic Association.

"We will try very hard to get a rematch," said Biron.

"If I don't get a rematch, I will quit," said Norton, who lost the fight on the official cards when he lost the last round. Opinion among writers on the day after, seemed to be evenly divided.

"Him and Foreman have to fight," said Ali. "Then between him and Foreman that will be my last fight. I don't want two more hard fights. This is too hard, man.

"But if Norton beats Foreman, I'll be suprised."

In 1974, Norton was knocked out in the second round by Foreman in a bid for the championship.

"I don't think we'll fight George Foreman," he said.

A spokesman for the commission said the decision cannot be changed, pointing out a New York Supreme Court ruling following a dispute 1952 welterweight fight between Joe Giardello and Billy Graham. Robert Christenberry, the commission chairman, changed an official's card, giving the victory to Graham, and Giardello went to court.

The court ruled that the commission had no right to reverse the card.

Ali and Norton could be the only financial winners of the fight promoted by Madison Garden and Top Rank, Inc.

The promoters announced Wednesday a crowd of 30,289 — they estimated 42,000 Tuesday night — and a live gate of $2.4 million, far below pre-fight estimates of between $3 million and $4 million. It left the second Gene Tunney-Jack Dempsey fight at Soldier Field in Chicago as the all-time gate champion at $2,650,668.

Figures on closed-circuit television revenue were not available.

Ali was guaranteed $6 million plus $100,000 expenses while Norton was guaranteed $1 million plus $100,000 and five per cent of all income.

Motorcycle Hillclimb Sunday

Three classes of competitors, starting at 12 noon, will be competing in the 43rd annual Victoria Motorcycle Club Hillclimb up Mt. Douglas.

The classes will be 350 cc. Novice, Expert and Vancouver Island open. Admission will be by donation.

Button Triumph

Dick Stokes and Jake Peters of Victoria Golf Club gained possession of the Victoria District senior golf buttons Wednesday, defeating Vic Lea and Doug Peden on the 18th hole at Royal Colwood to end a six-match victory streak by the Uplands pair.

Three-Way Tie

Dunsmuir, Mt. Douglas and Victoria picked up victories in home gymnasiums Wednesday night to move into a three-way tie for first place in the boys' division of the Greater Victoria High School Volleyball League.

The newest school in the league, Dunsmuir topped Parkland 11-15, 15-12, 15-8 while Mt. Douglas defeated Oak Bay 15-0, 15-7 and Victoria dropped Claremont, 9-15, 15-6, 15-11.

In the only other match of the evening, Esquimalt posted a 15-8, 15-10 victory over host Belmont.

In the girls' division, defending-champion Victoria remained unbeaten with a 15-4, 18-16 win over Claremont, Belmont nudged Esquimalt 12-15, 15-11, 15-13, Spectrum downed Reynolds 15-1, 12-15, 15-9, Oak Bay defeated Mt. Douglas 15-14, 13-15, 16-14 and Parkland topped Dunsmuir, 15-13, 15-9.

BOXING IN BAD BOOKS

OTTAWA (CP) — Amateur boxing is in the government doghouse again and this time has been cut off from all funding by Sports Canada.

A few years ago the sport was in the bad books because of worries about the safety of amateur boxers.

This time the rap is lack of accounting for government funds to the Canadian Amateur Boxing Association. The association's offices in the National Sports Administration Centre have been closed and the staff paid off.

Bill Heikkila, boxing consultant to Sports Canada, said Wednesday the government wanted to cease all funding in April when the boxing association did not satisfy the government with an audited statement. But because of the approaching Montreal Olympics, another $40,000 was advanced to the boxers.

"As of this moment," said Heikkila, "the boxing association has not accounted for roughly another $50,000 of funds advanced to them."

CANUCKS TROUNCED

Lanny Comes Through Again

By The Canadian Press

Lanny McDonald gave Vancouver fans another demonstration of his versatility Wednesday night, scoring twice for Toronto Maple Leafs in a 9-1 over the Canucks in a National Hockey League exhibition game.

Only about 1,500 fans were on hand Tuesday night to see the right winger score the winning goal in a 4-3 Toronto win over the Canucks but on Wednesday about 13,000 customers watched McDonald, 23, dominate the game with his skating and stick-handling skills.

The Leafs opened a 4-0 lead in the first 20 minutes, helped by big saves by goalie Pierre Hamel and made it 5-0 after two periods when McDonald scored a short-handed goal.

The Hanna, Alta., native, who struggled through his first two NHL seasons, came into his own last year with 46 goals. He became one of the stalwarts of the Canadian team in the just completed Canada Cup series.

Don Ashby also scored twice with Errol Thompson, Greg Hubick, Claire Alexander, Kurt Walker and Ian Turnbull adding one each. Gerry O'Flaherty scored for Vancouver.

In Wednesday's other NHL exhibitions, Buffalo Sabres dropped Boston Bruins 5-2, New York Islanders trimmed Philadelphia Flyers 5-2 and Los Angeles Kings defeated Cleveland Barons 5-3.

In World Hockey Association exhibitions, Phoenix Roadrunners topped Karpat, Finland, 7-3 and New England Whalers nipped Quebec Nordiques 4-3. In interlocking games, St. Louis Blues of the NHL stopped Edmonton Oilers of the WHA 5-4 and Washington Capitals of the NHL beat Cincinnati Stingers of the WHA 3-2.

Jim Lorentz put a pair of rebounds past Boston goalie Gil Gilbert and Gil Perreault had a goal and three assists to help the Sabres beat the Bruins, who were playing without regulars Brad Park, John Bucyk, Wayne Cashman, Rick Middleton and Mike Milbury.

Kings Win Fourth

By The Canadian Press

Brandon Wheat Kings went on a scoring binge while Calgary Centennials won a squeaker Wednesday night in the Western Canada Hockey League.

In Brandon, veteran centre Dan Bonar scored four times to lead the Wheat Kings to an 11-1 romp over Flin Flon Bombers while Calgary got three goals from Perry Turnbull to nip the Pats 7-6 and ruin Regina's league opener.

Brandon now has four wins in four games while the other three clubs in the Eastern Division are pointless.

Playing on home ice, the Wheat Kings took a 4-0 first-period lead and scored seven more goals in the final 20.

Dick Kerr, Ray Allison and Bill Derlago chipped in with two goals each while defenceman Wayne Ramsey added the other Brandon goal.

Wheat King goaltender Glen Hanlon lost his shutout with less than five minutes to play when he misjudged a slow, partly-screened wrist shot by Flin Flon's Brad Cox.

Burgess Back In Rugby Post

RUGBY

Well, Don Burgess' on-again, off-again job as Canada's first national coaching organizer for rugby is . . . on again!

After one year and almost 70,000 miles in the air and on the road, Burgess announced in June he was quitting the Canadian Rugby Union's O'Keefe-sponsored post and returning to his physical education teaching job at Parkland High School in Sidney.

The union advertised the job during the summer, received several applications but hadn't decided on a replacement when Burgess announced he'd reconsidered and decided to carry on for another year.

"The Saanich School Board felt it was fair to give me another year's leave of absence," Don said this week.

But he doesn't expect this time to have to face such a tremendous amount of travel as he did in his first year in the job.

"Last year I had four big trips in two weeks where I was travelling, doing surveys and meeting people," Burgess explains. "Now, this year I will just go to places where I have to conduct clinics."

Don's responsibilities for the first year were to establish and administer a coaching scheme for each of the provinces, using the National Coaching Development Program (for all sports in Canada) theory courses and his own know-how of the specific technical aspects of rugby coaching.

"Now we've set that up, it's just a matter of upgrading it from Level 1 to Level 2 and developing more coaching material," Burgess said.

"Last year I did a lot of head-to-head coaching with groups and individual players," he added. "But this year I want to concentrate more on the production of our own Canadian-made technical materials. I would like to see more coaching wall charts produced and film loops in which our own players — players like Ken Wilke and Hans de Goede of Victoria — are featured. This way we show people all across the country that we have Canadian-born players playing the game and doing a hell of a job."

Don is grateful to O'Keefes for coming up with the grant to make his position possible, and he feels it has already done a lot for Canadian rugby.

"O'Keefes are also going to pay for a major touring team to visit Canada every year," Don announced. "They will pay all the team's expenses and that's about a $50,000 donation to rugby."

It's a tremendous gesture on their part. The first team to come here under that scheme will be the England Under-23 side and CRU president Peter Clarke of Victoria is in England now setting up this tour."

And so Burgess, who for years has kept his own statistical records, has written a thesis on the history of the game in B.C., has been a keen player, is now coaching Oak Bay Wanderers and is more totally immersed in rugby than anyone I've met, will give it another year as Canada's coaching organizer. Then it's back to the classroom.

But it will be for only one more year, he says. Then there's a grin.

"You never know, of course, I might be so wrapped up in it by the end of the year . . . that I'll want to carry on!"

Heavyweight Title Vacant in Canada

Dantley Signs

Lasorda Dodger Boss

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers named their holler-guy third base coach, Tom Lasorda, Wednesday to succeed the quiet Walter Alston, who is retiring as manager of the baseball team after 23 seasons.

Lasorda, 49, had been the odds-on choice to become manager of the National League team, so the announcement by Dodgers president Peter O-Malley came as no surprise.

Alston, 64, will take another job with the Dodgers organization.

Lasorda has been with the Dodgers since 1948. A left-handed pitcher in his playing days, he was only 0-4 in the major leagues. That was much like Alston, who had just one time at bat and struck out before becoming a manager.

Lasorda has been Alston's third base coach since 1973 and managed for seven years in the Dodgers' minor league chain with five pennants to his credit.

Lasorda had turned down managerial offers from other clubs to remain with the Dodgers, obviously hoping to succeed Alston when the dean of major league managers finally stepped down.

O'Malley also announced that the coaching staff of Monte Basgall, Red Adams and Jim Gilliam has been rehired.

A great way to save is to buy Canada Savings Bonds. And a great place to buy them is where you work.

Once you join the Payroll Savings Plan, your bonds will be paid for by automatic deductions from your pay.

30¢ here, 30¢ there, it all adds up. For just 30¢ a day you can buy a $100 Canada Savings Bond on the Payroll Savings Plan. Buy $100, $500, $1,000, whatever.

The amount you save is up to you.

Security. Income. And flexibility.

It's the combination of these three benefits that makes Canada Savings Bonds a great way to save.

First, they're secure. Your savings are backed by all the resources of Canada.

They provide good income. Each $100 bond begins with $8.50 interest the first year and then pays $9.25 interest for each of the remaining eight years to maturity.

They're also flexible—you can buy them in amounts from $50 up to $15,000. And they're cashable anytime.

It's easy.

To sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan, you simply fill in the application form provided by your employer. The amount you wish to save will accumulate automatically.

Kelly Memorial To Murray Allen

Murray Allen, a winger with Esquimalt Legion who earned all-star selection in the South Vancouver Island Junior Hockey League last season, has been selected as the 11th winner of the Henry Bennett Kelly Memorial Trophy and scholarship.

Allen, an honor student at Esquimalt High School last year, will receive the award at Esquimalt Sports Centre Friday when the new SVIJHL season opens with a game at 8 p.m. between Esquimalt and the new Oak Bay squad.

First presented in 1966, the Kelly Trophy is awarded to a player in the Greater Victoria area involved in minor hockey up to the junior "B" level who is judged to have best combined scholastic excellence, hockey ability, sportsmanship, team leadership and assistance to development of other players.

To be used for continuing studies beyond high school graduation; the scholarship is again expected to be $150.

With the addition of Oak Bay and Mill Bay clubs, the league this season will be an eight-team circuit.

Mill Bay will see its first league action Saturday on home ice, meeting Fuller Lake at 8 p.m.

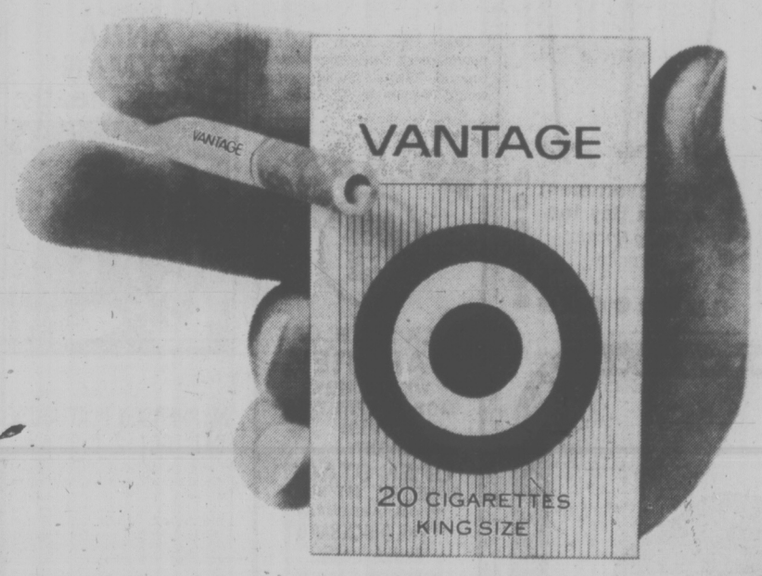
How many times have you decided to quit smoking?



At one time or another most people who smoke talk about giving it up.
Some, we don't know how many, actually stop. Others are simply not ready to lose forever the enjoyment a cigarette can bring.
If you are one of those who still value the pleasure of smoking, you might want to consider Vantage.
When you smoke Vantage you get the full, rich flavour of Virginia tobaccos. The unique Vantage filter, which is based on a new design concept, lets real taste come through. Vantage gives you so much of what you want in a cigarette with a lot less of what you don't want.
Vantage is not a heavy drag cigarette. You don't have to work hard getting the smoke through so that all the joy of smoking is lost.
Rich taste and easy draw. Good reasons for any thoughtful smoker to consider the new cigarette called Vantage.
We suggest you try a pack.
Warning: Health and Welfare Canada advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked—avoid inhaling. 11 mg. "tar" 0.8 mg. nicotine.

It's a Way to Make a Living!

MONTREAL — What kind of man ties himself to the outside of a DC-8 passenger jet and tries to hang on at 300 miles an hour?

The human fly, a 29-year-old Montreal man who refuses to divulge his real identity, says his weekend piggy-back atop the DC-8 in Dallas was a partial fulfillment of "a mission God has given me."

The fly told a news conference Wednesday that despite the injuries he suffered when his plane passed through a rainstorm, he intends to continue his stunts "until I'm 60."

More than 30,000 people turned out at an airshow last weekend to see The Fly — resplendent in red tights and sequined white cape — try to break his own record of 15 minutes at 225 m.p.h.

But when the plane reached 4,000 feet and 250 m.p.h., it was forced to fly through a squall, with raindrops "striking him with the force of pebbles," promoter David Levine said.

The flight lasted 26 minutes but "I lost consciousness after the first few minutes into the squall," the Fly said.

"The last thing I remember seeing were bolts of lightning all around me. I regained consciousness after we landed."

The Fly said he suffered burns and bruises to the left side of his body, but "I'll be back in about two weeks."

Why does the Fly do this?

"I lost my wife and child in a car accident several years ago, and 60 per cent of the bones in my body were mangled," he says from the comfort of his promoter's living room.

"I spent four years in hospital, where they replaced many of the damaged bones with steel parts. They had told me I would never walk again, but I walked out of there on my own just out of sheer determination.

"Now I have to provide an inspiration to all those people that are in hospital, supposedly without hope."

And while promoters will not be pinned down on exact figures, they say the Fly gives 50 per cent of his income to charity — "I want to do what Jerry Lewis does with his muscular dystrophy telethons.

"I want the Fly's name to bring in millions to help people."

But Joseph Ramacieri, a local businessman and one of the Fly's three financial backers, has his own reasons.

"I'm a businessman looking for a return on some adventure capital I had."

SAILOR, BEWARE: TIMES CHANGING

GENEVA — Seamen are supposed to have a girl in every port, but, says the International Labour Organization, "shore leave is not what it used to be." In a report by ILO director-general Francis Blanchard, the agency said shorter spells in ports — which now generally are built away from cities and their amusements — are responsible for a "wastage rate" of up to 33 per cent of new seamen. Less opportunity for amusements during shore leave adds stress and boredom to the work, the report said.

CARACAS — Orlando Letelier, former Chilean foreign minister assassinated in Washington last week when a bomb tore his car apart, was buried here Wednesday.

KENT, Wash. — Police Chief Jay Skewes says the city jail is too popular. So, he says, as of now, only peple arrested inside the city limits will be kept in the jail, which on a typical weekday has been holding two to five prisoners from outside the jurisdiction. It costs Kent $10 a day for each prisoner.

WASHINGTON — Sen. Hubert Humphrey enters Bethesda Naval Hospital this weekend for tests to determine whether tumors should be removed from his bladder. Humphrey, '65, has had the conditon for several years but it is not expected to affect his campaign for re-election.

EDMONTON — Senator James Harper Prowse, 63, leader of the Alberta Liberal party from 1947 to 1958, died Monday. He was appointed to the Senate by Lester Pearson in 1966.

Embalming For Mao

PEKING — The body of Mao Tse-tung is to be embalmed for posterity, says a Chinese official who lives near the birthplace of the late chairman of the Chinese Communist party.

The official told foreigners visiting the central city of Changsha that the Chinese leader's remains would be preserved, but did not say where they would be enshrined.

He also said that since Mao's death the number of visitors to his birthplace in the village of Shaoshan has soared to 20,000 a day from 2,000.

There has been no announcement following Maos's funeral Sept. 18 on what would happen to his body.

PRINCESS TAKES OVER

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips formally took possession Wednesday of Gatcombe Park, a 730-acre Cotswold Hills estate and Cotswold Hills estate and manor house which Queen Elizabeth bougth the couple for a reported $680,000.

The couple are not expected to move in before this January, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said. "It still needs an awful lot doing to it," the spokesman said.

Adolf Not Popular

HAMBURG (AP) — Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler has received the lowest rating from young West Germans asked to give their opinion of various persons and fictional characters.

Reporting Wednesday on the opinion survey by the Emnid Institute, Stern magazine said 1,000 young West Germans were asked to identify 29 persons from their photographs and to give them a sympathy rating.

Ratings were on a scale from one to five—the lower the number the more favorable the rating.

The least popular and their average scores were Hitler, 4.1, and West German anarchist Ulrike Meinhof, who hanged herself in prison last May, 3.8.

Frankenstein's monster and Franz-Josef Strauss, former defence minister and head of the Bavarian branch of West Germany's major conservative opposition party, tied at 3.2.

Among the most popular were: Mittermaier, and Schweitzer, both 1.7; the Cookie Monster from the Sesame Street television series, 2.1.; West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, a Social Democrat, 2.2; U.S. President Ford and West German Social Democratic and former chancellor Willy Brandt, each 2.6.

Greeks Make Vegetables Into an Art

FOOD & nutrition

Vegetables make tasty main courses in Greek cuisine

The Greeks have developed the art of growing excellent produce and have perfected vegetable cookery to its optimum quality. Greek dishes are simple yet imaginatively seasoned, with spices and oils to enhance natural taste and aroma. The taste is often distinguished by the addition of a tangy tomato-onion sauce, seasoned with garlic and parsley. Depending on your food preferences, these dishes can be served alone "vegetarian style" or combined with meat in a variety of ways.

There are many vegetable dishes, but the discriminating shopper is careful to select only the freshest vegetables for the menu.

Eggplant at its best must be firm to the touch so that it will soak up less oil and butter when the vegetable is fried. Look for a narrower shape and make sure the end opposite the stem is not green (a sure sign of an eggplant that is not sufficiently ripened). Olive oil conveys to food its own special flavors, and the best oil is extracted from the first pressing of the fresh-ripe olives.

Tomatoes are at their most succulent when not refrigerated. They have a tendency to lose some of their special flavor when chilled. Zucchini, available year round in Canada, is usually at its best when the vegetable is slender and firm. Use only the best ingredients for the freshest taste!

Served hot or cold, these Greek vegetable dishes are ideal for entertaining. They can be easily prepared ahead of time and placed in the freezer or refrigerator to be enjoyed when summer guests begin to arrive.

Deliciously sweet sun-ripened tomatoes make a most appealing appetizer, when served with Feta cheese or with a plate of stuffed grape leaves or smoked fish. Olives are also excellent appetizers or dish additives. Look for interesting and varied Greek varieties such as the Kalamato olive. All are exotic yet simple answers to your entertaining worries.

Leftovers are used widely and wisely in Greek cuisine. The flavor of yesterday's dish is generally enhanced by reheating. Additional vegetables and meats can be added to create a totally different taste, and to stretch the meal.

STUFFED TOMATOES— YEMISTES DOMATES LADERES

12 tomatoes
Pinch of sugar
3 onions, grated
1½ cups olive oil
⅓ cup parsley, chopped
½ cup chopped dill
½ cup raisins or currants
½ cup pignolia nuts
Salt and pepper
1 cup rice
½ cup water

Wash tomatoes and scoop out pulp, save caps. Sprinkle inside of tomatoes with salt and sugar. Saute onions in ½ cup of the olive oil until soft. Mix onions, parsley, dill, raisins or currants, pignolia nuts, rice and 1 cup of the olive oil. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Fill tomatoes with this mixture. Cover with tomato caps and place in casserole with remaining ½ cup of olive oil and the water. Weigh down tomatoes with heavy plate. Cover casserole and simmer for about 30 minutes or until rice is done. Serve cold; 12 servings.

EGGPLANT — AUBERGINES IMAM BAYELDI

4 medium or 2 large aubergines (eggplants)
1 clove of garlic
4 onions
4 Tomatoes
Olive oil for frying

To prepare aubergines, remove the hard stalky end, peel fairly thinly lengthwise, in strips, leaving three or four of the strips on to prevent aubergine from falling to pieces during the cooking. Finally, make about half a dozen lengthwise slits right through the centre. Fry gently in olive oil until golden.

In another pan, fry until golden brown and finely chopped onions, tomatoes and garlic (you need about twice as much as is required to stuff the aubergines). Fill the slits with half this stuffing, lay the aubergines in a casserole and pour the remainder of the stuffing over them. Bake slowly in a moderate oven until onion is thoroughly cooked and the aubergine feels soft but still holds together. Leave to cool and serve cold with baked beans or cold stewed French haricots blancs. Note: If using one large aubergine between, always divide it lengthwise.

EGGPLANT SALAD — MELITZANOSALATA

3 large eggplants
1 small onion, chopped
Salt and pepper
1 cup olive-oil
1½ tablespoon vinegar
Parsley, chopped
Tomato wedges
Black olives

Bake eggplants in moderate 350 degrees oven for about one hour or until soft. Remove skin and chop flesh. In a bowl, combine eggplant — salt — pepper — olive-oil — vinegar and mix well. Garnish with chopped parsley, tomato wedges and black olives. 6-8 servings.

TZATZIKI SALAD

1 thinly chopped-up cucumber mixed to a thick combination of 2 cups of yoghurt, ½ cup olive-oil
3-4 crushed cloves of garlic
Salt and pepper.

GREEK SALAD — SALATA

The traditional Greek salad consists of green lettuce, chicory, escarole, romaine, endive, etc. — chopped or torn into bite-size pieces, wedges of tomato, slices of cucumber, green pepper, sliced onions, radishes, chopped parsley, anchovies, black olives, caper and feta cheese (made of goat milk). Any or all of these ingredients may be used. A large wooden salad bowl rubbed with garlic could be used. The dressing consists of 1 part lemon juice or wine vinegar to 3 parts olive oil, salt and pepper. A sprinkling of oregano or dried mint may be added. Fresh mint gives the salad a delightful flavor.

HAZARD TO CHILDREN

OTTAWA (CP) — The pull tab on aluminum beverage cans can be hazardous to young children, says an article in a recent issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

The article says American researchers have documented seven cases of children who had either swallowed or aspirated (drew in when breathing) the tabs and were seriously injured.

In one of these cases an 11-month-old baby died from a hemmorrhage caused when the pull tab the child swallowed pierced through its windpipe and punctured a major blood vessel.

The article advises doctors with young patients who have unexplained breathing problems or a change in eating pattern to ask for a careful x-ray assessment, because aluminum strips don't show up well in x-rays.

GOLD SEALS FIGHT QUACK HEALTH BOOKS

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Using "gold seals" as ammunition, a Vancouver group is fighting back against a flood of what it calls "faddy, quacky" health and diet books hitting the market.

"At best they're misleading nonsense," says Judy Toews, a spokesman for the British Columbia Nutrition Council. "At worst they're downright dangerous. They can even kill."

The council, a private organization of dietitians, home economists and nutritionists promoting nutritional health, is urging bookstores and libraries to fix round gold seals to the covers of books it approves in the often-controversial field of nutrition.

"The response has been extremely positive," said Mrs. Toews. "Libraries and bookbuyers have been enthusiastic about getting our help. I can see us getting into an area where we could require an enormous number of stickers."

The scheme is believed to be the first of its kind in Canada but council members emphasize the campaign is to guide — not censor — the public's choice in reading.

Mrs. Toews, a former home economics teacher who holds a master's degree in nutrition, said a popular — but potentially dangerous — "theme nowadays calls for "megadoses" of nutrients, particularly vitamins.

"A lot of people are suggesting megavitamins can cure certain illnesses and other problems," she said.

"Generally speaking, any recommendation of megadoses of nutrients for the public is a bad idea. Some vitamins and minerals are toxic in large amounts and can cause death if people take too much of them.

"That's just one of the things to watch out for."

Mrs. Toews also condemned weight-loss books which advocate "ketogenic" diets high in proteins and-or fats and low in carbohydrates.

"That adds up to a highly unbalanced diet," sshe said.

"It can result in a state in which a lot of fatty particles are floating around in the bloodstream. There is a lot of stress on the kidneys and problems can result there.

"It also can lead to fatigue and nausea."

Mrs. Toews also criticized single-food diets such as the "grapefruit diet" and other "miracle diets" which claim fast weight reductions.

CANCER CAN BE PREVENTED

Last year 36,500 Canadians died of Cancer. This year, some 65,000 new cases will be diagnosed. Finding a cure for cancer has become an obsession with North Americans because it is the disease we fear most. But so far, the search for a cure for cancer hasn't been going very well. In the midst of all this bad news, the October issue of Reader's Digest has some good news — there are ways to reduce your chance of getting cancer! Don't miss Cancer Can Be Prevented, one of 34 articles and features in the October issue of Reader's Digest. At your newsstand today!

Ripe Olive Cocktail 'Cake'

1½ cups canned pitted ripe olives
1 (8 oz.) pkg. cream cheese
1 tblsp. milk
½ tsp. prepared mustard
¼ tsp. dill weed
2 drops liquid red pepper seasoning
1 (8 oz.) pkg. cold pack cheddar cheese food
1 tblsp. finely chopped green onion
1 tblsp. finely chopped parsley
1 tsp. prepared horseradish
1 (8 oz.) pkg. sliced bologna (6 to 7 slices)
1 (8 oz.) pkg. sliced salami or thuringer (6 to 7 slices)

Set aside 16 whole olives for garnish. Chop remainder finely. Soften cream cheese, and mix well with milk, mustard, dill weed and red pepper seasoning. Stir in half the chopped olives. Mix cheddar cheese food with onion, parsley, horseradish and remaining chopped olives. Spread cream cheese mixture on bologna.

Spread cheddar cheese mixture on salami or thuringer slices of matching size. Stack slices together alternately, making two stacks. Chill before cutting. Cut each stack into 8 wedges, and top each wedge with a whole olive on a pick. Makes 16 servings.

Filling Frankfurter Frittata

6 tblsp. butter
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
½ green pepper, minced
4 frankfurters, cut into very thin rounds
6 eggs, beaten
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 tblsp. minced parsley

Heat butter in a large, heavy frying pan and cook the onion and green pepper in it for 3 minutes or until soft. Add the frankfurters. Cook over low heat, stirring often, for 5 minutes or until the frankfurters are golden brown. Add the eggs, Parmesan, salt, pepper and parsley. Mix well.

Cook until the eggs are set. Cut into wedges and serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

Variations Unlimited with Pork Chops

New York Times

We have a special liking for foods that adapt themselves to a multitude of flavors and seasonings, and pork chops most assuredly fall into that category. They have a chameleon-like capacity for changing flavor in skillet or casserole to agree with other foods — tomatoes and peppers, or a good brand of mustard combined with those green peppercorns that have become so popular within the past few years, or apples flamed with Calvados. These three combinations are the essence of the recipes outlined here. The pork and apple dish is from Normandy; the pork, tomato and pepper dish, adapted from Mexico, and the chops with mustard, a basically French concept.

Pork Chops Normandy Style

6 one-inch loin pork chops, about one-half pound each
Salt and freshly ground pepper
3 firm, not too sweet, cooking apples, about one pound
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon finely chopped shallots
3 tablespoons Calvados (French apple brandy) or other applejack
Three-quarters cup heavy cream.

1. Trim the chops of excess fat, but leave a rim of fat about half an inch thick. Sprinkle the chops with salt and pepper to taste.

2. Peel the apples and slice into halves. Remove the stems and core. Cut the apple halves into quarters, then into eighths. Set aside.

3. Heat a heavy skillet large enough to hold the chops in one layer. Add the chops fat side down. This will grease the skillet sufficiently so that more fat will not be necessary for cooking. Cook the chops six to eight minutes or until nicely browned on one side. Turn them and continue browning on the other side for about eight minutes. The chops should cook 20 to 25 minutes in all. Remove the chops and keep them warm. Pour off the fat from the skillet.

4. Heat the butter in the skillet and add the apple wedges. Cook, shaking the skillet, for about two minutes. Add the shallots and cook briefly. Add the Calvados and cook briefly. Add the cream and bring to the boil for about one minute. Add salt and pepper to taste. Place the chops on a hot platter and pour the hot sauce over all.

Yield: Six servings.

Pork Chops with Mustard and Green Peppercorn Sauce

8 centre-cut pork chops, about one-half pound each
Salt and freshly ground pepper
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon peanut, vegetable or corn oil
Two-thirds cup finely diced carrots
Two-thirds cup finely diced onion
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
1 bay leaf
1 sprig fresh thyme or ½ teaspoon dried
1 cup dry white wine
1 cup chicken broth
1 tablespoon imported mustard such as Dijon or Dusseldorf
1 tablespoon green peppercorns
2 tablespoons capers
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley.

1. Sprinkle the chops on both sides with salt and pepper to taste. Blend the flour and paprika, and dredge the chops with the mixture.

2. Heat the oil in a heavy skillet and brown the chops on both sides, about five minutes to a side.

3. Pour off the fat from the skillet and sprinkle the chops with the carrots, onion and garlic. Add the bay leaf and thyme. Add the wine and chicken broth and cover. Cook over low heat for about one hour.

4. Remove the chops. Stir the mustard into the pan drippings. Bring exactly to the boil, but do not boil. Add the peppercorns, capers and parsley. Serve hot over the chops.

Yield: Eight servings.

Pork Chops a la Mexicaine

6 loin pork chops, about one and one-half inches thick, weighing almost one-half pound each
3 cups chopped onions
2 tablespoons finely chopped garlic
2 tablespoons chili powder
8 cups red or green sweet (bell) peppers, cored, seeded and cut into strips
2 cups imported canned tomatoes, drained and put through a food mill, blender or food processor
2 or 3 chipotle chilies, available canned in specialty stores, optional.

1. Sprinkle the chops on both sides with salt and pepper to taste.

2. Use one or two heavy skillets. Do not add grease, but run the fat side of the chops around in the skillet to grease it. Add the chops and cook about 10 minutes or until golden grown on one side. Turn and cook about five minutes longer. Distribute the onions and garlic around and between the chops. Let onions and garlic wilt briefly, then sprinkle chops with chili powder.

3. Scatter the peppers on top and add the tomatoes. Add the chilies and cover. Cook about one hour and add salt and pepper to taste. Cover once more and cook 15 minutes longer or until the chops are tender.

4. Remove the chops to a hot platter and keep warm. Tilt the skillet and, using a large spoon, skim off most of the surface fat. Serve the remaining sauce separately or on top of the chops. Serve, if desired, with cumin rice.

Yield: Six servings.

By Lynn and Joel Rapp

DEAR LYNN AND JOEL: Are dropping leaves a sign of not enough light or overwatering? I've read conflicting reports. Please set me straight so I can know where I went wrong. — L. R.

DEAR L.R.: There is no simple answer because there are so many variables in plant care. Dropping leaves can be from lack of light, underwatering and-or plant disease. Insufficient humidity causes lower leaves to drop off as new ones appear. For example, Dieffenbachia Plants in pots that are too small will often lose lower leaves as the plant grows.

You didn't mention what kind of plant you have, so we advise that you examine what's gone awry by process of elimination. A good place to start is not enough light. Usually the leaves on a plant will turn yellow if it's been overwatered.

Inexpensive Yet Elegant

If you are a young or old couple and are economizing this Eggs Florentine is for you. If you are entertaining one guest it will stretch for three.

It may be made in the morning and refrigerated until one-half hour before mealtime.

EGGS FLORENTINE

1½ c. fine noodles (packed)
½ tsp. salt
4 c. boiling water
one 10-oz. pkg. spinach
1 tsp. lemon juice
3 large hard-cooked eggs

Mock Hollandaise:

2 tbsp. butter
1½ tbsp. flour
¼ tsp. salt
1 c. milk
1 beaten egg
1 tsp. lemon juice

Cook the noodles in the salted water until very tender — 25 minutes. Drain. Tip into buttered shallow medium-size oblong or oval casserole.

Wash spinach, drain and cook in covered pot with only the water clinging to leaves to 6 minutes, turning over once. Chop. Drain well. Spread over noodles. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon lemon juice.

Make Mock Hollandaise by blending together butter, flour and salt then stir in milk-cooking until thick. Add lemon juice to beaten egg. Add 1 heaped tablespoon hot sauce to it and stir quickly, then stir into hot sauce using wire whip until thicker and smooth. While hot pour all of it over eggs allowing some edges of eggs to show. Most of the spinach should be visible too.

Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 20 to 25 minutes until bubbly and tinged with gold. Before serving decorate sides with rings of green pepper or strips of pimiento or tomato wedges.

YARMOUTH COOKIES

1 c. oil
1 c. brown sugar
2 eggs
1 c. all-purpose flour
1 c. whole wheat flour
2 c. rolled oats
3 tbsp. milk
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. nutmeg
2-3 c. chocolate chips
2-3 c. chopped peanuts
2-3 c. raisins

Beat together oil, sugar and eggs. Add all remaining ingredients. Drop onto buttered cookie sheets at least 2" apart as they spread a little. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 10 to 12 minutes, but watch them. Do not let edges burn. Makes five dozen.

YARMOUTH LAZY DAY CAKE

¼ c. margarine
¾ c. brown sugar
¾ c. white sugar
2 eggs
1¼ c. stirred but unsifted all-purpose flour
1 c. whole wheat flour
4 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
¼ c. orange juice

TOPPING

grated rind 1 orange
¾ c. brown sugar
½ c. soft margarine
½ c. chopped nuts

Cream together margarine and sugars. Beat in eggs. Mix together flours, baking powder and salt and add these dry ingredients to the creamed mixture alternately with the liquids. Pour into buttered 8 or 9" square pan. Mix Topping ingredients and sprinkle evenly over top. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 35 minutes.

Free For The Asking

By HARRIET HART

These days everybody finds it difficult to feel reasonably happy.

The "Seven Steps To Living Better Emotionally" stresses that sooner or later all of us run into problems. How well we can cope, shows the degree of our emotional maturity.

The first requirement, says the pamphlet, is to face reality. Reality means the world in which we live with all its loneliness, dishonesty, disappointments and losses. The way to deal effectively with reality is to make constructive compromises.

One step to emotional well-being is to adapt to change. Mature people are able to adjust to the many changes they meet almost every day.

Another advice is to give of yourself. Each person should have a cause, a goal in life that is constructive and keeps him busy.

It is also important that we consider others. The pamphlet says that among the character traits which have a bearing on our capacity to have good relationships with others, the most important is sincerity. Others are integrity, honesty, fairness, dependability, modesty and the ability to accept criticism.

The pamphlet offers much more advice on how to live better emotionally.

Who's Aggressive?

DEAR ABBY: I never could understand why it was considered improper for a girl to ask a guy for a date.

I'm a 21-year-old college man who would feel flattered if a girl let me know that she wanted to go out with me. I'm not a creep, and I get my share of dates, but I see nothing wrong with girls being on an equal basis with men when it comes to the dating game.

Why can't the girl be the aggressor if she so chooses? And why is it considered "wrong" for a girl to pursue a guy?

HIGHPOCKETS

DEAR HIGHPOCKETS: where have you been? Plenty of girls ask guys out. (More girls ask guys "over" instead because there's no tab to pick up, which takes the pressure off both of them.)

And many girls ARE the aggressors and don't feel the need to apologize for it.

What this world needs is more up-front people who aren't ashamed to say, "I like you." It doesn't matter who says it first. Girls are people, and people shouldn't play games. They should express affection honestly, naturally and without embarrassment.

DEAR ABBY: For those who are shocked that a non-virgin bride wants to wear white at her wedding: What would they suggest? Tattletale gray?

AMUSED

DEAR AMUSED: Why not? And she could carry daisies. They don't tell.

DEAR ABBY: I know I'm not perfect when it comes to grammar and pronunciation, but I have this friend who is an absolute disgrace in that department.

She still says "Woolsworth" and I must have corrected her a hundred times. Another mistake she has made for years is saying "Eximo Pie" instead of "Eskimo Pie."

Abby, in a way you are a teacher, so I'm calling on you to take over my job.

Why do people insist on saying they had their dog "spaded," and a man has "prostrate" trouble, after being corrected a dozen or more times?

SICK OF TEACHING

DEAR SICK: Some people don't want to learn, and others are simply ineducable. Don't sweat it.

Orange Juice: 'C' What You Get

By DR. JEAN MAYER and DR. JOHANNA DWYER

Q. I am really curious about whether frozen orange juice and the pasteurized variety that comes in a cardboard container are nutritionally equal to the good old-fashioned fresh-squeezed orange juice I was raised on.

A. Recently, a group of laboratory investigators decided to measure the amounts of each of the three forms of ascorbic acid, or vitamin C, in samples of fresh, frozen and pasteurized orange juice. They found that fresh orange juice contained between 76 and 85 milligrams of ascorbic acid per 100 milliliters (that's about three and one-half ounces). The frozen contained from 63 to 77 milligrams per 100 milliliters. And pasteurized had only 42 to 60 milligrams per 100 milliliters.

It is important to consider these findings from a practical point of view, however. First, the adult Recommended Dietary Allowance for ascorbic acid is 45 milligrams. Thus, even a four-ounce glass of the juice containing the least vitamin C would just meet the daily requirement.

The differences in ascorbic acid content need not play an important part in deciding which type of orange juice you choose. Just make sure it's the real thing and not a "fruit drink." Fruit drinks may or may not provide vitamin C, and those that do may be poor sources of potassium, which is always present in real juices.

Also, while most of us tend to feel that orange juice is the primary source of vitamin C, there are many other fruits and vegetables that supply generous amounts. These include green peppers, cantaloupe, broccoli, grapefruit and strawberries. Even a medium-size baked potato can provide nearly half of a day's vitamin C requirement.

Q. About five months ago, I became discouraged about my bulges of fat and decided to lose my excess weight as quickly as possible. I began following a crash diet and lost about 40 pounds in three months.

I look and feel much better, but recently, I've begun to lose considerable amounts of hair. Could this be a delayed effect of my diet?

A. Quite possibly, although you really should see your doctor so he can be sure it isn't from some other cause.

Normally, scalp hair passes through three stages: 1) the growing, or anogen, phase, which lasts as much as six years or longer; 2) the resting, or catagen, phase, a short transition period of two or three weeks; 3) a resting, or telogen, phase which lasts a few months until the hairs which are now dead are pushed out of the follicles by new hairs growing underneath.

The abnormal loss of these telogen hairs, or telogen effluvium as it is called, can be caused by a number of conditions including crash dieting.

In a recent study, nine cases were described in which profuse loss of hair occurred up to five months after the patients began crash-diet programs. Admittedly, this is a small sample, and additional controlled studies are necessary to confirm the observations described. But this may ultimately prove to be just one more argument against a crash diet.

Incidentally, every patient who lost hair grew a healthy head back once he resumed eating normally.

Quick Blanching Not Destructive

QUESTION:

I have a vegetable garden, and want to freeze large quantities of vegetables for the winter. All the literature I have read on freezing states that vegetables must be blanched before freezing. Does this process destroy some of the nutrients?

ANSWER:

The blanching process involves immersing vegetables into boiling water for a time period that varies, depending on the type of vegetable. Vegetables must be blanched before freezing since they contain chemical substances called enzymes, which if not inactivated by blanching, will cause undesirable changes in the flavour colour, and texture of the vegetables when frozen. Blanching causes some loss in food value, but if the recommended blanching times are followed, the frozen vegetable, when cooked, should compare favourably in nutrient value with the cooked fresh vegetable.

QUESTION:

Should people cut down on the amount of carbohydrate and fat in their diets as they become older, even if they are in good health?

ANSWER:

Yes. As an adult becomes older, fewer calories are needed, although the need for protein, vitamins, and minerals remains the same. Thus it is wise to eat a variety of fruits, vegetables, cereal products, meat and meat alternates and milk products, but to cut down on starches, sugars and fats. Starchy foods, fried foods and fats are common causes of digesetive upsets among older people too.

QUESTION:

What is the difference between bleached and unbleached white flour?

ANSWER:

Flour that is freshly milled contains certain pigments that naturally oxidize and whiten within two to three months. Flour that is labeled "bleached" has had bleaching agents added in order to remove the pigments more quickly and thus decrease the need for the costly warehouse storage required for the "unbleached" flour.

Diamond Lil Was Quite a Gal

elizabeth forbes

Diamond Tooth Lil died in June, 1975, at a Washington State nursing home in Yakima, when she was 94 years old.

Yet, up in the Yukon, she is still very much alive.

When I was in Whitehorse recently I heard of her when I talked to old-timers. I found her in the archives at the new territorial building, where Jean Cook pulled out a file on Diamond Lil, to substantiate the stories I had been told.

In the Yukon Historical Society's MacBride Museum I saw more evidence of her triumphs.

There I was reminded that as "toast of the Sourdoughs" she appeared under many different names in the writings of Jack London, Rex Beech and Robert Service.

Sorting out all the stories I can assure you (if you do not already know) that Diamond Lil literally did have "a million dollar smile." She spent a fortune having diamonds implanted in her front teeth.

Also that her prized collection of jewelry included a famous white gold "snake" studded with 125 diamonds which she always wore entwined around the full length of her arm.

You've guessed, of course, that Diamond Lil (born Honora Ornstein, in a prominent family with a huge cattle butchering business in Butte, Montana) was what the old-timers in Whitehorse still name as "a dance hall queen."

That, I suggest, is putting it mildly.

Actually she was a favorite of Alex Pantages, who ballooned an Alaska-Yukon dance hall fortune into a million dollar vaudeville circuit. And while she was singing and dancing as a Pantages' headliner, she was also making "millions" operating houses of prostitution in Dawson City, in those gold-rush days of 1897-98.

During the 1920s, she came "outside" to Seattle and became an apartment house owner.

At least, that was the way she described it. (Up north the old-timers wink when they tell you that.)

Her first husband was said to be Robert Ernest Snelgrove of Seattle. The next, George Miller, brother of Dave Miller, who managed a middleweight boxer, Frreddie Steele.

She divorced Miller in 1928, one week before receiving word that she had inherited $150,000 from her mother who died in Los Angeles.

That money, she said, would be used to form a dramatic stock company in Seattle. Whether the company ever materialized no one seemed to know.

Lil did not make headlines again until 1935 when friends began whispering about her strange behavior.

She developed a passion for leaving wills that almost rivalled her passion for diamonds.

Every time she fell in love with someone she would bequeath him her fortune. She would make a will one day, renounce the heirs, destroy the will and make another the next day. She also literally showered her favorites with diamonds.

Safety deposit boxes throughout Seattle held her jewels and her money. And when she wanted to visit one of those boxes and to remove some of the jewels or some money, she began to take two taxis, one to ride in, the other to follow, just in case.

Eventually she became increasingly vague and late in the 1930s was committed to the Western State Hospital for the Mentally Ill at Steilacoom, Wash.

Years later (in 1961) her attorney and guardian, Raymond D. Ogden, Sr., told a Supreme Court judge, Lil was broke and he asked that the state take care of her, without charge, for the remaining years of her life.

Ogden said that not only was her money exhausted, but her diamonds were gone, including the ones in her front teeth and the famed diamond-studded, white-gold snake.

He also indicated he had trouble marketing those diamonds because so many balked at wearing them as they had belonged to "that woman."

Last year, when the notice of Honora Ornstein's death appeared in a Yakima paper, there were no known relatives to mourn and few in that area who knew anything about her.

In the Yukon, on the other hand, that name quickly was connected with a time when men from the creeks were in town and headed for the bright-lighted saloons, their pokes bursting with gold.

Honora Ornstein is buried in a simple grave at Yakima. But it's Diamond Tooth Lil they still toast in Whitehorse, as a legend of a bygone Golden North!

Postscript — Something else I learned up in Whitehorse — that some who read this column may already know. There really was a Sam McGee walking the streets of that town, when Robert Service wrote of his cremation.

It seems Service had another name when he first wrote the poem, but he wasn't quite satisfied wth it. Somehow, it didn't fit.

The real McGee was developing the Conrad Mine at Windy Point near the town, and he was a regular customer in the Bank of Commerce, where Service worked.

The two men knew each other. Service liked McGee's name much better than the one he had written. And, without asking, he used it in the poem.

As old-timers in Whitehorse tell it now — McGee was a good sport. When the poem appeared he "laughed it off and went on his way."

Needless to say, he was never the victim of the Service cremation.

The log cabin where McGee lived during his Whitehorse days, is still standing and is now pointed out to visitors as part of the history of the territory.

No Celebration

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Civil Rights Commission vetoed a suggestion that it celebrate its 10th anniversary with a $10-a-plate dinner.

"We're two years behind in investigating cases," said Executive Director Thomas Mann Jr. "I'm not sure we'd get a good image by celebrating."

CHICKEN ORIENTAL

Low in calories.

cup bottled teriyaki sauce
¼ cup dry sherry
4 slices (each the size of a quarter) fresh ginger root, minced
4 scallions, thinly sliced
2 tblsp. cornstarch blended with 2 tblsp. water.

Disjoint chicken; with a cleaver, cut it up so there are 4 pieces of breast, 4 pieces of thigh, 4 pieces of backbone. Disjoint the wings and chop off the ends of the drumsticks. Use a steamer, whose upper pan has a solid bottom with perforations at top of sides; if bottom is open, use a shallow heatproof dish that will fit over rack in bottom pan.

Stir together the remaining ingredients except the cornstarch mixture. Layer the chicken in the upper pan, spooning the sauce mixture over it. Add water to bottom of steamer; if bottom is open make sure water does not touch dish holding chicken. Cover steamer tightly. Boil until chicken is cooked through — 45 to 60 minutes.

Remove chicken and keep warm. Pour liquid into a measure; skim off some of the fat; if necessary add enough clear fat-free chicken stock to make 2 cups; turn into a small saucepan and stir in the cornstarch mixture; stir constantly over moderate heat until thickened and boiling and pour over chicken. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Those who do not play duplicate ridge will be aghast at the East-West bidding in today's deal, which was played in a duplicate game. While it would be untrue to say that the East-West bidding was typical duplicate-bridge bidding, it is a fact that many more necks are stuck out (and broken) in duplicate bridge than in rubber bridge.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	1 ♡	Dbl.	Pass
Pass	Rdbl.	Pass	2 ◇
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♡.

By any standard, North's one-heart overcall was an atrocious bid. His redouble, known as an "SOS" bid, was a command to partner to name the latter's longest suit (if North were content to play the hand at one heart, doubled, he would simply pass). When South dutifully emitted a (quavering) two-diamond bid, West quite naturally doubled.

Dummy's king of hearts was played on the opening lead, and East's ace won the trick. East made a terrific play when he led the nine of trumps at trick two. When South played low, West's ten captured the trick. Then came the ace, king and queen of trumps, removing all the trumps in the deck.

The ace of clubs was cashed next, felling dummy's king, after which a club was led to East's queen. To make a longer story shorter, at the conclusion of play the defenders had taken all 13 tricks, and South was down 1,500 points.

When the deal was replayed some 12 times during the course of the evening, no other North-South pair entered into the bidding. Each of the 12 East-West pairs, with one exception, arrived at a small-slam contract in either clubs or notrump (the exception arrived at seven notrump, which failed when an unsuccessful finesse against the club king was taken).

In each case the small-slam contract was fulfilled, with the spade queen, the heart king, and the diamond jack all being favorably located. But the score for making six notrump was "only" 990 points. So the pair that scored 1,500 points for defeating the doubled two-diamond contract had the best East-West result on the deal.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, October 1

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on promotion, advancement, standing in community, added prestige. One in authority pays compliment. You also gain more compensation for job you do. Capricorn, Cancer persons could be in picture. You get involved. And this applies to personal and professional activities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good Moon aspect coincides now with travel, special study, long-distance communications. You get better distribution, display. You can successfully advertise and publish. Submit campaign, concept, manuscript. Your audience is wider — you can broaden personal horizons.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Get to heart of matters — dig deep and you could strike pay dirt. Partner, mate is involved in money venture that has effect on you. Leo, Aquarius and Sagittarius could be in picture. Be direct, original and maintain stance of independence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may be drawn in two directions. Key is to be patient, especially where partner mate, legal agreement might be concerned. Plainly, it is best now to let others take initiative. Be alert for subtle hints, clues, signals. You'll understand!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be versatile — give full play to intelectual curiosity. Means ask questions and obtain answers. Social activity accelerates. Popularity is on upswing. Accent on diet, health, special services, job and getting together with those who share interests.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Creative forces surge forward — personal magnetism is much in evidence. Change, travel, special relationships are featured. Do some reviewing, revising, rebuilding. Children play important roles. Don't discount views of young persons.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 11): Study Virgo message. Build on solid base. Perceive potential. Take long-range view. Accent on finish of basic transaction, home, values, one of the parents. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons could be very much in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Relatives, domestic area, short trips and visits are emphasized. Call or message could cause you to "change direction." Taurus, Libra individuals could figure prominently. Family member wants to discuss plan or problem. Be receptive — and diplomatic.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on payments, collections, settlement of tax or financial question. See as is, not merely as you wish things might be. If you eliminate traces of self-deception, you succeed. Pisces, Virgo could be in picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cycle high — timing improves, circumstances turn in your favor. You get more plaudits and money. Organize, build, accept reins of authority. You get pulse of public, you perceive what should be done and when to do it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What happens behind scenes has more meaning than usual. Know it and be alert to signals, subtle indications, secrets that are deliberately leaked. Aires, Libra and Cancer individuals could be part of scenario.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on new ideas, fresh concepts, dealings with close neighbors and relatives. Movement, messages are on agenda. Short trip could be result of unusual call. Be versatile, flexible. Permit natural sensitivity, intuitive intellect to surface.

IF OCTOBER 1st IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, independent, original, artistic, stubborn, temperamental and attractive to opposite sex. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. October could be a month in which you come baack, shake off emotional lethargy and a time when emotional wound heal.

'Tremendous Relief' in Escaping EMI

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Although crippled from the waist down, Theresa Anne Worth testified in B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday she feels "a tremendous relief mentally" that she is finally out of the Eric Martin Institute.

Driven by a fear of losing complete touch with reality and exhaustion by an almost total inability to sleep, Miss Worth, 26, said she jumped from the institute's second floor roof garden, on Nov. 2, 1973, realizing she had to get out. She broke her back.

She was giving testimony in the third day of a negligence action she brought against Royal Jubilee Hospital, psychiatrist Dr. Alexander Stewart, general practitioner Dr. Diane Grant and nurse Peggy Gallimore.

When she planned her escape, Miss Worth said, she realized she would injure herself.

She said she scaled the 10 to 12-foot wall around the roof garden by using chairs. While crouching at the top there was a split second when she realized it was further down than she had thought.

She testified it was unfortunate she kept her head buckled forward as she fell. She did this because she was trying to protect her head . . . "sanity was the most important thing to me as it is now."

When she hit the ground, "I knew immediately I had done tremendous damage to myself."

Sitting in her wheelchair, Miss Worth remained calm while recounting the events leading up to the accident, but broke down briefly while telling of the long hours spent recovering.

But while in Jubilee she felt relieved that she was finally out of EMI, and waited with "great anticipation" to go to G. F. Strong Rehabilitation Centre in Vancouver.

She was first admitted to Jubilee Oct. 23, 1973, to have her stomach pumped after an accidental over dose of sleeping pills. She said she was addicted to a sleeping pill called placidyl, and needed more and more to get to sleep.

The night of the 23rd she took five or six 500 mg. pills, she said.

She said she had a number of personal problems including discontent with her whole lifestyle, discontent with the "dating game", her dependence on the placidyl or "red jellybeans" that she first tried at age 17, being fired from a job and a car accident the day before.

But the following nine days as a patient at EMI resulted in only more problems, she said.

A couple of days later she found out that she could no longer get passes. She had been told she would only spend a few days in EMI.

On Oct. 27 and 28 she was initiated into her first group.

"Unfortunately for me I didn't have anything to scream about, and still don't," she said.

She felt the therapy wasn't helping and because she was unable to see Dr. Stewart, wrote him a letter saying she didn't know why her passes were cancelled and she wanted to go home.

She phoned Dr. Grant, she said, and got a return message that she should see her therapist and not to expect any more passes.

She thought people were deliberately trying to frighten her by erasing poetry she wrote on a blackboard and drawing a picture of Dr. Stewart as a devil. (This was a day or two before Hallowe'en.

Her medical reports at this time showed she had a strong feeling of losing touch with reality. She had expressed fears she would be "put away to rot in Riverview."

On Oct. 30, she again attended one of Dr. Stewart's scream workshops but only "put on a performance." She said she was disappointed Dr. Stewart didn't see through it, but only said he was glad she participated.

She said all this time the nurses were trying to get her to come to grips with an emotional setback two years earlier in her life, but that was not the problem. It was more a problem of identity, she said.

On Oct. 31, she was dressed in "blues" — an outfit known as suicidal precaution that consists of a blue robe, orange pyjamas and pink slippers so hospital staff can easily identify such designated patients. All along she maintained she was not suicidal, and the overdose was an accident.

She made two desperate moves in a futile attempt to get a private interview with Dr. Stewart — she faked a suicide attempt by making marks on her neck with a necklace chain, and swallowed three screws she took out of the bathroom wall.

She was placed on an isolation program where she wasn't allowed visitors and couldn't make any phone calls. She was kept mostly alone in her room.

Several other types of therapy were tried, she said, but she was still forced to go to the scream sessions — once at the threat of having two orderlies take her.

She said she had to know that she would "get out of that building some day."

Finally on Nov. 2 she took the elevator to the second floor and was glad to find the door to the roof garden unlocked. She scaled the wall and jumped to the concrete below.

She told the court she was in hospital until Feb. 11, 1975. "Physically I mended in all that I could mend."

Then followed 2½ years in and out of various hospitals for several problems and operations related to her accident.

She has been out of hospital now since July 21, and has obtained a job as a typesetter for the Goldstream Gazette in Langford.

Wash. State Law On Tankers Violated

SEATTLE (AP) — A federal three-judge panel has been asked to block the state from enforcing legal restrictions on supertankers amid reports that two oil companies already are violating the law.

A spokesman for the Puget Sound Pilots Association said Wednesday that Texaco and Shell Oil tankers which arrived at Anacortes last weekend picked up tug escorts in Rosario Strait near their destination but not through the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the entrance to Puget Sound, as required by the law.

Last week a three-judge panel ruled that the 1975 law was invalid but did not order a halt to enforcement of the tough safety equipment and tug escort requirements, state Atty. Gen. Slade Gorton says the ruling will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

On Wednesday the Atlantic Richfield Co., which filed the initial challenge, asked the court to change its order and halt enforcement of the state law. Charles Roe, an assistant attorney general, says the state will fight that move, too.

"It is our position that the statute is in force and that we will expect the company to comply with the various provisions of the act," Roe said.

HUNG JURY SECOND TIME

A rare second hung jury Wednesday in county court resulted in freedom for James Bryan McWilliams, 22, after the Crown entered a stay of proceedings.

McWilliams was accused of causing bodily harm by stabbing Robin Sheffield, 18, with a knife in Colwood March 25.

The alleged incident, court was told, occurred on the Old Island Highway near Centennial Pool following a collision.

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated 3½ hours before informing the court they were deadlocked.

When Judge Montague Drake asked the jury if it was impossible to reach agreement, he was told the only way this could happen would be "for certain members to go against their conscience."

After the jury was discharged, Crown counsel Gordon Macdonald entered a stay of proceedings.

Bill McElmoyle, counsel for McWilliams, said later his client would be free after collecting his personal items from Wilkinson Road jail where he was ordered detained by a lower court judge pending trial. He spent six months in jail awaiting trial.

The first jury deliberated three hours and 20 minutes on Sept. 21.

Several sources said consecutive hung juries are rare, although one person could recall a case 10 or 15 years ago.

Resolutions Mauled

PORT ALBERNI — Two resolutions passed at the recent convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities were jumped on and mauled this week by members of Port Alberni city council which later voted to "dissociate" itself with them.

The resolutions, considered to be "anti-union" by the organized labor movement, were sponsored by the cities of Vernon and Kelowna.

One calls for provincial legislation to allow "right-to-work" to non-union members, and the other urges provincial legislation to restrict picketing during a strike to the place of employment of union members involved in the strike.

How to Compost Fallen Leaves

The most frequent question over the past week has been about fallen leaves, the best way to store them, and whether or not they should be added to the regular compost heap.

The answer hinges on the quantity of leaves likely to be gathered. Small amounts from a few fruit trees and deciduous shrubs can mix with other compost.

On the other hand a small quantity of leafmold is always useful for repotting house plants, and for this purpose they can be rotted down in a wooden box without a bottom.

The bottomless box is placed on bare soil, the leaves layered in the regular composting way, a sprinkle of nitrofenous fertilizer on one layer, and dusting of lime on the next. Each layer is well watered.

The owner of an amateur greenhouse has need for a quantity of leafmold and often collects leaves from other sources. The method of storing and composting will again depend on the amount of leaves to be handled.

In gardens where oak trees abound, there will be enough leaves for one or more large piles. This quantity is best stored in an enclosure made of wire fencing or chicken wire to prevent scattering by wind. The wire is attached to temporary stakes driven well into the soil.

Within such an enclosure the heap is built in the same manner as the regular compost heap, with one exception. Leaves being loose, quite unlike the heavier waste from garden plants, must be well trampled and compacted to exclude air. This is where a couple of youngsters can have a lot of fun, and at the same time do an excellent job.

When six inches of well compressed leaves have been put in the enclosure, sprinkle the surface with a nitrogenous fertilizer to heat the pile and start the decomposing. Use sulphate of ammonia as used on the lawn, or a general fertilizer such as 6-8-6 or 13-16-10.

If possible, throw on some weeds with fresh soil attached to the roots, or a little good soil from the vegetable patch, to introduce the bacteria that have to do the work. Water the layer thoroughly.

On the next compacted layer put a dusting of hydrated lime to counteract the acids formed during fermentation, a few more weeds, or soils, and another good watering.

Continue the layers, alternating fertilizer and lime, and keep the pile well dampened until fall rains take over.

To the home gardener, the most confusing part about leaf composting is the fact that the pile still looks like leaves in the spring, instead of a brown mould as found in a compost heap, leading to the belief that leaves take years to break down.

This is not so. While the leaves still retain their identity to some extent, they are ready for use the following spring after being rubbed through a wire screen with a half-inch mesh.

The only leaves which are slow to break down are those of heavy texture and with a glossy surface, such as laurel, arbutus, and camellia. These are best in the compost heap, or in a heap to themselves if there are many.

Our recent column on fall color pointed out that fallen leaves contain nutrients taken from the soil, but not needed for storage as food over winter. These nutrients should be returned to the soil for future use by the plants. The burning of leaves is comparable to robbing the soil and the plants of needed food, and is the first step to a worn-out soil, poor plant growth and damage by diseases and insects.

Chinese Broadcasts Tell of Sabotage

By JAY MATHEWS
Washington Post

HONG KONG — Central Chinese authorities have issued repeated orders against factional acitivites as four Chinese provinces have reported "sabotage" in their areas, according to new provincial broadcasts monitored here.

The broadcasts come at the same time as a report of sabotage, "conspiracy and intrigues carried out by class enemies at home and abroad" carried in the first edition of the theoretical journal Red Flag to be published since the death of Chairman Mao Tse-Tung Sept. 9.

The reports all suggest rumbling disagreements and discontent among Peking and provincial leaders, and a possible weakening of the apparent compromises made between ideological rivals in Peking when Mao died. For the last three weeks there has been an emphasis on unity and economic production and a softening of calls for action against unnamed party officials who oppose Mao's thought.

Three of the provinces reporting "sabotage" by "class enemies" Chekiang, Kiangsi and Kiangsu—form a chain through east and south-central China. All three have had well-documented histories of factional strife since the tumultuous cultural revolution 10 years ago.

Less is known about recent events in the fourth province, Tsinghai, which is located on a sparsely populated plateau in the far west.

Reports of factionalism and sabotage have appeared occasionally this year as Peking leaders have debated what direction the country should take after Mao. But for two weeks after Mao's death, reports of trouble ceased and provincial broadcasts confined themselves to eulogies to Mao and calls for increased production.

A broadcast from the Kiangsi provincial capital of Nanchang cited central authority instructions "stipulating that it is not allowed to establish ties, to build mountain strongholds or to organize fighting groups in any form."

The Chekiang broadcast concerned a general membership meeting of the Communist party in the provincial capital of Hangchow, which was so torn by factional disputes a year ago army troops had to restore order.

The broadcast from Kiangsu, which encompasses a key industrial area just north of the city of Shanghai, focused on activities at the Nantung No. 1 state-run cotton plant. It described "patrol and sentry duties day and night" to prevent "sabotage by the class enemies."

Tom's Farewell . . . At 64.9 Per

After 25 years selling gas at Gorge and Government, Tom Fiddler is closing Fountain Esso station in grand style — he's selling his last 2,000 gallons at 64.9 cents.

"I'm closing up tonight so I'm giving my customers a go at something cheap just for fun," he said.

Fiddler found an old gas price sign reading 64.9 behind the stockroom door and put it on the street.

He said he couldn't remember how long ago it was that the sign had been used, but it needed a good cleaning.

Esso closed him down, he said, because he wasn't doing enough business, so he's moving to a repair shop on 2945 Bridge Street, but with no gas pumps.

ELECTRIC CART BECOMES A CAR

AUBURN, Wash. (AP) — Gary Wivag makes a car that uses six 6-volt batteries and no gasoline, sells for $1,000 to $2,500 and costs less than four cents a mile.

Wivag says he isn't a full-fledged manufacturer of electric cars, just a dealer for a golf cart maker who is willing to convert a golf cart into a street car.

The end result is a three or four-wheeled vehicle with a top speed of 12 miles per hour and the addition of high and low-beam lights, windshield wipers, horns and brakes. Heaters are optional.

He says it costs less than four cents a mile, based on 20 miles a day. The car is plugged into a regular electric socket overnight to recharge the batteries.

The department of motor vehicles says such vehicles can be licensed either as a motorcycle or as a passenger car, depending on the size.

Wivag says his most recent customers include a community college student, a housewife and a municipal government which purchased the car for a handicapped person.

"I'm converting and selling the cars on an individual-order basis," he said, "but an expanded market is looming, especially in contained communities such as suburban neighborhoods with shopping and recreation facilities or retirement communities."

Boat Seized By U.S.S.R.

TOKYO (Reuter) — The Japanese embassy in Moscow confirmed Wednesday that a 92-ton Japanese fishing boat with a crew of seven has been captured by the Soviet Union. The Hamayoshi Maru had been taken to the far eastern port of Nakhodka after being seized by a Soviet patrol vessel last Saturday. It is alleged the vessel violated Soviet territorial waters, the embassy said.

FBI DEALINGS PROBED

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. justice department is investigating allegations that John P. Mohr, former No. 3 man in the FBI's executive hierarchy, had a $5,000 wine rack built in his home by FBI personnel using government-owned materials.

These allegations represent the first specific example of possible wrongdoing involving Mohr to become known since the justice department launched a probe early this year of financial "abuses of power" within the FBI.

Mohr declined comment on the allegations.

The investigation is centred on charges that some FBI officials misused funds or property during and immediately after the final years of the late director, J. Edgar Hoover, who died in May, 1972. Mohr was a Hoover confidant retired shortly afterward.

Informed sources said Wednesday that information about the wine rack was furnished by John P. Dunphy, former chief of the FBI's exhibits section and a key witness in the investigation.

Dunphym a 28-year- FBI veteran, was forced to resign his $37,800-a-year position last month and then pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of misappropriating less than $100 worth of FBI-owned material to build a bird house at his home.

Ford Ready to Answer Campaign Fund Query

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Ford will hold a press conference this week at which he is certain to face questions about the Watergate special prosecutor's subpoena of campaign contribution records in his former congressional district.

A White House source said that Ford will make himself available to reporters' questions "within three or four days" and possibly as early as today. Ford last met with reporters three weeks ago, and he has been the target of increasing Democratic criticism about his inaccesibility.

White House aides expressed confidence that an investigation into whether Ford, as a congressman, diverted campaign funds from maritime unions to his own use, would result in vindication of the president.

These sources reiterated the oft-stated White House belief that the allegations are substantially the same ones that were investigated when Ford was confirmed as vice president three years ago.

At the same time the sources were uneasy about the timing of any exculpatory finding from the Watergate prosecutor.

"Every day that goes by hurts," said one source. "It's interrupted the momentum of the campaign."

When the story first broke 10 days ago that the special prosecutor has subpoenaed the records of two maritime unions and two Republican committees in Kent County, Mich., it was publicly discounted by the White House. Press Secretary Ron Nessen said then, as he has said every day since including Wednesday, that he would not comment on the story since there has been no charge made against Ford.

The White House also said Ford has ordered a search for records that might show which corporate officials took him golfing when he was a congressman.

"We are trying to locate the records . . . whatever records there are," Nessen told reporters Wednesday.

There is no assurance, Nessen said, that any such records exist in Ford's staff files, or that they will provide any information.

Meanwhile, a 68-page ledger book has drawn renewed interest from the Watergate special prosecutor, who is investigating an alleged 1973 $5,000 Gulf Oil cash contribution to the re-election campaign of Sen. Bob Dole (Rep.-Kan.), according to informed sources.

The ledger purports to record all the cash received and spent during 1973 and 974 in the senator's re-election effort. It was kept by Joanne Coe, then Dole's personal secretary.

Former Gulf lobbyist Claude C. Wild Jr. testified to a grand jury that he gave $5,000 in cash to Dole's then-administrative assistant, William Kats.

The cashbook shows no listing of a contribution from Wild and Dole, the GOP vice presidential nominee, has cited the book as proof that no Wild contribution was made.

DYNAMITING FIZZLES

FORKS, Wash. (AP) — A stick of dynamite with fuse burning was tossed into the Forks post office, but it failed to explode because no blasting cap was used, Police Chief Ken Bryson said Wednesday.

Bryson said the incident occurred early Tuesday. A postal patron smelled something burning and found the dynamite.

The chief said the dynamite apparently was thrown through an open window.

"If it would have had a cap on it, it would have gone off," he said.

He said postal inspectors were investigating.

Women Drinkers Rising

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Drinking among young women, particularly high schoolers, is rising sharply, but too little attention is being paid to the problems of women alcoholics by the government, a U.S. Senate subcommittee was told Wednesday.

The subcommittee on alcoholism and narcotics also heard testimony showing that the newborn children of mothers who drink heavily frequently suffer serious physical and mental abnormalities.

Chairman William Hathaway said a "double standard" has been applied to male versus female alcoholics which "has resulted in secretive, hidden drinking habits in many women, making it virtually impossible to accurately assess the true nature and scope of the problem."

Actress Jan Clayton, a former alcoholic, told the panel, "the world's inability to see, or even perhaps its refusal to see the plight of the alcoholic woman, has been tragic . . . devastatingly."

Because of a double standard, Mrs. Clayton said, women drinkers became "closet drinkers, weekend benders . . . yes, we hid, and the world said, "that's my girl" and alibied and protected us right into the hospital, mental home, oblivion or the grave because to do otherwise would be to admit failure and guilt and worse, and ignorance of the situation or what to do about it."

Car Research Veto Upheld In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress failed Wednesday to override President Gerald Ford's veto of a bill authorizing $100 million for research to develop autombiles that would burn less fuel and cause less pollution.

The House over-rode the veto, but the Senate fell 10 votes short of the necessary two-thirds majority.

Supporters of the bill argued that private industry has not been doing enough to develop pollution-free, energy-efficient automobiles.

In his veto message, Ford said the proposed research "would unnecessarily duplicate existing authorities and extend into areas private industry is best equipped to pursue."

Senator Frank Moss, arguing for over-riding the veto, said the bill "supplements but neither supplants nor duplicates" current efforts by private industry.

Ford has vetoed 58 bills since becoming president. Eleven vetoes have been overridden.

Erosion Fear Discounted By Aldermen

University of Victoria professor Dr. Harold Foster is "over-reacting" about land erosion at Cowichan Head, south of Island View Beach, Central Saanich Alderman Percy Lazarz said Wednesday.

In a recently published technical report, Foster, a geologist, estimates the bluffs at Cowichan Head are being eaten away at five or six feet a year by wind, waves and storms. He said houses could end up in the sea within a decade.

Lazarz, public works chairman, and subdivision and zoning committee chairman Ald. Raymond Lamont who were appointed by Mayor Jean Butler to report on the erosion, don't think the erosion is happening that fast.

Lazarz disagrees with Foster's recommendation that financial assistance be given the owners of homes in the area to have their homes moved.

"People who built in the area were fully aware of the situation," Lazarz said, noting only eight or nine houses were affected by the erosion problem.

Agreeing with Foster that solving the problems would be costly, Lazarz said he will oppose any move to compensate property owners.

Foster has stated preventing further erosion will be expensive and could only be done with the help of federal and provincial government funds. He concedes such funding would be hard to rationalize.

The professor also knocked Central Saanich council for allowing residential development in the area, terming it "irrational."

400 Die in Flood

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Almost 400 persons have died in floods in India's populous northeastern states of Uttar Pradesh, Bihar and West Bengal, government officials said Tuesday. They said the largest death toll in the flooding, which began three weeks ago, has been in Uttar Pradesh where more than 250 persons have died.

Union Cut, Police Claim

The Saanich Police Association told a Labor Relations Board hearing Wednesday the municipal administration has promoted members out of the association without replacing them.

This has resulted in a smaller membership which could in turn result in pay cuts under complicated Anti-Inflation Board guidlines, the hearing was told.

Two staff sergeants were promoted to inspector and a third retired Wednesday, leaving only two staff sergeants.

The higher-paid men have been removed from the bargaining unit and under AIB guidlines this could mean a loss of seven cents an hour of the 1977 pay increase of each member — or about $146 a year.

This is brought about because the AIB works from the size of an employee group in the last month of its contract association president Cpl. Phillip Jamieson told the hearing.

Jamieson said that during the national convention of police associations he discovered Saanich is the only force where men have been removed without replacement.

The Saanich association wants inspectors to be included in the bargaining unit, although inspectors say they don't want to be included in the association.

The association also wants promoted officers replaced.

N-Bombs at Comox Safe from Thieves

Nuclear warheads at Canadian Forces Base Comox are under tight security, the base information officer said today.

Capt. Walter Muzychka was commenting on statements made Wednesday by Dr. William Epstein.

Epstein, who is a special consultant to the United Nations secretary-general and a visiting professor at the University of Victoria, warned that terrorists or dissidents could easily walk onto the CFB Comox and steal nuclear-tipped missiles.

Epstein said the nuclear missiles used by the Voodoo aircraft could be carried away by six men.

He suggested the warheads be dismantled before an accident "wipes us out."

Muzychka said the missiles are under close supervision. He said there is no possibility of someone even accidently walking into the security area.

He said for obvious reasons he cannot elaborate on the security precautions.

Epstein said Victoria has become a dangerous place to live with the construction of the Trident nuclear submarine base in Bangor, Wash.

An accident causing one missle to explode would destroy Vancouver and Victoria, he said.

In the event of nuclear war, an enemy missile aimed at Bangor with which landed in the Strait of Juan de Fuca would drown everybody on Vancouver Island with the tidal wave, he said.

Epstein said Victorians have a legal and moral right to stop the subs from sailing through Canadian waters.

Hanna Returned As Bureau VP

Jack Hanna of Victoria was re-elected vice-president of the Red Cedar Shingle and Handsplit Shake Bureau at the group's annual meeting in Seattle.

Dean Hurn of Beaver, Wash., was re-elected president. The association represents 450 shingle and shake mills in B.C., Washington state and Oregon.

Neighborhood Watch Underway in City

Still under consideration is a Block Parent program, Chief Jack Gregory said Wednesday.

Gregory said he is enthused by the response so far to Neighborhood Watch in the city and said several meetings have already been held with citizen groups.

Neighborhood Watch is designed to teach residents ways of preventing crime, and includes watching over neighbors' homes. The program is also offered by police in Saanich, Colwood and Oak Bay.

Gregory said it is too early yet to tell if crime has decreased in the areas where Neighborgood Watch programs are underway.

The chief said the Block Parent program "has neither been rejected or accepted."

City Man Heads Notaries Public

Denis G. J. Humphries of Victoria was re-elected president of the Society of Notaries Public of B.C. at the group's annual meeting in Vernon.

Over 230 attended the meeting which featured speeches by Judge C. W. Morrow, University of B.C. professor R. G. Herbert, Howie Morgan of the department of housing and Nicholas Blom, president of the real estate division of the B.C. Bar Association.

PEN TALKS DRAG ON

Times News Services

NEW WESTMINSTER — Negotiations between a prisoners' committee and officials at the troubled British Columbia penitentiary adjourned early today after agreement was reached on four of the prisoners' seven demands.

A member of a citizens' adivsory committee which sat in on the negotiations said the committee hopes the remaining demands will be resolved when negotiations resume later today.

Michael Jackson, a University of British Columbia law professor, said that prison guard Wayne Culbert, 21, who is being held hostage by the prisoners, was examined shortly before midnight by a member of the prison medical staff and was reported in good health and unharmed.

The committee is satisfied that "both parties have negotiated in the utmost good faith," he added.

He said that by midnight Wednesday, agreement had been reached on four demands and substantial progress was made on the remaining three. He did not say which demands had been agreed upon.

Meanwhile, the 200 prisoners who rioted early this week continued their insurrection in the devasted east wing of the prison.

In Ottawa, Solicitor-General Francis Fox said he will recommend acceleration of a building program to replace old prisons such as the B.C. penitentiary.

Fox also said force to end the revolt would be used only on his orders.

More RCMP were moved to the prison Wednesday as police and armed forces person-

GAS INQUIRY

VERNON (CP) — Consumer Services Minister Rafe Mair said Wednesday that a government committee will investigate gasoline marketing in B.C. The minister made the announcement after meeting with local service station operators who expressed anger with what they called gasoline price discrimination.

Schreyer Warns He'll Drop AIB

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer said today it is "extremely unlikely" the Manitoba government will remain in the federal anti-inflation program after the end of March unless Ottawa makes major changes in the program.

Addressing the annual convention of the Manitoba Federation of Labor, the premier said the Anti-Inflation Board is often too rigid in its interpretation of wage guidelines.

Manitoba signed an agreement with the federal government early this year to participate in the anti-inflation program at least until April of next year.

Schreyer supports controls in principle as a way of curbing inflation, but he has criticized several recent wage rollbacks affecting Manitoba workers as unfair.

His statement today was his strongest yet about Manitoba dropping out of the federal anti-inflation program next year.

At the same time, however, he told union members his government would feel obliged to bargain within the spirit of federal restraints.

Schreyer repeated two major complaints.

One is that there is inadequate recognition for workers coming off multi-year contracts, and the other is that the board often failed to understand the intent of contract terms, he said.

Schreyer's speech came at the time of renewed criticism from the ranks of organized labor because of the province's support of the anti-inflation program.

Delegates to the convention will vote later in the week on a resolution calling for the Federation of Labor to withdraw its traditional backing for his New Democratic Party government.

The speech also came just two days after Schryer's visit to Ottawa to seek a reversal of wage rollbacks ordered for health care workers and government liquor store employees.

Anti-inflation administrator Donald Tansley said Wednesday in Ottawa that a decision by the Manitoba Liquor Control Commission to pay raises above limits he ordered could subject both the commission and employees to penalties under the Anti-Inflation Act.

Commission chairman Frank Syms said a 23.7-percent wage increase was being reinstated to 400 employees depite Tansley's order reducing raises to 12 per cent. Tansley also had ordered the commission to pay the government $300,000 in wage overpayments, $60,000 of it to

The human resources department could end the fiscal year with a $30 million or $40 million budget surplus if current trends continue, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Wednesday.

The saving will come entirely from welfare payments, the minister said.

"If we go as we are now, we may have an additional $30 million or $40 million for other programs or a surplus," he said.

He said the number of people on social assistance has dropped 20 per cent since September 1975.

Fewer transients coming into the province have helped the decrease, he said, "but it's also a matter of attitude."

Vander Zalm said he couldn't give solid evidence that the decrease in the welfare rolls is "entirely our doing, but no one is being cut off welfare, just fewer people are coming into the system."

He said all other areas of his $581.1-million budget are on target.

Ferry Runs Aground in Fog

The Queen of Esquimalt ferry ran aground in fog near Swartz Bay at 8:05 a.m. today but the 137 passengers and 34 crew members escaped without injury.

The 33 vehicles and one bus on board were moved to the stern and this, coupled with a rising tide, freed the ferry at 9:10 a.m. and it returned to Swartz Bay under its own power.

B.C. Ferries general manager Charles Gallagher said a diver checked the vessel below the waterline and found a minor one-inch dent and scraped paint on the side and 30 feet back from the bow.

"The crew checked the vessel carefully and found that no water was taken and the engines are sound. No metal was damaged so repairs will not be needed. She may go back into service later today."

He said the crew should be commended for getting the ferry afloat so quickly and without the aid of tugs.

A crew member said passengers were startled but not injured and they took the incident in reasonably good humor.

The grounding was the only major accident reported in the fog.

Victoria traffic police reported no accidents during the peak of the fog from 7 am. to 9:30 a.m.

Air Canada's 8:10 a.m. flight to Vancovuer left 40 minutes late and Pacific Western Airlines flights were running two hours late in the early monring but schedules returned to normal by 10:30 a.m.

Norm Dressler, chief forecaster at Pat Bay weather office, said the fog was to be expected because of a light flow of air from the mainland across Georgia Strait.

The flow of air became moist and warm crossing the strait and turned to fog when it reached cooler air over Vancouver Island.

Protest Day Still Puzzle

With two weeks to go before organized labor's days of protest, the extent of participation by Greater Victoria union members remains uncertain.

John Schibli, president of the Victoria Labor Council, said today some unions have indicated by vote what they will do but the total picture won't be clear until the day itself, Oct. 14.

He said the majority of workers take the position that the decision to stay off the job was made earlier by the Canadian Labor Congress and so there is no need for a vote by affiliated members.

Therefore, exactly how many of the council's 18,000 members go along with the CLC's decision and take the day off can't be computed at this stage.

Schibli said most rank and file union members appear enthusiastic about the day of protest but there is some concern as to whether this will result in participating in demonstrations on Oct. 14.

A co-ordinating committee of the council decided Wednesday night to have supporters gather at Centennial Square at about 10:30 a.m. Oct. 14 and then march through the city to the legislative buildings.

There the union members will be addressed by John Fryer, a general vice-president of the CLC and sec-

Jailed 4 Years In Theft

A 55-year-old man sentenced today to a four-year jail term for stealing more than $40,000 was pardoned in 1971 for previous criminal offences.

Prosecutor Armand Petronio disclosed that Kenneth Harold Simkin, of 1002 McKenzie, had been given probation for theft of $9,008 from an Elks Club raffle in Dawson Creek and a two-year jail term in 1960 for uttering worthless cheques in Calgary.

Petronio was pardoned for the offenses in June, 1971, Judge Harold Alder was told.

Simkin had pleaded guilty to stealing almost $35,000 from the Victoria Community Grocers Co-Operative Association and theft by conversion of $6,147 from Deltek Developments.

The theft from the co-op occurred while Simkin was doing book-keeping work as operator of Simkin Accounting Services.

The funds were used to pay debts, finance his own business and to pay for two vacations.

Judge Alder sentenced Simkin to a four-year jail term and two years probation.

Defence counsel Roderick MacDonald described Simkin as a man weighed down by debts and said he had lived a life of "failure and disappointment."

And he said because of Simkin's age and condition of health, he might not be able to survive a lengthy jail sentence.

SEA ROUNDUP CORRALS COWS

VANCOUVER (CP) — One cow was missing and presumed swimming in English Bay today following a spontaneous stampede early Wednesday in which seven cows charged off a barge into Vancouver harbor waters.

Police, tugmen and Coast Guard crew spent hours rounding up the cows Wednesday.

The city police boat crew assisted in hoisting two calves onto the Tul's deck.

One cow swam to West Bay and three West Vancouver police officers spent two hours corralling the beast, which was eventually knocked out by a veterinarian with a tranquilizer gun.

The tide was coming in and the officers had to slide the cow onto a sheet of plywood and manually skid it to safety above high tide.

Another cow swam ashore in West Vancouver and was loaded into a truck.

Sixteen hours after the stampede a Coast Guard cutter reported it had a cow in tow and took it to Sandy Beach in West Vancouver.

Growing Rift Threatened Among Rhodesia's Blacks

Times News Services

SALISBURY — One of three rival black nationalist groups said today its leader would return to Rhodesia, raising the prospect of serious intra-black bickering over creation of an interim government.

Spokesmen for Bishop Abel Muzorewa said he would return to Rhodesia within two weeks to participate in efforts to form an interim government, as prescribed by U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's peace proposals.

Muzorewa's return to take part in a forthcoming British-sponsored conference on setting up an interim government could worsen existing divisions among the black nationalists and mar the process of bringing black majority rule to Rhodesia within two years.

Britain said it was ready to convene the conference within two weeks, "anywhere in southern Africa acceptable to all the parties involved."

Prime Minister Ian Smith, fearing a collapse in the peace efforts, has persuaded conservatives in his ruling Rhodesia Front party to support the peace plan, party officials said Wednesday.

Muzorewa heads what is known as the external wing of the African National Council. Both his faction and the so-called internal wing headed by Joshua Nkomo claim to represent the majority of Rhodesia's six million blacks.

A third organization, the Zimbabwe African National Union, which comprises guerrillas based in Mozambique, also is known to be jockeying for a voice in the formation of an interim government.

Rival black leaders will meet in Mozambique capital of Maputo this week for talks aimed at ending their rift.

Estate Tax Relief Due —Bennett

KELOWNA (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett said Wednesday that his government has a total commitment to change all succession and estate duties legislation in British Columbia.

Bennett told the Chamber of Commerce here that he could not detail the government's policy on the duties because tax changes must be made public only in a budget and the one is expected early in 1977.

However, he said the current laws are not reasonable because they discourage investment by Canadians in Canada.

The B.C. government now collects about $25 million a year in estate and succession duties, which were retained by the former Social Credit government in 1971 when the federal government allowed the taxes to become a provincial revenue, rather than fedal.

NEWS BRIEFS

Four Lanes Set

KELOWNA (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett said Wednesday that 4.2 miles of Highway 97 from Reid's Corner here to Ellison Lake, north of the city, will be widened to four lanes. The Premier said work on the widening will begin immediately and will cost "many millions more" than originally forecast because of delays in starting the project.

2 Elephants Born

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuter) — Elephant bull twins were born six weeks ago at the Lake Manyara National Park, Derek Bryceson, director of the Tanzania's national parks, said Wednesday. Experts say they believe it is the first time on record elephant twins have been born.

Leaders to Die

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI) — Sudan's former prime minister, Sadiq Al Mahdi and finance minister, Hussien Al Hindi were sentenced to death today in a mass trial of alleged ringleaders in an abortive July coup, the official Sudan News Agency reported. Six other defendants were sent to jail for life.

POUND WANTED AGAIN

LONDON — The British pound, one of the world's most unwanted currencies in recent days, was back in demand today and jumped more than three cents to $1.70 (U.S.)

In Montreal it was selling at $1.63 Canadian.

News that Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey had asked the international monetary fund (IMF) for a further $3.9 billion loan to support Britain's sick currency appeared to calm an edgy market.

Healey said that without help from the IMF to prop up the pound, Britain would have to endure economic policies so savage "I think they would produce riots in the streets."

"I think it would mean three million unemployed, and living standards would fall by at least five per cent," Healey said in a television interview late Wednesday.

Bankers and foreign exchange dealers were convinced Healey will have to produce an economic package, or a mini-budget, in order to bring confidence back to the pound.

"The loan will give Britain some breathing space, but unless it is backed by some very tough economic measures soon, we could even be in deeper trouble before long," one banker said.

Combines Probing B.C. Giants

VANCOUVER — Combines investigators are examining the record of several major Canadian forestry firms, including two B.C. companies — the giant MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. — the Vancouver Province reported today.

The investigators are paying special attention to newsprint marketing files.

Also being probed are the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, with headquarters in Montreal, and three as-yet unnamed eastern newsprint companies.

An industry spokesman in B.C. said he and his company "haven't got the slightest idea" what the combines officers are looking for.

One forestry firm official, who wished to remain anonymous, said he is "wondering if this is politically motivated — Trudeau is under tremendous pressure from labor for his wage controls, so perhaps someone in the government is saying let's show these guys we are giving hell to industry and not letting them get away with anything."

The investigators, from the Combines Investigations Branch in Ottawa, arrived Monday morning at the Vancouver headquarters of MB and CZ, armed with search warrants, good for a month, empowering them to examine records.

Intial reports suggested the combines men had seized large numbers of documents from MB, but the company's president, Ernest Richardson, said this was "quite incorrect."

"I know they are looking at certain aspects of our industry in Canada," he said, "and I know that they are here (in MB). But they haven't seized any documents. We are allowing them to see anything they want to see.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The B.C. Ferries' lease-back vessel, the Queen of Cowichan, won't be in service until mid-October.

Delayed by the recent construction industry dispute, work resumed this week, and elevators and escalators are being installed as the last touches on the $17 million ferry.

Owned by Canada Trust and leased back to the provincial government, she lies alongside at Yarrows shipyard, where she was built.

Entering her cavernous three-car decks that can swallow up 320 cars is like walking into a floating city.

Empty now, the passenger quarters designed to house 1,300 people, are bright with touches of gold, orange and tangerine, complemented with natural woods.

She and her sister ship, the Queen of Coquitlam, which was built at Burrard in North Vancouver, are the largest ships in the 27-strong ferry fleet.

They're also two of the fastest, capable of 23 knots. The Queen of Cowichan's German MAK diesel engines will allow a sustained cruising speed of 21 knots.

Stacked on each side of her 457-foot hull are four sets of escape chutes for fast evacuation in an emergency, similar to those used by large commercial aircraft.

Carried in a recess close to seal level is a business-like Boston whaler for fast rescue work.

The wheelhouses at each end of the double-ender have the latest in electronics.

A B.C. Ferries' spokesman explained the double-ended design "cuts down passage time, allowing more time in dock if necessary."

As workers returned to the job this week, there was an atmosphere of anticipation in the Queen of Cowichan as if B.C.'s newest ferry couldn't wait to join her sister ship on the job.

City Moves To Block Demolitions

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

An alarmed Victoria city council decided Wednesday to seek special powers from the provincial government to cope with the housing demolition problem, which has reached epidemic proportions in recent months.

One of the key requests is for the right to withhold a demolition permit until the developer in question has obtained council approval for the proposed land use and applied for a building permit.

Ald. Murray Glazier, who initiated the motion, has repeatedly urged council in recent months to consider some such action, but was told the city lacked the necessary authority under the Municipal Act.

However, Glazier said today that rather than wait several months for amendments to the legislation at the spring sitting of the legislature, the city may ask for the powers through a cabinet order-in-council.

He said the requirement for land-use approval before a demolition permit is issued would save the needless destruction of many sound homes.

. . . can't wait

He could think of "dozens of examples" of homes that had been demolished and where the land still sits empty because the city did not approve the development plans.

Developers have been under the mistaken impression that presenting council with a bulldozed fait accompli would strengthen their rezoning applications, he said.

Another power requested by council Wednesday would allow it to levy "substantial" penalties based on the square footage of any illegally demolished building.

And council also wants the right to withhold a demolition permit on any property for which a heritage designation bylaw is being prepared.

(Under the present Municipal Act loopholes, a developer can thwart council's heritage aspirations. Because the heritage protection bylaws take several weeks to process, he can legally demolish the building before the procedure has been completed).

Up to the end of August City Hall had granted 181 demolition permits this year, but as several of these were multiple permits the actual number of dwellings demolished has been far higher.

The final total for September isn't known, but an engineering department spokesman confirmed today that "we are sitting on quite a number of applications."

Four Years in Jail For Ex-Mess Official

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Naval diver Cpl. Robert Ganner, 32, was sentenced Wednesday to four years in the penitentiary and discharged from the service when a general court martial found him guilty of 12 military offences.

He faced 24 charges under the National Defence Act emanating from his period of service as president of the Club 44 junior ranks mess, which spanned three years when there were thefts of cash, liquor and frauds and other actions contrary to good order and discipline.

His seven-day trial at CFB Esquimalt was presided over by judge advocate Lt.-Col. J. B. Fay, of Halifax, and Capt. (N) R. C. Okros, maritime staff Pacific, who pronounced sentence shortly before 5 p.m.

A few minutes later an armed escort of white-hatted provosts took Ganner into close custody for escort to service detention barracks in Edmonton, where he will remain pending an appeal, which if granted, may be held in Victoria.

Ganner took the sentence without visible stress, coloring slightly in the warm, makeshift court room as he was marched off.

The court martial board of five Pacific Command officers deliberated from 12:25 to 3 p.m., then after declaring the accused guilty of theft, making a false statement, abusing mess privileges, fraud and possessing unauthorized public property — in multiple charges — took another hour to consider sentence.

Ganner was found not guilty of four charges and the court stayed proceedings on eight others. In three instances the charges were amended to cover fewer items or lesser amounts of money.

At no point was the trial given a total of monies involved in the mess shortages, but one officer calculated that in a six-month period $7,800 went missing from bar receipts.

Defence counsel Maj. Brian Murphy had asked the court to consider Ganner's exemplary service record, the fact that he had had marital and personal problems during the latter part of the period under investigation and has bank and other personal debts of $7,000.

He said although these convictions called for imprisonment the period should be short, Ganner should be put on probation and allowed to return to his unit.

The offences did not relate to Ganner's primary function as a diver, and, Murphy noted, two former commanding officers testified they would gladly have Ganner back.

He said the purpose of punishment in a military situation is different from the civil case, that it is imposed to maintain discipline and should be the least that is required to do so

The prosecutor, Maj. William Reed, did not speak to sentence but entered particulars of Ganner's service record.

Lt.-Cmdr. A. W. Rouse, a commanding officer of the fleet diving unit to which Ganner was attached, said the accused had been commended for his work in HMCS Provider during Expo 70 in Tokyo, and had been sought to accompany HMCS Terra Noval to withdraw Canadians from Viet Nam near the close of the Indochina war.

Lt. Mark Draibye, commanding officer of the junior leadership school who had Ganner as an instructor in diving, cited Ganner's initiative, leadership qualities, power of command, good nature and generosity.

He noted the man had been separated from his wife but awarded custody of his children until during the investigation last spring the wife took two children back. At about that time Ganner's mother was taken ill and died the day following his relase from close custody pending the court martial.

Before adjourning to deliberate, the board was addressed for more than three hours by the judge advocate, who reviewed the evidence and instructed the court on point

$28M Extra For Health?

Health Minister Bob McClelland said today that British Columbia will join in new cost-sharing arrangements with Ottawa which will include intermediate and home care for the first time.

While details of the new arrangements have yet to be worked out, McClelland said he anticipates the province could receive up to $28 million more from the federal government and may also save another $12 million by taking advantage of cost-sharing on early hospital discharge programs.

In a telephone interview from Summerland, he said the changes came about as a result of pleadings by the provinces over several years for cost-sharing formulas which cover all degrees of health care.

Until now the federal government participated in some levels of care such as acute and extended but not in others such as intermediate care.

At present the cost-sharing on home care applies only to early hospital discharge cases but the health minister said he hopes it can be expanded.

Just what share Ottawa will pay has yet to be worked out but McClelland said he expects it will be close to the 50-50 split on existing prorams.

The federal offer to revamp cost-sharing in health care came at a recent conference of health ministers in Fredericton and he said there was the impression there that all provinces will accept it.

B.C. was concerned that acceptance would jeopardize efforts of provincial premiers to negotiate a overall rearrangement of cost-sharing with the federal government but Ottawa refused to extend more time for a decision.

McClelland said that if the other provinces accept, he expects more meetings will follow soon to iron out details.

Royal Oak Protest Tuesday

A strong turnout of Royal Oak residents is expected for a meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Glanford elementary school to protest further expansion of the industrial park in their area.

Lawrence Cook, chairman of the Royal Oak Concerned Citizens, said today invitations have been sent to every member of Saanich council, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis, Capital Region District chairman Jim Campbell, and J. J. Runka, chairman of the B.C. Land Commission.

Cook's organization has appealed to the B.C. Land Commission to stop a bid by Saanich council to have 79 acres taken out of the agricultural land reserve, swelling the industrial park area to 120 acres.

The land commission has told the Royal Oak Concerned Citizens group that it is not in favor of taking acreage out of the agricultural land reserve that is prime land for raising crops.

Housing-Park Mix Approved

A mixture of townhouses and parkland — that's the future for two choice pieces of waterfront property in Victoria West, which the city purchased for more than $500,000 two years ago.

The sites are the former Rainbow property, home of the Navy League's sea cadets for 35 years; and a two-acre-plus parcel once owned by the Warren Tug and Barge Company, adjacent to Banfield Park.

Both were purchased by the city in August, 1974 — the Rainbow property for $320,000, the Warren Tug property for $240,000.

From the start it was envisaged that some form of housing would be developed on both sites, and aldermen and officials have made numerous visits of inspection to determine the most appropriate type of development.

The Victoria Advisory Planning Commission's recommendation, approved by council Wednesday, favors "ground-oriented" townhouse units.

There will be 28 such units on the nearly three-acre Rainbow site (where the sctual development will cover 1.33 acres) and about 14 units on the Warren Tug property (occupying a little less than one acre).

On the former property there will be 1.16 acres available for parkland; on the latter 1.04 acres, for the extension of Banfield Park.

Both sites will provide waterfront pedestrian access as part of the city's over-all promenade plan.

Mayor Mike Young said today the sites will be surveyed for subdivision plans, and the city will also prepare the appropriate zoning controls and development guidelines before issuing a proposal call to developers.

The city will probably sell the residential portions of the land "at market" he said.

While any interested party can tender, including non-profit groups and co-operatives, Young said the price will probably preclude the possibility of developing low-income rental units.

SAFEWAY PACT STEP CLOSER

Union members in Victoria voted Wednesday to accept a tentative agreement which could see 93 Safeway stores in B.C., shut down for the past month, re-open next week.

Members of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union in Vancouver were voting on the contract offer today while workers in Dawson Creek vote Friday. There are about 800 members in the union.

The tentative agreement is with Macdonald's Consolidated, main supplier of Safeway stores in the province. The voting comes after the latest round of negotiations which took six days and was guided by mediator Clive McKee.

'Garth Homer Centre'

The Greater Victoria Activity Centre for the Handicapped, near completion in Saanich, will be named for Garth Homer Achievement Centre, society president Floyd Fairclough said today.

Directors have voted for that choice of name in tribute to the former director of the Pearkes Clinic who died last week, he said.

Fairclough said it had been his board's privilege to serve with Homer in efforts to build a centre for all the handicapped of Greater Victoria and Homer's dignity and determination had inspired all those who worked with him.

Meanwhile, the $1.6 million centre on Darwin remains only 70 per cent finished as the board struggles to find the $300,000 needed to complete it.

Fairclough last week asked the provincial government to either provide the extra funds through a grant or grant and loan or to guarantee a loan the society would try to raise through a public campaign.

But in a speech Wednesday, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said there will be a substantial" amount of money available this fall to expand the achievement centre concept in B.C. (Achievement centre is the human resources department's new name for handicapped workshops.)

Later Vander Zalm said that no decision has been made on the request for $300,000 to complete the Greater Victoria centre but the total represented a "sizeable chunk" to give to just one centre.

'Exceptional Coolness'

A special commendation will go to Victoria Police Sgt. Doug Sleivert for his "courageous" handling of an Aug. 27 incident involving a confrontation with an armed man, Victoria police board agreed Wednesday.

Police Chief Jack Gregory praised the "exceptional coolness" displayed by Sleivert in claiming the man holed up in an apartment at 2531 Government, and finally persuading him to surrender.

Although the man had already fired several shots from a shotgun, and had threatened to shoot any policeman who appeared on the scene, Gregory said Sleivert's deployment of his men and personal bravery avoided injury to anyone.

At one point while the officer was talking to him the man made a grab for what appeared to be a revolver.

Under such circumstances most policemen might have fired, Gregory said, but Sleivert reacted coolly and the "gun" later turned out to be a replica.

Sleivert was one of two officers wounded in 1970 by a bank robber in a getaway, Gregory noted.

On that occasion, although his colleague had already been shot, he approached the robber "face to face, gun to gun," but refused to fire because innocent bystanders might have been hurt.

The other's bullet caught him in the centre of the chest, but fortunately through a combination of a small weapon and old ammunition the wound wasn't fatal.

Mayor Mike Young, chairman of the police board, agreed that a special presentation should go to Sleivert in addition to the letter of commendation from the board.

PEN TALKS DRAG ON

Times News Services

NEW WESTMINSTER — Negotiations between a prisoners' committee and officials at the troubled British Columbia penitentiary adjourned early today after agreement was reached on four of the prisoners' seven demands.

A member of a citizens' adivsory committee which sat in on the negotiations said the committee hopes the remaining demands will be resolved when negotiations resume later today.

Michael Jackson, a University of British Columbia law professor, said that prison guard Wayne Culbert, 21, who is being held hostage by the prisoners, was examined shortly before midnight by a member of the prison medical staff and was reported in good health and unharmed.

The committee is satisfied that "both parties have negotiated in the utmost good faith," he added.

He said that by midnight Wednesday, agreement had been reached on four demands and substantial progress was made on the remaining three. He did not say which demands had been agreed upon.

Meanwhile, the 200 prisoners who rioted early this week continued their insurrection in the devasted east wing of the prison.

In Ottawa, Solicitor-General Francis Fox said he will recommend acceleration of a building program to replace old prisons such as the B.C. penitentiary.

Fox also said force to end the revolt would be used only on his orders.

More RCMP were moved to the prison Wednesday as police and armed forces person-

GAS INQUIRY

VERNON (CP) — Consumer Services Minister Rafe Mair said Wednesday that a government committee will investigate gasoline marketing in B.C. The minister made the announcement after meeting with local service station operators who expressed anger with what they called gasoline price discrimination.

Schreyer Warns He'll Drop AIB

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer said today it is "extremely unlikely" the Manitoba government will remain in the federal anti-inflation program after the end of March unless Ottawa makes major changes in the program.

Addressing the annual convention of the Manitoba Federation of Labor, the premier said the Anti-Inflation Board is often too rigid in its interpretation of wage guidelines.

Manitoba signed an agreement with the federal government early this year to participate in the anti-inflation program at least until April of next year.

Schreyer supports controls in principle as a way of curbing inflation, but he has criticized several recent wage rollbacks affecting Manitoba workers as unfair.

His statement today was his strongest yet about Manitoba dropping out of the federal anti-inflation program next year.

At the same time, however, he told union members his government would feel obliged to bargain within the spirit of federal restraints.

Schreyer repeated two major complaints.

One is that there is inadequate recognition for workers coming off multi-year contracts, and the other is that the board often failed to understand the intent of contract terms, he said.

Schreyer's speech came at the time of renewed criticism from the ranks of organized labor because of the province's support of the anti-inflation program.

Delegates to the convention will vote later in the week on a resolution calling for the Federation of Labor to withdraw its traditional backing for his New Democratic Party government.

The speech also came just two days after Schryer's visit to Ottawa to seek a reversal of wage rollbacks ordered for health care workers and government liquor store employees.

Anti-inflation administrator Donald Tansley said Wednesday in Ottawa that a decision by the Manitoba Liquor Control Commission to pay raises above limits he ordered could subject both the commission and employees to penalties under the Anti-Inflation Act.

Commission chairman Frank Syms said a 23.7-percent wage increase was being reinstated to 400 employees depite Tansley's order reducing raises to 12 per cent. Tansley also had ordered the commission to pay the government $300,000 in wage overpayments, $60,000 of it to be collected from employees.

$40M SURPLUS IN WELFARE?

The human resources department could end the fiscal year with a $30 million or $40 million budget surplus if current trends continue, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Wednesday.

The saving will come entirely from welfare payments, the minister said.

"If we go as we are now, we may have an additional $30 million or $40 million for other programs or a surplus," he said.

He said the number of people on social assistance has dropped 20 per cent since September 1975.

Fewer transients coming into the province have helped the decrease, he said, "but it's also a matter of attitude."

"The officers (welfare staff) say the attitude of people is changing with respect to income assistance."

Vander Zalm said he couldn't give solid evidence that the decrease in the welfare rolls is "entirely our doing, but no one is being cut off welfare, just fewer people are coming into the system."

He said all other areas of his $581.1-million budget are on target.

Ferry Runs Aground in Fog

The Queen of Esquimalt ferry ran aground in fog near Swartz Bay at 8:05 a.m. today but the 137 passengers and 34 crew members escaped without injury.

The 33 vehicles and one bus on board were moved to the stern and this, coupled with a rising tide, freed the ferry at 9:10 a.m. and it returned to Swartz Bay under its own power.

B.C. Ferries general manager Charles Gallagher said a diver checked the vessel below the waterline and found a minor one-inch dent and scraped paint on the side and 30 feet back from the bow.

"The crew checked the vessel carefully and found that no water was taken and the engines are sound. No metal was damaged so repairs will not be needed. She may go back into service later today."

He said the crew should be commended for getting the ferry afloat so quickly and without the aid of tugs.

A crew member said passengers were startled but not injured and they took the incident in reasonably good humor.

The passengers were transferred to the Queen of Vancouver.

The grounding was the only major accident reported in the fog.

Victoria traffic police reported no accidents during the peak of the fog from 7 am. to 9:30 a.m.

Air Canada's 8:10 a.m. flight to Vancovuer left 40 minutes late and Pacific Western Airlines flights were running two hours late in the early monring but schedules returned to normal by 10:30 a.m.

Norm Dressler, chief forecaster at Pat Bay weather office, said the fog was to be expected because of a light flow of air from the mainland across Georgia Strait.

The flow of air became moist and warm crossing the strait and turned to fog when it reached cooler air over Vancouver Island.

Protest Day Still Puzzle

With two weeks to go before organized labor's day of protest, the extent of participation by Greater Victoria union members remains uncertain.

John Schibli, president of the Victoria Labor Council, said today some unions have indicated by vote what they will do but the total picture won't be clear until the day itself, Oct. 14.

He said the majority of workers take the position that the decision to stay off the job was made earlier by the Canadian Labor Congress and so there is no need for a vote by affiliated members.

Therefore, exactly how many of the council's 18,000 members go along with the CLC's decision and take the day off can't be computed at this stage.

Schibli said most rank and file union members appear enthusiastic about the day of protest but there is some concern as to whether this will result in participating in demonstrations on Oct. 14.

A co-ordinating committee of the council decided Wednesday night to have supporters gather at Centennial Square at about 10:30 a.m. Oct. 14 and then march through the city to the legislative buildings.

There the union members will be addressed by John Fryer, a general vice-president of the CLC and sec-

Jailed 4 Years In Theft

A 55-year-old man sentenced today to a four-year jail term for stealing more than $40,000 was pardoned in 1971 for previous criminal offences.

Prosecutor Armand Petronio disclosed that Kenneth Harold Simkin, of 1002 McKenzie, had been given probation for theft of $9,008 from an Elks Club raffle in Dawson Creek and a two-year jail term in 1960 for uttering worthless cheques in Calgary.

Simkin was pardoned for the offenses in June, 1971, Judge Harold Alder was told.

Simkin had pleaded guilty to stealing almost $35,000 from the Victoria Community Grocers Co-Operative Association and theft by conversion of $6,147 from Deltek Developments.

The theft from the co-op occurred while Simkin was doing book-keeping work as operator of Simkin Accounting Services.

The funds were used to pay debts, finance his own business and to pay for two vacations.

Judge Alder sentenced Simkin to a four-year jail term and two years probation.

Defence counsel Roderick MacDonald described Simkin as a man weighed down by debts and said he had lived a life of "failure and disappointment."

And he said because of Simkin's age and condition of health, he might not be able to survive a lengthy jail sentence.

Growing Rift Threatened Among Rhodesia's Blacks

Times News Services

SALISBURY — One of three rival black nationalist groups said today its leader would return to Rhodesia, raising the prospect of serious intra-black bickering over creation of an interim government.

Spokesmen for Bishop Abel Muzorewa said he would return to Rhodesia within two weeks to participate in efforts to form an interim government, as prescribed by U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's peace proposals.

Muzorewa's return to take part in a forthcoming British-sponsored conference on setting up an interim government could worsen existing divisions among the black nationalists and mar the process of bringing black majority rule to Rhodesia within two years.

Britain said it was ready to convene the conference within two weeks, "anywhere in southern Africa acceptable to all the parties involved."

Prime Minister Ian Smith, fearing a collapse in the peace efforts, has persuaded conservatives in his ruling Rhodesia Front party to support the peace plan, party officials said Wednesday.

Muzorewa heads what is known as the external wing of the African National Council. Both his faction and the so-called internal wing headed by Joshua Nkomo claim to represent the majority of Rhodesia's six million blacks.

A third organization, the Zimbabwe African National Union, which comprises guerrillas based in Mozambique, also is known to be jockeying for a voice in the formation of an interim government.

Rival black leaders will meet in Mozambique capital of Maputo this week for talks aimed at ending their rift.

SEA ROUNDUP CORRALS COWS

VANCOUVER (CP) — One cow was missing and presumed swimming in English Bay today following a spontaneous stampede early Wednesday in which seven cows charged off a barge into Vancouver harbor waters.

Police, tugmen and Coast Guard crew spent hours rounding up the cows Wednesday.

The city police boat crew assisted in hoisting two calves out of the water.

One cow swam to West Bay and three West Vancouver police officers spent two hours corralling the beast, which was eventually knocked out by a veterinarian with a tranquilizer gun.

The tide was coming in and the officers had to slide the cow onto a sheet of plywood and manually skid it to safety above high tide.

Another cow swam ashore in West Vancouver and was loaded into a truck.

Sixteen hours after the stampede a Coast Guard cutter reported it had a cow in tow and took it to Sandy Beach in West Vancouver.

Estate Tax Relief Due —Bennett

KELOWNA (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett said Wednesday that his government has a total commitment to change all succession and estate duties legislation in British Columbia.

Bennett told the Chamber of Commerce here that he could not detail the government's policy on the duties because tax changes must be made public only in a budget and that one is expected early in 1977.

However, he said the current laws are not reasonable because they discourage investment by Canadians in Canada.

The B.C. government now collects about $25 million a year in estate and succession duties, which were retained by the former Social Credit government in 1971 when the federal government allowed the taxes to become a provincial revenue, rather than federal.

Four Lanes Set

KELOWNA (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett said Wednesday that 4.2 miles of Highway 97 from Reid's Corner here to Ellison Lake, north of the city, will be widened to four lanes. The premier said work on the widening will begin immediately and will cost "many millions more" than originally forecast because of delays in starting the project.

MANILA (AP) — Several buildings collapsed when an earth tremor shook the city of Cotabato in the Philippines today, witnesses said, but there were no reports of casualties.

2 Elephants Born

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuter) — Elephant bull twins were born six weeks ago at the Lake Manyara National Park, Derek Bryceson, director of the Tanzania's national parks, said Wednesday. Experts say they believe it is the first time on record elephant twins have been born.

Leaders to Die

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI) — Sudan's former prime minister, Sadiq Al Mahdi and finance minister, Hussien Al Hindi were sentenced to death today in a mass trial of alleged ringleaders in an abortive July coup, the official Sudan News Agency reported. Six other defendants were sent to jail for life.

POUND WANTED AGAIN

LONDON — The British pound, one of the world's most unwanted currencies in recent days, was back in demand today and jumped more than three cents to $1.70 (U.S.)

In Montreal it was selling at $1.63 Canadian.

News that Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey had asked the international monetary fund (IMF) for a further $3.9 billion loan to support Britain's sick currency appeared to calm an edgy market.

Healey said that without help from the IMF to prop up the pound, Britain would have to endure economic policies so savage "I think they would produce riots in the streets."

"I think it would mean three million unemployed, and living standards would fall by at least five per cent," Healey said in a television interview late Wednesday.

Bankers and foreign exchange dealers were convinced Healey will have to produce an economic package, or a mini-budget, in order to bring confidence back to the pound.

"The loan will give Britain some breathing space, but unless it is backed by some very tough economic measures soon, we could even be in deeper trouble before long," one banker said.

Combines Probing B.C. Giants

VANCOUVER — Combines investigators are examining the record of several major Canadian forestry firms, including two B.C. companies — the giant MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. — the Vancouver Province reported today.

The investigators are paying special attention to newsprint marketing files.

Also being probed are the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, with headquarters in Montreal, and three as-yet unnamed eastern newsprint companies.

An industry spokesman in B.C. said he and his company "haven't got the slightest idea" what the combines officers are looking for.

One forestry firm official, who wished to remain anonymous, said he is "wondering if this is politically motivated — Trudeau is under tremendous pressure from labor for his wage controls, so perhaps someone in the government is saying let's show these guys we are giving hell to industry and not letting them get away with anything."

The investigators, from the Combines Investigations Branch in Ottawa, arrived Monday morning at the Vancouver headquarters of MB and CZ, armed with search warrants, good for a month, empowering them to examine records.

Intial reports suggested the combines men had seized large numbers of documents from MB, but the company's president, Ernest Richardson, said this was "quite incorrect."

"I know they are looking at certain aspects of our industry in Canada," he said, "and I know that they are here (in MB). But they haven't seized any documents. We are allowing them to see anything they want to see.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The B.C. Ferries' lease-back vessel, the Queen of Cowichan, won't be in service until mid-October.

Delayed by the recent construction industry dispute, work resumed this week, and elevators and escalators are being installed as the last touches on the $17 million ferry.

Owned by Canada Trust and leased back to the provincial government, she lies alongside at Yarrows shipyard, where she was built.

Entering her cavernous three-car decks that can swallow up 320 cars is like walking into a floating city.

Empty now, the passenger quarters designed to house 1,300 people, are bright with touches of gold, orange and tangerine, complemented with natural woods.

She and her sister ship, the Queen of Coquitlam, which was built at Burrard in North Vancouver, are the largest ships in the 27-strong ferry fleet.

They're also two of the fastest, capable of 23 knots. The Queen of Cowichan's German MAK diesel engines will allow a sustained cruising speed of 21 knots.

Stacked on each side of her 457-foot hull are four sets of escape chutes for fast evacuation in an emergency, similar to those used by large commercial aircraft.

Carried in a recess close to sea level is a business-like Boston whaler for fast rescue work.

The wheelhouses at each end of the double-ender have the latest in electronics.

A B.C. Ferries' spokesman explained the double-ended design "cuts down passage time, allowing more time in dock if necessary."

As workers returned to the job this week, there was an atmosphere of anticipation in the Queen of Cowichan as if B.C.'s newest ferry couldn't wait to join her sister ship on the job.

$28M Extra For Health?

Health Minister Bob McClelland said today that British Columbia will join in new cost-sharing arrangements with Ottawa which will include intermediate and home care for the first time.

While details of the new arrangements have yet to be worked out, McClelland said he anticipates the province could receive up to $28 million more from the federal government and may also save another $12 million by taking advantage of cost-sharing on early hospital discharge programs.

In a telephone interview from Summerland, he said the changes came about as a result of pleadings by the provinces over several years for cost-sharing formulas which cover all degrees of health care.

Until now the federal government participated in some levels of care such as acute and extended but not in others such as intermediate care.

At present the cost-sharing on home care applies only to early hospital discharge cases but the health minister said he hopes it can be expanded.

Just what share Ottawa will pay has yet to be worked out but McClelland said he expects it will be close to the 50-50 split on existing programs.

The federal offer to revamp cost-sharing in health care came at a recent conference of health ministers in Fredericton and he said there was the impression there that all provinces will accept it.

B.C. was concerned that acceptance would jeopardize efforts of provincial premiers to negotiate an overall rearrangement of cost-sharing with the federal government but Ottawa refused to extend more time for a decision.

McClelland said that if the other provinces accept, he expects more meetings will follow soon to iron out details.

Royal Oak Protest Tuesday

A strong turnout of Royal Oak residents is expected for a meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Glanford elementary school to protest further expansion of the industrial park in their area.

Lawrence Cook, chairman of the Royal Oak Concerned Citizens, said today invitations have been sent to every member of Saanich council, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis, Capital Region District chairman Jim Campbell, and J. J. Runka, chairman of the B.C. Land Commission.

Cook's organization has appealed to the B.C. Land Commission to stop a bid by Saanich council to have 79 acres taken out of the agricultural land reserve, swelling the industrial park area to 120 acres.

The land commission has told the Royal Oak Concerned Citizens group that it is not in favor of taking acreage out of the agricultural land reserve that is prime land for raising crops.

City Moves To Block Demolitions

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

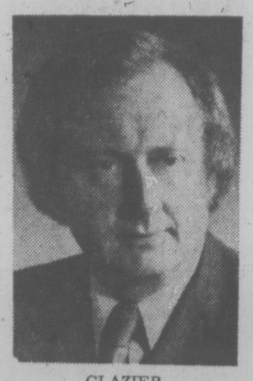
An alarmed Victoria city council decided Wednesday to seek special powers from the provincial government to cope with the housing demolition problem, which has reached epidemic proportions in recent months.

One of the key requests is for the right to withold a demolition permit until the developer in question has obtained council approval for the proposed land use and applied for a building permit.

Ald. Murray Glazier, who initiated the motion, has repeatedly urged council in recent months to consider some such action, but was told the city lacked the necessary authority under the Municipal Act.

However, Glazier said today that rather than wait several months for amendments to the legislation at the spring sitting of the legislature, the city may ask for the powers through a cabinet order-in-council.

He said the requirement for land-use approval before a demolition permit is issued would save the needless destruction of many sound homes.



GLAZIER
. . . can't wait

He could think of "dozens of examples" of homes that had been demolished and where the land still sits empty because the city did not approve the development plans.

Developers have been under the mistaken impression that presenting council with a bulldozed fait accompli would strengthen their rezoning applications, he said.

Another power requested by council Wednesday would allow it to levy "substantial" penalties based on the square footage of any illegally demolished building.

And council also wants the right to withhold a demolition permit on any property for which a heritage designation bylaw is being prepared.

(Under the present Municipal Act loopholes, a developer can thwart council's heritage aspirations. Because the heritage protection bylaws take several weeks to process, he can legally demolish the building before the procedure has been completed).

Up to the end of August City Hall had granted 181 demolition permits this year, but as several of these were multiple permits the actual number of dwellings demolished has been far higher.

The final total for September isn't known, but an engineering department spokesman confirmed today that "we are sitting on quite a number of applications."

Four Years in Jail For Ex-Mess Official

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Naval diver Cpl. Robert Ganner, 32, was sentenced Wednesday to four years in the penitentiary and discharged from the service when a general court martial found him guilty of 12 military offences.

He faced 24 charges under the National Defence Act emanating from his period of service as president of the Club 44, junior ranks mess, which spanned three years when there were thefts of cash, liquor and frauds and other actions contrary to good order and discipline.

His seven-day trial at CFB Esquimalt was presided over by judge advocate Lt.-Col. J. B. Fay, of Halifax, and Capt. (N) R. C. Okros, maritime staff Pacific, who pronounced sentence shortly before 5 p.m.

A few minutes later an armed escort of white-hatted provosts took Ganner into close custody for escort to service detention barracks in Edmonton, where he will remain pending an appeal, which if granted, may be held in Victoria.

Ganner took the sentence without visible stress, coloring slightly in the warm, makeshift court room as he was marched off.

The court martial board of five Pacific Command officers deliberated from 12:25 to 3 p.m., then after declaring the accused guilty of theft, making a false statement, abusing mess privileges, fraud and possessing unauthorized public property — in multiple charges — took another hour to consider sentence.

Ganner was found not guilty of four charges and the court stayed proceedings on eight others. In three instances the charges were amended to cover fewer items or lesser amounts of money.

At no point was the trial given a total of monies involved in the mess shortages, but one officer calculated that in a six-month period $7,800 went missing from bar receipts.

Defence counsel Maj. Brian Murphy had asked the court to consider Ganner's exemplary service record, the fact that he had had marital and personal problems during the latter part of the period under investigation and has bank and other personal debts of $7,000.

He said although these convictions called for imprisonment the period should be short, Ganner should be put on probation and allowed to return to his unit.

The offences did not relate to Ganner's primary function as a diver, and, Murphy noted, two former commanding officers testified they would gladly have Ganner back.

He said the purpose of punishment in a military situation is different from the civil case, that it is imposed to maintain discipline and should be the least that is required to do so

The prosecutor, Maj. William Reed, did not speak to sentence but entered particulars of Ganner's service record.

Lt.-Cmdr. A. W. Rouse, a commanding officer of the fleet diving unit to which Ganner was attached, said the accused had been commended for his work in HMCS Provider during Expo 70 in Tokyo, and had been sought to accompany HMCS Terra Nova to withdraw Canadians from Viet Nam near the close of the Indochina war.

Lt. Mark Draibye, commanding officer of the junior leadership school who had Ganner as an instructor in diving, cited Ganner's initiative, leadership qualities, power of command, good nature and generosity.

He noted the man had been separated from his wife but awarded custody of his children until during the investigation last spring the wife took two children back. At about that time Ganner's mother was taken ill and died the day following his relase from close custody pending the court martial.

Before adjourning to deliberate, the board was addressed for more than three hours by the judge advocate, who reviewed the evidence and instructed the court on points of law.

SAFEWAY PACT STEP CLOSER

Union members in Victoria voted Wednesday to accept a tentative agreement which could see 93 Safeway stores in B.C., shut down for the past month, re-open next week.

Members of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union in Vancouver were voting on the contract offer today while workers in Dawson Creek vote Friday. There are about 800 members in the union.

The tentative agreement is with Macdonald's Consolidated, main supplier of Safeway stores in the province. The voting comes after the latest round of negotiations which took six days and was guided by mediator Clive McKee.
